PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

THIS object of this work is to furnish a comprehensive Index to the case law of India as laid down in the reported decisions of the High Courts and Privy Council, analogous to that already compiled of the statute-law. It would perhaps be too much to hope that this object has been fully attained, but I can at least claim for it that it goes further towards success in that attainment than any previous work of the kind in India. I shall be satisfied with this attempt towards such an end if it be found in some degree useful to the Government in its legislation, to the judicial officers of Government, and last, but by no means least, to the members of all the branches of the profession to which I have the honour to belong.

The work contains the gist of the cases reported in 166 volumes of Reports extending over a period of fifty years,—viz, from 1836 to 1896. Besides the reports published in India, it contains the cases in Moore's Indian Appeals, without which, of course, no digest of Indian cases would be complete, and also such cases from the Law Reports, Indian Appeals, as are not reported in the Indian reports. The names of the reports are set out in the annexed list showing the periods over which they extend, the decisions of what Court they contain, and the abbreviations used for them in the references throughout the Digest.

With respect to a few of those volumes which have been reprinted, and in the later editions of which the paging is different from that in the original edition, I have given, wherever I could do so, both pagings. I think this difference of paging will be found with respect only to the first and second volumes of the Bombay Reports, the first volume of the N-W Provinces Reports, and the Agra Full Bench volume.

In some of the volumes—instances chiefly, however, confined to the Agra Reports—the paging is in some places manifestly incorrect, some pages having the same numbers. In these cases I have generally given the page which would have been correct had the paging been correctly continued.

In cases where it is not otherwise apparent that the case is a Privy Council or Full Bench decision, I have added in the reference the letters P C or F B, as the case may be, to indicate this. It should be noticed that all the cases in the Supplemental Volume of the Bengal Law Reports are Full Bench cases. This is not the case, however, with the Full Bench volume of the Weekly Reporter, containing cases decided in 1862-63, the letters W R, I B, therefore merely represent the abbreviation of the name of that volume, and do not necessarily imply that the case to which they are appended is a Full Bench case. In fact, as all the Full Bench cases in that volume are reported elsewhere, cases to which the letters W R, I B, alone are appended are probably not Full Bench cases, though some of them may be decided by more than two Judges.

With the names of the cases I have had great difficulty, — a difficulty which, from the character of Indian names, is, it seems to me, almost impossible to overcome. The general rule I have followed has been to cut out from the commencement of the names all prefixes and titles. The principal of these are Shahzads, Shah, Maharajah, Maharaj, Rajah, Rani, Nawab, Sir, Sri, Sreemutt, Musamat, Bibi, Thakoor, Syed, Mukhia, Moonshah, Mir, Mirza, Hady, Sheikh, Baboo, Coomar, Cowar or Koor and perhaps a few others. I have omitted these as far as possible with the object in view not only of greater brevity in the names, but also in order that, in the Index of Cases, names that are similar may come together, and not as they sometimes do in an index of names, some with the prefix or title and under one letter, and the same name without it under another letter. I have made exceptions to this rule only in cases where the name is given in the following form — “Maharajah of Vizianagram,” “Rajah of Shivarunga,” “Nawab Nazim of Bengal,” etc.

As to the spelling of the name, I found it hopeless to attempt any consistency, for the various volumes of reports go through all the possible variations in the manner of spelling any particular Indian name, and I came to the conclusion that it was best to spell the case as they appear in the reports. Had I adhered in all cases to any one mode of spelling the result would have been that any cases spelt in the report in a different way would probably never be found by looking in the Index of Cases, or, if discovered at all, only after much more expenditure of time and trouble than would be desirable, and such a method would, it seemed to me, lead in other ways to difficulty and confusion.

I at first intended to issue the work in not more than two volumes, but owing to the material having taken up more space in print than I imagined it would do and it being desirable not to have the volumes of a bulk inconvenient for ready use and reference, it has been decided to issue it in five volumes to be published successively, and, if possible, within the present year. To each volume will be appended a table of the headings contained in it, and the last volume will contain a list of all the cases contained in the five volumes. The pages will be continuous throughout the work.

PREFACE TO THE PRESENT EDITION

SINCE the issue of the first Digest, which included the decisions of the High Courts and Privy Council down to 1886 the Author brought out three separate volumes containing the cases from 1887—1889, 1890—1893 and 1894—1897, respectively. The present edition is a consolidation of the previous Digests, with the addition of the rulings from 1898—1900 inclusive. Its bulk has consequently increased to a very considerable extent. A reference to the Table of Reports will show that the number of volumes of Reports digested is 211 as compared with 166 volumes digested in the first edition. The first four numbers of the Calcutta Weekly Notes have also been incorporated as frequent reference is made to them in the Calcutta High Court. An idea of the increase of the size of this edition may be gained from a comparison of the number of volume and columns of the two editions. Whereas the first Digest comprised five volumes including the Table of Cases, the present one is made up of five volumes of the Digest alone and has a separate volume for the Table of Cases. In the former publication Volume I contained the letters A—D and consisted of 1,562 columns, the present Volume I contains A—C only, and runs into 2,054 columns. In order to keep down the size of the volumes, the Author has been obliged in several places to omit lists of cases from cross references, thereby avoiding repetition, without, however impairing the value of the work. The scheme and arrangement of the Digest remains the same but Act XXVI of 1867, which was put under the Stamp Acts, has been transposed to Court Fees, and Bombay Act I of 1865 now appears under the heading "Bombay Survey and Settlement Act I of 1865." Many separate minor headings have been brought under more general headings, and several sub headings have been somewhat verbally altered. The vernacular terms and expressions which are scattered throughout the Reports are now printed in roman letters instead of italics, and some uniformity in their spelling has been observed.

ABANDONMENT OF CHILDREN

1. ——— Penal Code s 317—S 317 of the Penal Code was intended to prevent the abandonment or desertion by a parent of his or her children of tender years in such a manner that the children not being able to take care of themselves may run the risk of dying or being injured. IN THE MATTER OF KILANI HASANI 18 W R Cr 13

2. ——— *Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) s 317—Exposure of child—Facts constituting the offence defined—Child left in charge of a blind woman and deserted—A woman who was the mother of an illegitimate child, aged at the time about six months left the child in charge of a blind woman in whose company she was saying that she was going to get food and would return shortly. She went away to another village and did not return. Apparently she never intended to return. Upon these facts it was held by BLAIR and AIKMAN JJ (dissentiente KNOX J) that the mother of the child could not properly be convicted of the offence defined by s 317 of the Penal Code. ### ABATEMENT OF PROSECUTION ——— Adultery—Death of Husband—The death of the husband does not necessarily put an end to a prosecution for adultery under s 107 of the Penal Code. ANONYMOUS 4 Mad. Ap, 55

ABATEMENT OF RENT

1. ——— Ground of Abatement—Causes beyond control—Act 2 of 1839 s 19—The real meaning of s 18 Act X of 1839 is that the grounds for which an abatement of rent may be claimed by a rayat must have resulted from causes beyond his control. MUNSOON AIR v HANVER [11 W R., 291

2. ——— Dilution—Act X of 1839 s 18 (Bengal Act VIII of 1839 s 19)—Deduction in suit for arrears of rent—Rent of a taluk may be abated if a portion of the taluk has been washed away. And partially of s 18 Act X of 1839 a suit for abatement of rent will lie by a talukdar on the ground that part of the taluk has been washed away. A deduction may be made in such ground in a suit for arrears of rent. ARER BODDER v SHORROOHER DADA DASER Murshidabad SAVI v OROOY NATH BOW 2 W R., Act Y, 27

3. ——— probands—The onus lies on the defendant in a suit for arrears of rent of proving to what extent he is entitled and of showing by what means he has disappeared. SAVI v OROOY NATH BOW [2 W R., Act X 27

4. Diluvion—Right of occupancy—A tenant whether with or without a right of occupancy is entitled to abatement of rent for land washed away unless precluded by the term of his kabuliat from claiming any abatement
ERAYUTODAN v ELANDEVEN
 [W R., 1861 Act X, 42]

5. Cause of action—When a diluvion takes place a right of suit to obtain an abatement of jummah accrues from the time when the plaintiff is compelled to pay the rent named in his pottah without the allowance of the abatement claimed by him
HARRY v ANBOOT
 ALL W N 1864, Act X, 64

6. Talukda created before 1790—Quere—Whether the proprietor of a talukda created before the Permanent Settlement can claim abatement of rent on the ground of diluvion.
RAM CHURN DSYAL v LUTAS
 [16 W R., 270]

7. Loss of right to deduction—In a suit for arrears of rent of land adjacent to a river where defendant claims deduction on a count of diluvion and it is found that the agreement under which he holds requires a cause cut to be made once in three years no account being taken of accretion or decurtion occurring within that period if the tenant has waived his right of measurement and has held over it must be presumed that he elects to continue to hold at the same jama as before and his claim to deduction cannot be allowed
HARYO HAYUS v SUBAMANICK v RANDRUS CHETTAIA
 [32 W R., 320]

8. Kaba
Right—Sale by tenant of his tenure—Suit against purchaser—In a suit against the purchaser at an auction sale of a tenure under a kabuliat by which it was agreed that the former tenant should not be entitled to abatement of rent on any ground and should be liable for interest at a particular rate for all arrears of rent the defendant pleaded that as auction purchaser he was not bound by the terms of the kabuliat that he was entitled to abatement on the ground of diluvion of portion of the demised lands and only bound to pay interest at a reasonable rate upon arrears of rent. Held that defendant was bound by the terms of the kabuliat entered into by his predecessor
ISHAN CHUNDER CHOWDHRY v KASSER HARRY FOX

9. Trans
ference of tenant Right of to abatement—A tenant has a right to and can claim an abatement of rent where the area of the land the subject of his tenure has been diminished by diluvion and such right passes to a purchaser on a sale of the tenure abatement of rent simply because the lands which he holds are rated higher than those of the same description and with similar advantages held by raiyats of the same class in the vicinity. MERSAL ACT VIII of 1869 s 18, refers to an alteration of area owing to a portion of the land having gone away by diluvion or otherwise—not to some difference in the length of the measuring pole in use at different periods

11. Damage to land by Cyclone—Right of under tenant to get remission of rent—A landlord receiving a miss from Government on account of damage done to his estate by a cyclone is not on that account bound to allow a remission to his under tenants unless he received the form on the understanding or agreement that he would allow it in turn
GOVIND CHATTERJEE MITRA v LAKSHMITI CHATTERJEE
 15 W R., 167

12. Land less than stated in lease—Decree apportioning rent reserved in a mokurari lease to the land transferred—Lessee getting possession of less land than stated in lease—Act II of 1853 s 61—Right of lessee to abatement of rent—A decree had determined that in a lease in mokurari to a lessee with a fixed rent thereon were less in extent than they were specified to be in the pottahs that comprised them the lessors not having title to the whole; and the lessee had obtained possession of the less estate;—Held that the lessee was entitled to a corresponding abatement of the rent reserved. The tenant paying mahal within which were the lands subject to the mokurari such lands being shares of mouzals therein was afterwards sold for arrears under Act VI of 1859. The purchaser at that sale was sued by the mokuradar to make good her incumbrance under s 61 of the Act. The lease was maintained by the decree that followed but only as to part of the share specified in the pottahs and the lessee obtained possession of that part only. In this suit for mesne profits brought by the lessee against the purchaser a heir who filed a cross suit against her for rent it was held that as the lessee had not proved that she having had possession under the lease had been disposed of by the purchaser there had not been an eviction in the proper sense of the word. But when in her suit for possession part only was decreed to her and she was precluded by the result from getting a substantial part her position was the same as if she had been evicted. She therefore had the same equity for an apportionment as if she had been evicted. On the facts it was rightly found by the first Court that the lessee was not taken with knowledge on the part of the lessor that the title was a doubtful one
MAHABANDI BEGUM v KAMLESWARI KHANABAD
 [1 C L R. 21 Calc 1005
 11 W R., 21 A., 118]

13 — Error in measurement of land—Land found to be less than stated—A lease providing for enhancement if the lands are found on measurement to exceed the quantity stated in the lease does not necessarily give the right to abate if the lands are found to be less than that stated in the lease. PAM KANT CHOWDERY v. BYDABUN CHUDRY GORE [2 W R Act X, 71]

14 — Construction of pottah—Default of tenant—Though a pottah provided for an abatement of defendant's rent if on measurement the land was found to be less than 140 bighas, yet it was held that if defendant came to be in possession of that less quantity by his own default and not that of the lessor the mere fact of defendant having been in possession of less than 140 bighas would not entitle him to an abatement. SEETAVATH BOSE v. BHANACHAND MITTER [17 W R, 418]

15 — Rajvat having paid no rent—Bengal Act I III of 1869 s 19—A rajvat who has held his land for a few months and paid no rent at all cannot sue for an abatement of rent on the ground that the land, on measurement is less than the quantity mentioned in his pottah. BRJOSATH BOODOO CHOWDERY v. UPANT BAK DUTT [17 W R 440]

16 — Misrepresentation as to quantity of land—In a suit by a patnidar to recover rent in accordance with the terms of a dar patni lease the defendant claimed an abatement of his patni rent on the ground that his predecessor had obtained such abatement in a previous rent suit in which it appeared that the lessor's share was slightly less than what was described in the lease. Held that unless the defendant could show that he had been damaged by the plaintiff's misrepresentation as to the extent of his share he could not be relieved from his contract in this form of suit at least. GOVIND MONU v. POR v. LADRA KROMUN SINGH [21 W R 372]

17 — Delay in suing—In 1850 G entered into negotiations with respect to the purchase of a certain taluk at a premium of Rs 42411 and an annual rent of Rs 8000 and in January 1860 he signed a sale bond which contained an enumeration of the mouzabs purchased the actual sale being completed on the 2nd June following. Until his death in December 1861 he paid the stipulated rent according to the terms of the deed. Subsequently his widow brought a suit for abatement of the rent on the ground that her husband had been misled as to the amount of rent payable by the under tenants. Held (affirming the decision of the High Court of Calcutta) that under the circumstances the suit could not be maintained. DARBYA DABRYA v. NIRMONEY SINGH DEO & C L R 465

18 — Act X of 1859 ss 18 and 23 cl 3—S 18 Act X of 1859 is not applicable to a case in which a

plaintiff patnidar sues for an abatement of rent on the ground of fraud caused by the concealment from him of the existence of an intermediate tenure created by the zemindar. Cl 3 s 23 of that Act is wide enough to admit of such a suit being tried by the Revenue Courts. SHOKOOR ALI v. UMOLA AHALLYA [8 W R 504]

19 — Denial of right to assess lands on tenure—A suit in which the plaintiff alleges that rent was wrongly assessed on him for lands not covered by his pottah and contends that in assessing his rent these lands should be included is not in the nature of a suit for abatement of rent. OPBOR GOBIND CHOWDERY v. HANAY [8 W R, 518]

20 — Breach of Contract—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—In a suit for damages by a lessee where the plaintiff shows a distinct prayer for abatement of rent and also sets forth as the main ground of the suit a fraudulent breach of contract by misrepresentation and refusal of deduction and refund stipulated for so much of the claim as refers to abatement is by cl 8 s 23 Act X of 1859 beyond the jurisdiction of the Civil Court but the rest of the suit is properly cognizable by such Court. NIRMONEY SINGH v. LADRA CHUDRYA GHOSAL [8 W R 52]

21 — Reduction of rent payable by landlord to Government—Act X of 1859 ss 17 and 18—Ss 17 and 18 were passed for the benefit of the rajvat and not for the protection of the zemindar. S 18 was intended to give the rajvat a right to abatement in certain cases but not to protect the zemindar from liability to make abatement in any other case. In a suit for abatement of rent on the ground that the jumma payable to Government had been reduced upon condition that the rents of the rayats should be reduced in like proportion—Held that the right to abatement applies only to the case of rents of which the amount had been fixed before the jumma was reduced by Government and not to rents fixed by pottahs or kabuliats entered into subsequently. BURHAWATULLAH v. PURBOO GORDAR [1 Ind. Jur O S 7]

22 — Loss of portion of land—Suit for declaration of liability to pay less rent—Equitable relief—A suit by a tenant against his original lessors for a declaration that he is not liable to pay them the whole rent payable under his pottah in consequence of a third person having subsequently to the grant of such pottah by suit established a right to a share of the rent is not a suit for abatement of rent. But where under such circumstances, the tenant is holding more land than is covered by his pottah it is not necessary that his landlords if desirous of enhancing the rent should be referred to a separate suit for that purpose. The suit of the tenant being for equitable relief the claim of the landlords must be taken into consideration in determining what relief the plaintiff is

23 — Land taken for public purposes—Suit to recover share of money taken as compensation for land—In a suit to recover the proportion of money paid into Court as compensation for land taken for a railway to which the plaintiff a dar patnidar may be entitled and in which suit the zemindar and patnidar are defendants the plaintiff cannot claim abatement of rent under Act V of 18 9 & 19 since such a claim is cognizable only in a suit instituted under that Act GORDON STUART & Co v MOHATAB CHAND [Morab 490]

24 — Claim to deduction from rent—A claim for rent being a recurring cause of action a tenant is entitled to set up against it for any particular year any right which he had to a deduction or abatement notwithstanding that he has paid full rent for several previous years. When land is taken away for railway purposes and compensation made which is divided between the zemindar and those holding under him any deduction of rent claimed from the zemindar must be reckoned with reference not to the gross amount of compensation but to the proportion which passed into his hands MOHATAB CHAND v CHITTRO COOMANEE BIRSE 18 W R., 201

25 — In a suit for rent by a zemindar against a patnidar the latter claimed abatement of the rent on the ground that part of the land included in the patti tenur had been acquired by the Government for public purposes The kabuli executed by the patnidar contained a provision to the effect that if any of the land settled should be taken up by Government for public purposes the zemindar and the patnidar should divide and take in equal shares the compensation money and a further provision to the effect that the patnidar should make no objection in the mode of division or any other cause to pay the rent fixed or reserved by this kabuli. Held that the patnidar was entitled to abatement of the rent Usha SUNKER BIRSE v TARINI CHUNDER [11 C L R 571 11 C L R 368]

26 — Ijara Settlement—Deduction from Rent—An ijaradar took on lease certain lands giving a kabuli which contained the following clause—In regard to the aforesaid rent we take upon ourselves the risk of flood and drought of death and flight of alluvion and diluvion of profit and loss. In no case shall we be able to claim a reduction in the rent nor will it be open to you to demand more on account of alluvion etc. During the lease part of these lands were taken up by Government for the purpose of a railway and compensation was paid to the lessor therefor. The ijaradar claimed to make a deduction from his rent for the land taken away from him. Held that such a claim did not come under the meaning of the word "abatement" as used in the rent law nor was it intended by the parties to be within the clause of the lease but the land having been taken from the whole area demised, not by natural causes but by the major the ijaradar was entitled to a deduction from the rent on his showing that there were tenants of his on the land who, before the land was taken by Government paid rent to him which they had now transferred to WATSON & Co v NISTARINI GUPTA I. L. R., 10 Calc. 544

27 — In a suit for arrears of rent a claim for abatement may be made by way of set-off in respect of land taken up by Government for the purposes of a road DEEN DIAL LALL v THAKROO KOOCHWAR 11 W R., Act X, 24

28 — Proceedings under Land Acquisition Act 1870—Purchase at sale for arrears of rent—Beng Reg 1111 of 1919—A portion of certain land held under a patti having been taken up by the Government for public purposes under the Land Acquisition Act the zemindar declared his intention of granting no abatement of rent and acting upon this declaration the patnidar was allowed to appropriate the whole of the compensation. The patti was subsequently sold under Regulation 1111 of 1919 with notice of the amount of the original rent and the purchaser now sued for abatement of that rent. He did not allege that he had no notice of the proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act. Held that the plaintiff must be presumed to have had notice of these proceedings and that it was therefore incumbent upon him to have made inquiry regarding the position of the patti and that under the circumstances he was not entitled to the abatement sought for. 18 W R. 520 [10 C L R., 520]

29 — Previous suit for abatement effect of—Onus probandi—There is no provision in the Rent law prescribing that suits for enhancement or abatement shall not be brought within a certain period after the determination of a similar suit on the same grounds. And there is no provision throwing upon a plaintiff in a suit for abatement of rent the burden of proof that there has been some change in circumstances since a decision in a previous similar suit was passed. CHEDA v DUNHOOD BEO 2 N W., 348

30 — Claim to abatement—Otherwise vary the rent—The words otherwise vary in a 153 Act X of 18 93 are meant to include abatement claimable by the ryot and this reservation is made in respect of questions of right to vary the rent whether raised by the landlord or by the tenant. ANUND CHUNDER DEOHRE v ANURGOOMAR CHATTERJEE [8 W R 192]

32 ——— Lessee—Act V of 1859 s. 23—A patnadar or any other lease-holder may bring a suit against the zemindar for abatement of rent under s. 23 Act V of 1859. PAMNARAYAN BANERJEE v JAYAKRISHNA MOOKERJEE. 11 L R Sup Vol 70. HOBOKISHEN BANERJEE v JOYKISHEN MOOKERJEE. 11 W R, 290

33 ——— Howladar—A howladar has a right to sue for abatement of rent. KOMIAKANT BOSS v POOGOR. 2 W R, Act X, 65

34 ——— Tenant with out right of occupancy—Act V of 1859 s. 19—A tenant not having a right of occupancy is not entitled to an abatement of rent under Act V of 1859 s. 18. MOHODEEP CHUNDER SINGH v JALLA SEED LOLL. Marsh. 325

35 ——— Under ten ants—Act V of 1859 s. 23 cl 2—Illegal exaction of rent—Cl 2 s. 23 Act V of 1859 relating to the illegal exaction of rent was not limited to suits at the instance of the raiyat but applied to any under tenant. GOPAL PAUL CHOWDRY v BRISH CHUNDER PANDY. 14 W R, 260

36 ——— Form of Suit—Act X of 1859 s. 23—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—A obtained from B a patni lease whereby it was agreed that A should prepare a bustabad (rent roll) that if it should appear that there was any deficiency in the jumma stated in the potiah the correct jumma should be ascertained as therein provided and that the rent should be made up to A by B and B should return a proportionate amount of the consideration money. A sued B for an abatement of rent for a refund of rent paid in excess and for a proportionate refund of the consideration money. Held the suit was not a suit for abatement of rent within s. 23 of Act X of 1859 and the Civil Court had jurisdiction to try the different questions together in the same suit. NIRMAL SINGH v ANNADEPA SAUD MOOKERJEE. 13 L R F B 93. [10 W R F B 41]

37 ——— Suit for apportionment of rent—Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s. 19—In 1877 certain batwara proceedings were terminated and the amount of land held by the plaintiff in the portion of the estate allotted to the defendant was ascertained. The rent payable was admitted to be at the rate of Rs 4 per bigha. In 1881 the defendants sued the plaintiff for rent of a larger amount than the plaintiff admitted to be due and obtained a decree on the 31st May 1881. On the 20th September 1881 the plaintiff instituted a suit nominally under the provisions of s. 19 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 for abatement of rent upon the ground that the defendants were seeking to charge him rent upon a larger amount of land than he actually held. The Court found that the amount of land held by the plaintiff was the amount

stated by him in his plaint and not that alleged by the defendants. Held that the suit was rather one for the apportionment of rent after the batwara proceedings and not one for abatement of rent. DURGIA LAKSHMI v GHOSHITA GORJA. [1 L R, 11 Calc 284]

38 ——— Rate of deduction—Jurisdiction of Revenue Court—A granted a patni to B to which a certain mahal appertained. The Government to which the mahal belonged in reversion upon an ijarra held by A sold it to C. Held that B was entitled to abatement of rent from A and that a suit for abatement under the circumstances was cognizable by the Revenue Court. Semble—Where there is no specification in the original contract of the amount of rent payable for the portion of land for which abatement is claimed such a sum ought to be deducted from the whole rent as would bear to that whole rent the same proportion as the annual value of the portion of the land which has disappeared bears to the annual value of the land originally leased. DEBIAKATH LAL CHOWDRY v HINALAL LAL. [13 L R A C, 87 10 W R, 120]

39 ——— Procedure—Suit for arrears of rent—A claim by defendant for abatement of rent under remission granted to plaintiff by Government may be tried in a suit for arrears. BOMUTO PARAKI v SURENDRONATH HOY. 1 W R, 84

41 ——— Effect of decision of Civil Court on decree of Revenue Court—Suit for excess payments of rent after decree for abatement—A patnadar sued his zemindar and obtained a decree for abatement of the patni rent on the ground that the assets of the patni fell short of the amount stated in the lease. While this suit was pending in the Civil Court the zemindar brought a suit for the rent of two years upon the full jumma and though the patnadar objected that his suit for abatement was pending the Collector decreed the rent suit in full. In execution the zemindar recovered the full rent and the patnadar then sued for a refund of excess payments and of the interest realized by the zemindar thereon. Held that the decree of the Revenue Court was superseded and modified by the decree of the Civil Court which was subsequently affirmed in appeal. Held that the plaintiff's cause of action accrued on the date on which the zemindar recovered from him rent in excess of what he was justly (on reference to the decree) that the abatement was lease. 19 ——— Death of appellant during pendency of appeal—Only one of three legal representatives brought upon the record—Civil Procedure Code (1952) s 365—Representation of deceased person.—The words "the legal representative" in s 365 of the Code of Civil Procedure must where there are more than one legal representative be read in the plural. Hence where a sole appellant died during the pendency of his appeal having three legal representatives and only one of such legal representatives was brought upon the record in the place of the deceased appellant within the prescribed period of limitation—Held that the appeal must abate. Either all the legal representatives of the deceased appellant should have been brought upon the record as appellants or if any had refused to be joined as appellants they should have been brought on as respondents. GHAMANDI LAI v AMIR BEGAM [I L R 16 All, 211]

20 ——— Appeal—Civil Procedure Code 1952 s 366—Application by legal representative to carry on appeal.—The appellant's father having died during the pendency of an appeal lodged by him a notice was served upon the appellant's two adult brothers but they having failed to apply within sixty days the appellant who was a minor applied several months afterwards to be put on the record in his deceased father's place as his legal representative which was done. The Assistant Judge who heard the appeal was of opinion that in consequence of the omission on the part of the brothers of the appellant to apply the appeal abated and he passed an order accordingly. Held that the application having been made by the minor son within the time limited by law the order of abatement made by the Judge was wrong. Although the complete legal representation vested in the minor son and his two brothers s 366 of the Civil Procedure Code only required an application to be made by a person claiming to be the legal representative in order to prevent an order of abatement being made. If either of the brothers was willing to have his name placed on the record the respondent was entitled to have them made defendants so that they might be bound by the decree. The minor son could then proceed along with the appeal. BHUKAJI PATE CHANDRA v PURSHOTAM I L R 10 Bom 220

21 ——— Civil Procedure Code (1952) s 365 s 366—Application by representatives to be brought on record—Legal representative—Effect of application being made by some only of several legal representatives.—During the pendency of an appeal two persons applied under s 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure to be brought on the record as legal representatives of the appellant who had died. were not made parties by the applicants & it remains that were given. The applicants were duly placed on the record as representatives of the deceased appellant within the time limited by art 176A of sch II of the Limitation Act. After the period of limitation had elapsed the respondents applied under s 366 and 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure for an order that the appeal had abated on the ground that the former petitioners had not added all the persons who had interests equal to their own in the representation. The Subordinate Judge held that the representatives of the two applicants was sufficient to prevent the abatement of the appeal but he made the other two representatives respondents on the record. He subsequently heard and allowed the appeal. On its being contended on second appeal that the appeal to the Subordinate Court had abated and should have been dismissed by reason of then a finding of the other two representatives—Held that though in art 176A of sch II of the Limitation Act the application is expressed to be an application under s 365 of the Code of Civil Procedure and s 366 is not mentioned yet for the purpose of considering the question of abatement the two sections must be read together. When there are more than one legal representative of a deceased appellant all these representatives must so far as it is possible for that to be done join in an application under s 365 and the words "legal representative" in s 365 of the Code of Civil Procedure (and similarly the words "any person" and "the legal representative" in s 366) strictly construed must in such a case be read in the plural and as including all the legal representatives. But where all the representatives cannot be joined as applicants s 365 and 366 should not be construed as to have the effect of rendering the application an application by "a" legal representative. Within the meaning of the sections so that the appeal must be held to have abated. Bhikaji Ramchandra v Purshotam I L R 10 Bom 220 and Ghamandi Lai v Amir Begam I L R 16 All 211, considered. MUSALA REDDI v RAMAYIA I L R, 23 Mad, 125

Her application was opposed by G the grandmother of the minor who alleged that she had been appointed guardian by the will of the minor's father. The Judge found the will not proved and he appointed K to be guardian. G appealed and pending the appeal she died. G's brother one M thereupon applied for leave to prosecute the appeal as G's representative. Held refusing the application that the appeal must fail by reason of G's death. Her appointment alleged to have been made under the will was a matter of personal preference and trust. A claim based on personal trust could not survive to her representative. GANGADASI v KHAIRABADI

Under the circumstances s. 368 read with s. 582 of the Code applied and the proper order was to have directed the suit to abate. Held further that where the order of the lower Court as to abatement was embodied in the judgment and decree objection was properly taken thereto by way of second appeal against the decree. Shree Nath Singh v Ram Din Singh I L R 18 All 19 Sher Singh v Duan Singh I L R 22 All 376 Dhari Upadhyay v Raushan Chaudhri Weekly Notes All 1899 p 136 Sant Lal v Sri Kishan I L R 14 All 221 and Chandrasany v Khimabhai I L R 22 Bom 718 referred to MEH KUTWAR & AMBA PRASAD

The maxim respondent superior has no application in such a case. Under the Bombay Police Act (Bombay Act IV of 1890) every Police-officer is bound to shelter a person in custody and to arrest persons committing assaults likely to cause grievous bodily injury. 1. ——— Corroboration necessity for—Selling aside conviction for error in law—The uncorroborated testimony of one or more accomplice or accomplices is sufficient in law to support a conviction. The evidence of accomplices should not be left to the jury without such directions and observations from the Judge as the circumstances of the case may require pointing out to them the danger of trusting to such evidence when it is not corroborated by other evidence. The omission to do so is an error in law in the summing up by the Judge and is on appeal a ground for setting aside the conviction when the Appellate Court thinks that the prisoner has been prejudiced by such omission and that there has been a failure of justice. The nature and extent of the corroboration requisite explained and illustrated. QUEEN & ELANI BAY

The rule in s 114 of the Evidence Act coincides with the rule observed in England that though the evidence of an accomplice should be carefully scanned and received with caution and may be treated as unworthy of credit yet if the jury or the Court credits the evidence a conviction proceeding upon it is not illegal. REG v PANASAKI PADAYACHI

A was first apprehended and the Magistrate inquired into the charge against him and committed him for trial but the Court of Session acquitted K. The Local Government preferred an appeal against his acquittal and the Magistrate arrested him with a view to his detention in custody until such appeal was determined. While A was so detained the Magistrate inquired into the charge against B who had meanwhile been arrested and made A a witness for the prosecution and committed B for trial. A's evidence was taken on B's trial. Held per STUART CJ (SPANKIE J doubting) that A's arrest was lawful and that his evidence was admissible against B. Held per SPANKIE J that assuming that the Magistrate looked on K as an accused person and his arrest was lawful the Magistrate should not have examined him as a witness against B and that assuming that K's arrest was unlawful and that when he made his statements he was a free man his evidence if admissible was not evidence in which a Court should place much reliance. EMPERESS OF INDIA v KARIM BAKSH I L R 2 All 386

Such evidence being admissible furnishes a legal basis for a conviction as any other evidence which is admissible. The mission to follow the established rule of practice as to the corroboration of such evidence does not constitute an error in law but where the evidence of an accomplice is not of a character to warrant the refusal of a Court to apply to it the maxim enunciated in illustration (b) of s 114 of the Evidence Act a conviction based on such evidence alone would

The illustration (b) of s 114—that the Court may presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars—is however the rule and when it is departed from the Court should show or it should appear that the circumstances justify such departure. Accordingly where a conviction was based solely on the evidence of accomplices and the circumstances connected with the preparation and conduct of the case as disclosed by the record and portions also of the evidence adduced at the trial showed that it would not be proper to act on that evidence the Court set aside the conviction QUEEN EMPRESS v CHAGAN DAYARAM I L R. 14 Bom 331

—Interest—Drindupat—In June 1883 the plaintiff's father advanced a loan to the defendant at compound interest. The account of this debt with interest was adjusted and signed from time to time. In June 1893 it was adjusted and signed the amount found due being Rs 288 8 0. In February 1896 the plaintiff sued to recover this amount. Held that the account (ruzukhata) was merely an acknowledgment of the debt and of the correctness of the calculation of interest upon it. Held also that the plaintiff was not entitled to treat the amount so found due as principal and to claim interest upon it. The debt to be sued on was the amount originally advanced and the interest recoverable was limited by that amount according to the rule of dandupat. By English law an account stated could be sued on as implying a promise to pay. Formerly this was the rule also in Bombay (as shown by the earlier cases) where the account was signed. If however it was not signed it could not be sued on as a new contract. The Indian Limitation Act required an acknowledgment or admission of a debt to be signed and an admission not made in the manner prescribed by law (i.e. signed) for the purpose of preventing a debt from becoming barred does not imply a promise to pay it if it should become barred. Accordingly however to the later authorities an account stated or adjusted (ruzukhata) cannot be sued on as a fresh contract. The suit must be brought in respect of the original transaction and the subsequent stated or adjusted accounts are only evidence of the debt arising from them and serve to prevent the operation of the Act of Limitation. SHANKAR v MUSTA

11 ——— *Fraud or specific error in account Allegation of—M sued for an account of all moneys received and paid on his behalf by T deceased (represented by his widow) and F as his agents from 1st August 1859 to 30th April 1865. It was alleged in the plaint that M left India in 1858 and has since resided in Scotland that at the time he left he was and still is possessed of extensive property in the Province of Bengal chiefly landed property that T and afterwards T and F were his agents and managers. In his written statement M stated that in the month of June 1861 the deceased rendered an account to the plaintiff showing that all moneys due to him by the plaintiff in respect of his salary and commissions up to the 31st January 1861 being the whole of deceased's claim against him up to that date under their above mentioned arrangements had been duly paid by the plaintiff. In the month of April 1865 deceased transmitted to the plaintiff the agency accounts of himself and his firm with the plaintiff in continuation of the accounts rendered by him as mentioned in the preceding paragraph brought down to the end of February 1865 and again in May 1865 the deceased transmitted the continuation of the said account brought down to the 30th April preceding being the date of the termination of the agency. The said accounts rendered have been examined by the plaintiff who verily believes that the true balance now due to him thereon exceeds Rs 100 000 without including interest. There was no allegation in the plaint written statement or opening of counsel of fraud or specific error. Held that M in his plaint and written statement had not disclosed any cause of action. MACKINTOSH v TEMPLE transactions were mutually agreed to be investi-

 discussion respecting some of the charges an agree-general balance at a given sum reserving one item of the account amounting to a considerable sum

 A bill was then filed for an injunction for the that the accounts so settled might be opened. The

1 NEW FORMATION OF ALLUVIAL LAND*(a) GENERALLY

1. ———— Beng Reg XI of 1825 — Bengal Regulation XI of 1825 regards accreted land as the right of that party to whose estate the land is an accretion and does not divide the accreted land according to the extent of each party as is by diluvion. The mere fact of a lessee having received a mukana allowance from the Collector during the period of his temporary lease will not bar the right to a permanent settlement if any party who under the law of alluvion is entitled to settlement. CALLY CHUNDER CHOWDHRY v MOHITKUMAR CHOWDHRY [W R., 1864 149]

BISW SUREN DO SEE v KALEE MOOMAR HOY [18 W R 188]

2. ———— Beng Reg XI of 1825 s 4 application of.—Cl 1 s 4 Regulation XI of 1825 applies only to lands gained by alluvion either gradually or suddenly and not to lands existing as waste land subject to inundation and in one year rendered culturable by a deposit of earth by the action of the river. AMJESWARAY RAI v DEEP NABAY RAI Agta F B 78 Ed. 1874 60

3. ———— Regulation XI of 1825 applies only to land gained by gradual accession from the recession of a river or sea and has no application to land formed by the drying up of a bill or marsh. Suroop Chunder Mozoomdar v Jardane Skinner & Co Marsh 334 relied on KHONDEKAR ABDUL HAMID v MOHINI KANT SAHA [4 C W N 508]

4. ———— s 4 cl 1.—Alluvion.—Title to land acquired by gradual accretion.—Limitation.—Cl 1 of s 4 of Regulation XI of 1825 does not depend for its operation on the capability of identification of the accreted lands. Whether the accreted lands are capable of identification or not the clause applies where the lands have been gained by gradual accession by the recession of a river. In the case of gradual accretions the ordinary rule of acquisition by prescription does not apply but each accretion as it occurs comes under the same title as that upon which the land to which it is made is held. DEBI BAKSH SINGH v TRIBHAWAN SINGH

5. ———— Suit for accreted land.—In a suit for possession of alluvial land which plaintiffs claimed by right of accretion under the provisions of Regulation XI of 1825 and in which the question of accretion was put in issue the lower Court's judgment was held not to be good in law because it contained no clear finding as to whether the lands in dispute had been formed on the original site of diluviated lands of plaintiff's estate or whether they were accretions to that estate by recession of the river. WISE v JUGGONUNDU BOSE

Affirmed on review. JUGGONUNDU BOSE v WISE [12 W R 409]

6. ———— cls 1 and 3.—In a suit for possession where certain lands were decreed to plaintiff on the ground that having formed opposite to his villages they subsequently became contiguous thereto by the gradual sitting up of the bed of the river which had previously flowed between.—Held that the decision was not in conformity with cl 1 or cl 3 s 4 Regulation XI of 1825 and that it was necessary to determine how the land formed whether it was thrown up as an island in the bed of the river or was formed by gradual accretion to an estate and if by gradual accretion to what lands it so accreted. UDYOGCHAYA DEBIA v SREEMITT DAS ZE 14 W R 254

7. ———— Proprietor of resumed mehal.—The Government when it holds a resumed mehal on its rent roll as its khas property holds it as and with all the rights and liabilities of a private zamindar and is therefore entitled under Regulation XI of 1825 to claim accretions to the khas estate. COLLECTOR OF PCBVA v SURVO MOYES 17 W R 163

8. ———— Suit for possession of chur lands.—The plaintiff sued for possession of a chur which he alleged had accreted to the remnant of the plaintiff's original estate which had been left when all the rest of his estate was washed away.—Held that the Court must decide what particular parcel (if any) was the remnant of the original estate and must also decide whether the chur claimed was formed by accretion to that remnant. RASHMOYES DO EE v BRUBOVATH BRUTTACHARJEE 12 W R, 252

9. ———— Land forming bed of canal.—Beng Reg XI of 1825 s 4 cl 1.—Land forming the dry bed of a canal belongs to the estate in which the canal itself was included. In cl 4 s 4 Regulation XI of 1825 the words subject to the provisions stated in the first clause of the present section do not apply to the formation and position of the newly accreted land but to the owner's rights in them in relation to the Government. SROOLAM v BRUTTOV alias BUTT SUT

(c) CHURS OR ISLANDS IN NAVIGABLE RIVERS

31 — Accretion to chur—Fordable channel—In accretion to a chur belongs to the owner of the chur whether the channel between the main land and the chur is fordable or not. KALLY NATH ROY CHOWDHURY v. LAWRENCE 3 W R 122

33 — Formation of churs—Beng Reg XI of 1825 s 5 cl 1 and 4—Right of fishery—According to cl 4 s 4 Regulation XI of 1825 churs thrown up in small and shallow rivers the beds of which are private property belong to the proprietor of the bed of the river but by cl 1 of the same section churs thrown up in rivers not small and shallow the ownership of the beds of which remains in the public are an increment to the tenure of the riparian owner to whose land or estate they are annexed. The fact of the right of fishery being in another person does not take the case out of the operation of the former clause. CHUNDERRAM CHOWDHURY v. CHOWDHURY 4 W R 54

34 — Diluvion—Reformation—Title—Beng P g XI of 1925 s 4—Where a chur formed in the middle of a river and was settled with A and by the recession of the river a new land appeared which was really a deposit on the ancient site of B's land though adhering to the chur it was held to be B's land. The first rule established by s 4 Regulation XI of 1825 does not apparently contemplate land other than that commonly known as alluvion; land gained by gradual and imperceptible accretion the incrementum latens of the civil law. There is no express provision in the Regulation for the case of land which has been lost to the original proprietor by the encroachment of the sea or a river and which after diluvion reappears on the recession of the sea or river and there is nothing to take away or destroy the original proprietor's right such a case is to be determined by the general principles of equity and justice under the 5th rule contained in s 4. A title founded on the original ownership and identification of land re-appearing is to be confined prima facie to the reformation on that site. The cases of Imam Basha v. 36 — Formation of chur—Alluvion—Beng Reg XI of 1825 s 4—Reformation on old site—Under Regulation XI of 1825 a right of property in land gained by alluvion from a river (the bed of which is not the property of an individual) is acquired in two modes first where the land is gained by gradual accretion by the recess of the river in which case it becomes the property of the person in possession of the estate to which the land is an increment and secondly when a chur or island is thrown up in a large navigable river and the channel between such chur or island is fordable at any season of the year the accretion is an accession to the land or tenure most contiguous. MONTY MOHUN DOSA v. JAGGOTCHAND DOSA 6 W R 312

37 — Gradual accretion—Land most contiguous—Beng Reg XI of 1825 s 4 cl 3—The land most contiguous to a chur as that phrase is used in Regulation XI of 1825 s 4 cl 3 is intended only to comprise the estate or estates with which the chur comes into contact along the length of the fordable part of a channel and the whole chur becomes on accession to the land and part of the tenure of the party to whom such estate belongs and no portion of it will cease to belong to him merely by reason of the deep water between it and the estate of another becoming shallow and fordable. Held also that after the chur had by the first occurrence of the fordable channel become part of A's property all further accretions to it if gained by gradual accretion would also belong to A even though the result would in the aggregate be a prolongation of the chur in front of estates on the river bank not belonging to him. GOLAN ALI CHOWDHURY v. 38 — Navigable river—Rights of riparian proprietors—Where a chur or island is thrown up in a large navigable river originally surrounded by deep unfordable water but between which and the estate of the zemindar a fordable channel has since been created the criterion for deciding whether the Government has the right of disposing of that island or whether the owner of the land to which it is most contiguous has that right is to consider the state of circumstances at the time of the formation of the island—that is at the time when it was thrown up and not the state of things at any subsequent or fluctuating period such as the subsequent silting up of the bed of the river between

Plaintiff was owner of the original estate of which a great part was cut off by a stream channel of the river but afterwards reappeared and for some time lay in continuity with defendant's chur and separated from plaintiff's estate by the said channel. established in both these provinces. Both parties were riparian proprietors of adjoining estates on both banks of the river Godavari. The plaintiff claimed the right to newly formed land in mid-stream which she alleged to have been formed by accretion upon an already existing lanka or alluvial island which belonged to her. On that point there were concurrent findings against her. The accretion had taken place upon a lanka owned not by her but by the Government and higher up stream than hers.—Held that the plaintiff must abide by the ground of claim which she had presented below, that being, that the new land was formed by gradual accretion to definite and visible portions of a lanka previously belonging to her. 51 ———— Formation of lands —Beng Reg XI of 1825—In a suit brought on the 11th March 1872 to recover certain plots of land (a) as re-formations after diluviation of lands which had belonged to the plaintiffs and as accretions thereto (b) under a title by prescription it appeared that the lands had formed in the bed of a river in 1839 and that the plaintiffs took possession thereof as re-formed lands and had been maintained in possession under awards under Act IV of 1840 but that in 1868 they were ousted by the Collector who assessed the same under Regulation VI of 1825 and settled them with his co-defendants. Held that whether or not in consequence of Act IV of 1847 the Government were entitled to assess the lands they were entitled to oust the plaintiffs and to take possession of the lands as lands which had originally formed as an island and were at their first formation surrounded by water which was not fordable. Wise & AMER UTTISH KHATOON Wise & Collector of Backergunge L R 71 A 73

52 ———— Formation and attachment to estate of island chur formed in river—Defendants were owners by purchase from Government of a property called Oujan Chur which in its origin was an island thrown up in the bed of the river. Plaintiff was owner of the original estate of which a great part was cut off by a stream channel of the river but afterwards reappeared and for some time lay in contiguity with defendant's chur and separated from plaintiff's estate by the said channel. By the gradual filling up of the water formation became more and more extensive until the land again lay in contact with the plaintiff's estate. As it had been clearly ascertained by boundary marks and measurements that the re-formation took place on the original site of the plaintiff's land the right of the plaintiff as by re-formation was held to be preferable to that of the defendants which rested upon accretion. BODDY CHUNDER SHARMA & BEHN BHANEE POY 23 W R, 110 established in both those provinces. Both parties were riparian proprietors of adjoining estates on both banks of the river Godavari. The plaintiff claimed the right to newly formed land in mid stream which she alleged to have been formed by accretion upon an already existing bank or alluvial island which belonged to her. On that point there were concurrent findings against her. The accretion had taken place upon a bank owned not by her but by the Government and higher up stream than hers. Held that the plaintiff must abide by the ground of claim which she had presented below that being that the new land was formed by gradual accretions to definite and visible portions of a bank previously belonging to her. This she could not now rely to a claim founded on an ownership of the river bed on the strength of her being zamindar and owner of the land on both banks of the river without either issue or evidence directed to such subaqueous ownership. BALDEV RAMAKRISHNAMMA & Co COLLECTOR OF THE GODAVARI DISTRICT I L R 22 Mad. 464 [L R 28 I A 107 3 C W N 777]

share was 11 in execution of a deed and the auction purchaser was put in possession. In the sale certificate the village M was named without specific mention of either of the two mehals, and the Government revenue of M was the amount assessed on U only. Subsequently the river receded and part of K was again left dry and it was treated by the revenue authorities as having accreted by alluvion to U in the proprietary possession of the auction purchaser. Held that this view was erroneous inasmuch as before the auction sale of 20th September 1877 the two properties were separate being separately assessed with revenue and the incidents of the ownership of one could not affect the ownership of the other and since there was no such rule of law as would justify the proposition that simply because two mehals are contiguous, and one of them is liable to be submerged therefore it is nothing more or less than an accretion to the other. Held also that inasmuch as the mahal K being at the time under water was not attached in execution of the decree against F and was not advertised for sale and the revenue assessed thereon was not referred to in the sale proceedings and the sale certificate contained no reference to it as the property sold the sale of the 20th September 1877 did not convey any rights to the auction purchaser in respect of K. Mahadeo Dubey v Bhola Nath Dicht I L R 5 All 86 referred to. Fida Husain v Asud Husain

A man cannot be precluded from asserting his own rights by acquiescence in acts of other parties inconsistent with them unless (1) he has actual knowledge as distinguished from the means of knowledge of his rights (2) he has knowledge that the persons acting inconsistently with them are doing so under the mistaken belief that they are exercising rights of their own (3) he has encouraged the parties in acting to spend money or do other acts either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal rights. *Hillmoor v. The Munsif gave a decree for the plaintiff on appeal the Principal Sudder Amin finding that the plaintiff knew of the sale and treating the knowledge as evidence of acquiescence in it reversed the decision of the Munsif. Held reversing the decision of the Principal Sudder Amin that such knowledge would not make the plaintiff a party to the sale by the first defendant so as to bar his right to recover the land for which he sued in ejectment. 36 ——— Ratification of transfer of property—A solehnama in 1847 to which were parties the sons daughters and widow of a deceased Mahomedan proprietor transferred the shares of two minor daughters in their father's estate having been executed by their mother the widow on their behalf. On the question whether the solehnama should be set aside at the instance of the two daughters on the ground of its having been beyond their mother's power to bind them and of the instruments having been prejudicial to their interests the evidence showed that it had been acted on and followed by possession and that the daughters had after attaining full age allowed a lengthened period of twenty years to elapse without taking proceedings to dispute it—Held that if the mother had exceeded her powers in executing the solehnama on their behalf and if they might at one time have had it set aside their long acquiescence was sufficient to show ratification of the transaction; and the solehnama was

37 ——— Presumption from allowing grant of certificate unopposed.—In a rival claim between two Hindu widows of a deceased husband the plaintiff sued her mother and guardian of her infant son to establish his right as son and heir of his father. One defence among others was that the son was not legitimate and could not inherit. His legitimacy was established but the incapacity to inherit was sought to be proved by the plaintiff's virtual acknowledgment of the defendant's title as heiress on the grant to the defendant unopposed by the plaintiff of a certificate of heirship. Held that it was not the practice of the Courts in India or of the Privy Council to press against either an infant or a Hindu female a presumption by acquiescence in a rival claim from the mere non contestation for a limited time of an adverse title. RAMANANI AMMAL & KULANTHI NAICHAN

38 ——— Not objecting to sale.—Suit to recover property sold.—Presumption of consent.—Where R. K. acting ostensibly as recognized agent and manager of the family sold part of the family property to the ancestors of the defendants and the plaintiff who was then of age did not object to the sale but afterwards sued to set aside the sale as to his share on the ground that the property had been purchased by R. K. with the joint funds while the plaintiff was a minor and that it was sold by him without authority the first Court gave him a decree for a one fourth share of the property. R. K. appealed but the other defendants did not appeal. The Judge assuming the lower Court's finding to be correct held that as the plaintiff who was of age at the time did not object to the sale he could not recover possession of property sold by R. K. as the recognized agent and manager. Held that R. K. could not found any right upon the presumption of plaintiff's consent however such presumption might have availed the other defendants purchasers from R. K. who had not appealed. GOPAL CHANDER LAKSHOBY & ROY HISHORE LAKSHOBY 15 W. R. 467

40 ——— Account made in course of usual dealing.—The defendants in a suit for balance of payments made by plaintiff on his behalf held not entitled to refuse to be bound by an account made up in accordance with the course of dealing which had practically been assented to by him and had been followed between the parties for many years. THAKOOR PERSHAD SINGH & MOHESH LALL [24 W. wrongly impleaded.—The managing member of a Hindu family consisting of himself and two brothers who were minors mortgaged the ancestral property to secure a debt properly incurred by him in his capacity as manager. The mortgagee brought a suit upon the mortgage joining as defendants the three brothers the two younger of whom were sued by the mortgagee as their guardian ad litem. A decree for the plaintiff having been passed the lands were sold in execution. The two younger brothers now sued to have the decree and the sale set aside as regards them on the ground that they had both been of age at the date of the suit and accordingly had been wrongly impleaded. It appeared that the elder plaintiff was in fact a major at the date of the previous suit but he was aware prior to the sale of the suit and the execution proceedings and still allowed his elder brother to conduct the defence and proceedings on his behalf.—Held that both plaintiffs were bound by the decree in the former suit. RAYA CHARI & DURAISAMI PILLAI I. 42 ——— Sending agent to settle rent.—Acquiescence in rate.—The sending of an agent by a tenant to settle with the landlord as to the rent is not a virtual acquiescence in the rate of rent demanded. STALKART & LALLA HUBBERT LALL W. R. 1864 Act X, 115

43 ——— Receipt of rent in lieu of grant of land.—In a suit to recover possession of land it appeared that the defendant's father had in 1801 obtained possession on a lease of 280 bighas from the Government of Kulabo and that the plaintiff's father had in 1806 obtained a grant of 10 unspecified bighas of the same land but that he never asked to have them marked out and given to him in specie and that he and subsequently his sons the plaintiffs were content up to the year 1856 to receive from the defendant's family in respect of their grant the rent formerly paid by them to the Government for the same. The District Court reversed the decree of the Munsif and threw out the claim to recover possession of the land on the ground that the plaintiffs must be taken after such a lapse of time to have acquiesced in the arrangement that a yearly rent was to be received without any particular land being marked out as theirs. Held that it was incompetent for the Assistant Judge to come to that conclusion under the circumstances and that there was no ground for saying that there was any error of law in his decision which was accordingly affirmed. SULE & DRUMDRAJ V. of 1847 repealed everything in the Regulations which enacted by what officers and how the question of liability to assessment should be tried and therefore took away from Collectors and Boards of Revenue the power of giving any binding decision on the point. Held also (MITTER J dissenting) that the effect of the words shall be final in s 1 was to make the assessment final in every case in which there was jurisdiction to assess but to leave it open to the Civil Courts to inquire in each case whether there was such jurisdiction or whether the lands assessed were liable to assessment. Per MITTER J—S 1 has not abolished the judicial functions of the Revenue authorities under Regulation II of 1819 all that has been abolished by that section are the tribunals constituted by Regulation III of 1828. Per MITTER J—The proceedings of the Revenue authorities under s 6 embrace an inquiry upon two questions:—the question of the liability to assessment and the rate of assessment and under the express wording of the section the finality attaches to the whole order of the Board of Revenue. FARAHMANDYASSA BEGUM v SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL
[I. L. R. 14 Cal. 67]

Held on appeal to the Privy Council—A review of the legislation anterior to Act IX of 1847 shows that whilst it was intended to bring under assessment lands not included in the permanent settlement whether waste or gained by alluvion or dereliction from sea or rivers yet all such lands as were comprised in permanently settled estates were to be rigorously excluded from further assessment. Lands included in the permanent settlement having afterwards been covered by water and having then been formed again on the same site held not to be lands gained from the river by alluvion or dereliction within the meaning of Regulation II of 1819 that expression being confined to meaning lands gained since the period of the settlement. The effect of Act IX of 1847 was merely to change the mode of assessment in the case of land already liable to be assessed under legislation in force when that Act became law. It was not the object of that Act to bring under liability land reformed on the site of land previously lost within the area of a permanently settled estate the revenue upon which had been paid without abatement since the permanent settlement. When an order of the Board of Revenue purporting to be made under Act IX of 1847 subjected land included in the permanent settlement to assessment—Held that the District Civil Court had jurisdiction (which therefore may be invoked as a matter of right) to entertain a suit brought by the landowner contesting that order and to declare it unauthorized by law. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v FARAHMANDYASSA BEGUM

1. — Award—Decision on non appearance of parties—Act XIII of 1848 for the greater security of proprietary titles in the Presidency of Bengal derived from awards made by the revenue authorities under Regulation XII of 1822 Regulation IX of 1825 and Regulation IX of 1833 of the Bengal Code by s 3 enacted that no suit should be entertained for contesting the justice of any award of the revenue authorities under any of these Regulations made after the passing of the Act after the expiration of three years from the date of the final award. A suit for the amendment of a map was referred by the Deputy Collector to an Ameen for the purpose of a local investigation and the Ameen returned that neither of the parties appearing before him he was unable to make the investigation whereupon the Deputy Collector struck the case out. Held that this was not an award within the meaning of the Act. GOLAM HOODSEE CHOWDHURY v RASHID CHANDER GHOSH Marsh. 323

2. — In order to apply the provisions of Act XIII of 1848 in regard to limitation it was necessary to show that there was an award i.e. an adjudication after a contention between the parties before the survey authorities. HURREE MOHUN THAKOOR v ANDREWS W. R. 1864 30

3. — Suit to assess land—Boundary suit—Act XIII of 1848 did not apply to bar a suit to assess land as rent paying. A decision in a boundary suit decides only the question of right to possession of the land irrespective of the right to assess. MAHOMED ALI KHAN CHOWDHURY v JADUB CHANDER CHUCKERBUTTY W. R. 1864 60

4. — Awards made by Collectors—Beng. Regs VII of 1822 IX of 1825 and IX of 1833—Act XIII of 1848 was limited to awards made by Collectors under Bengal Regulations XII of 1822 IX of 1825 and IX of 1833 which gave to the revenue authorities judicial power to determine questions of possession and other matters with a right of appeal to the regular Courts against their awards. An order of the Collector for the mutation of names in the registers is not an award of the nature contemplated by the Regulation XIII of 1848 and an appeal from it was not subject to the limitation of three years prescribed thereby. JEWALA BUKSH v DHANU SINGH [10 Moore's I. A., 511]

5. — Settlement award—Suit to set aside—Act XIII of 1848 applied only to suits for contesting the justice of an award as between the contending parties and not to suits for the purpose of amending a settlement and establishing the rights

Hindu Law—Power to deal with minor's property without certificate of administration—S 2 of Act XL of 1858 does not preclude the natural and legal guardian of a Hindu minor from dealing with the minor's property by mortgage or otherwise within the limits allowed by the Hindu law without having acquired a certificate of administration from the Civil Court HET SINGH v THAKOR SINGH
[4 N W, 67]

2. — Hindu and Mahomedan Law—There is no indication whatever in Act XL of 1858 of any intention to alter or affect any provision of Hindu or Mahomedan law as to guardians who do not avail themselves of the Act. The scope of the enactment is merely to remove legislative prohibitions to confer expressly certain jurisdiction and to define exactly the position of those who avail themselves of or are brought under the Act leaving persons to whom any existing rules of law apply unaffected RAM CHUNDER CHUCKERBUTTY v
BROJONATH MOZUMDAR I L R 4 Cal, 929
[4 C L R 247]

3. — Mahomedan Law
—Act XL of 1858 comprises the cases of all minors not under the Court of Wards and not being European British subjects and acts irrespective of the Mahomedan law which can be no guide to the Civil Court in determining whether an applicant should or should not have letters of administration AKILA
BIBEE v AZHEM SARUNG 9 W R, 894

4. — Mahomedan Law
—Act XL of 1858 authorizes a Court to select a guardian irrespective of the law of the parties (e.g.
Mahomedan law) but does not prevent the selection of a guardian indicated by such law if he be a fit
person MOHUNNUDDY BEGUM v OOMDUTOOVISA
[18 W R 454]

5. — Provision made by will for guardianship—Where a testator makes due provision for the guardianship of his minor son Act XL of 1858 does not contemplate the interference of the Court in its summary jurisdiction ASVUD COO-MAR GANGOOLEY v PAKHAL CHUNDER ROY
[8 W R, 276]

1. — s 3—Application for certificate—Form of application—An application for a certificate under Act XL of 1858 need not refer to the estate of the deceased but ought merely to set forth that there is property to which the minor is entitled and of which the applicant claims the right to have charge KOSOOK KAMTAR DEBEE v
CHUNDER KANT MOOKERJEE 23 W R 346

2. — Party having no right to possession—A certificate under s 3 of Act XL of 1858 is purely an authority for the administration of property and ought not to be issued where there is neither present right nor prospective possession NOBIN CHUNDER SHAHA v RAJYABAIN
SHAHA 11 W R 582

3. — Guardian and Minor—Ground for refusal of certificate—An application for a certificate under Act XL of 1858 (which if successful would in effect prolong the minority of an infant from eighteen to twenty-one) should not be granted when the alleged minor is admittedly on the point of attaining the age of eighteen unless under particular circumstances as where very great weakness of mind is proved or where it is shown that there is some absolute necessity for making such evidence to show that such a certificate of administration was not granted, the Court must presume the regularity of the order under ultra (e) to s. 114 Evidence Act. RAJ COOMARIE DASSEE v PERO MADHUR LUTDY 1 C W N 453

9 ——— Certificate of guardianship—Certificate ordered but not issued Effect of—Limitation—A certificate of guardianship obtained under s. 3 of Act XL of 1858 takes effect from the time it is issued and not from the date of the order directing its issue. Sahas Nand v Munghiram Marari 1 L R 12 Calc 542 followed. HOWBAT ROY v LALA KEDAR NATH 1 L R 13 Calc 210

10 ——— Right to sue without certificate—Acts of guardians without certificates—Act XL of 1858 declares that a person shall not be competent to institute a suit in Court in respect of property of which he claims the charge until he shall have obtained a certificate but not that every act of a guardian who has not such a certificate shall be null for the want of one. SHODHUR KORE v BOSWANT NARAIN SINGH 8 W R 331

11 ——— Right to sue without certificate—Manager without certificate—A manager has no authority to deal with the claims or debts and liabilities attaching to the estate of a minor without having taken out a certificate under Act XL of 1858. TUSTREFF HOSSEIN v SOOKHROO [14 W R 453]

SUBHA KOOPEREE v HURDEY NARAIN MOHAJUN [25 W R 97]

12 ——— Guardian without certificate—Validity of acts—Without a certificate under Act XL of 1858 a Court may refuse to hear even a natural guardian of right. When the Court in the exercise of the discretion vested in it does hear him the absence of the certificate will not vitiate the proceedings. The private acts of a natural guardian without a certificate under Act XL of 1858 are not vitiated by law. LALLA BROODMUL v LALLA GOWREE SUNEER 4 W R 71

Civil Procedure Code ss 440 578—In a suit conducted on behalf of a minor by a relative the absence of the certificate of guardianship required by s. 3 of the Bengal Minors Act (XL of 1858) is not a fatal defect and the fact of the Court allowing such a suit to proceed must be taken as implying that the necessary permission has been given. 21. — Held that the plaintiff not being legally or formally appointed manager or guardian of a minor's estate or person was incompetent to maintain the suit on his (the minor's) behalf especially when the minor's natural father has been appointed as such under Act XL of 1858 and has not been discharged from his office. SERIL PERSHAD v BIRJ MOHUN DASS 1 Agra 25

22. — Waiver of objection—Duty of Judge—That the persons who sue on behalf of minors are their natural guardians and not a sufficient reason for neglecting the directions of law which require that the minors shall be represented by persons who have obtained certificates or by persons who when the property is of small value are specially permitted by the Court to sue or defend the suit on behalf of minors. The fact that the defendant's pleader did not press the objection does not relieve the Judge from the duty imposed on him of seeing that the minors were properly represented. ZORAWAR SINGH v JAYANTS SINGH 3 Agra, 167

24. — Son adopted pending suit—When adoption takes place while a suit is pending on the part of the widow and the adopted son is a minor it is necessary that he should be substituted for his adoptive mother as the party preferring the appeal and be duly represented in conformity with the provisions of s 3 Act XL of 1858. COLLECTOR OF BAREILLY v NURABY DAI

27. — Permission of Court—From the fact that in a former suit the plaintiff's father was arrayed among the parties as his guardian as well as from the line of defence shown adopted and in the absence of any evidence to the contrary it was presumed that she had the permission of the Court to appear and represent the minor's father in that suit and therefore the decision in that suit was held to be binding on the minor in a subsequent suit where the same question was raised. NOVOMALLY KESHU v HETOSHTASAR POK

28. — Set by majority of guardian—Where a person representing herself as a guardian took out a certificate under Act XL of 1858 nor obtained the permission of the Court under s 3 of that Act to appear in the suit without a certificate—Held that the minor was

29. — Beng Reg X of 1793—Suit on behalf of minors—In a case in which Regulation X of 1793 has no application the Court may under s 3 Act XL of 1858 allow a friend or relative of the minor to institute a suit on his behalf and where the guardian omits to take steps for the protection of the infant the Court may allow another person to sue for the benefit of the latter. MODHOO SOODUN SINGH v PARTHEE BULLER PAUL [16 W R 231]

31. — Next friend—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1859) s 440—S 440 of the Civil Procedure Code read with s 3 of Act XL of 1858 does not make the receipt from the Court of a written permission to sue compulsory upon the next friend of an infant plaintiff. NEWAL v MAHEND ALI I L R 13 Calo 131

32. — Suit on behalf of minor—Permission to relative to sue—The mother of a minor who had not obtained a certificate under Act XL of 1858 instituted a suit on behalf of the minor for some property of small value. She did not ask the Court in which she instituted the suit for permission to institute it as required by s 3 of that Act but the Court entertained it the defendant not raising the objection that it had been instituted without permission and it was decided on the merits in favour of the minor. Held that under these circumstances it must be taken notwithstanding there was no order allowing the mother to sue that the suit was instituted with the Court's permission. KEDAR NATH v DEBI DEVI I L R, 4 All 165

Permission to re-litigate to defend—The mother of a minor who did not hold a certificate under Act XL of 1858 was sued on behalf of the minor. She did not obtain permission to defend the suit on behalf of the minor but the Court allowed her to answer to the suit on behalf of the minor. Held that under these circumstances it must be inferred that the Court had given her permission to defend the suit as required by s. 3 of Act XL of 1858 and therefore the decree made against her in the suit as representing the minor was binding on the latter. JANKI v DHARAM CHAND

Right to represent minor without certificate—Discretion of Court—A person who does not hold a certificate under Act XL of 1858 is not debarred by s. 3 from representing a minor as plaintiff or defendant in a suit but the Court has the fullest discretion when the property is of small value or for any other sufficient cause to dispense with the production of a certificate. SREEMUNY KONDODU v SHARODA SOONDUREE DOSSEE BEYJONCHEREE PARAMANICK v SHARODA SOONDUREE DOSSEE

8 — Purchaser from guardian—Per GARTH CJ—Previously to the passing of Act XL of 1858 where a suit was brought by a minor on coming of age to recover property sold by his guardian during his minority it was generally incumbent upon the purchaser to prove that he acted in good faith that he made proper enquiries as to the necessity for the sale and had honestly satisfied himself of the existence of that necessity. Now under s 18 of that Act the Civil Court not only has the power but is bound to enquire into the circumstances of each case and to determine whether as a matter of law and prudence it is right that any proposed sale or mortgage of the minor's property should take place and if the Court upon the materials and information brought before it by the guardian makes an order for sale a purchaser under such an order is not bound to make the same enquiry which the Judge has made and to determine for himself whether the Judge has done his duty properly and come to a right conclusion. Where a plaintiff alleges fraud or illegality as a ground for setting aside a sale made under s 18 the onus lies upon him to make out a prima facie case of fraud or illegality and to show that the debt which formed the consideration for the sale in such case was not for which the minor was not responsible. Per PARVATHI J—A stranger purchasing from a guardian acting under the authority granted under s 18 of Act XL of 1858 will be entitled to every protection from the Courts so long as it is not shown that he acted in a fraudulent or collusive manner knowing that the debts for the liquidation of which the purchase money would be applied were not debts lawfully binding on the minor. The burden of proof in such a case would lie heavily on the person seeking to set aside the alienation. But where the purchaser is himself the creditor and therefore has the means of satisfying a Court as to the origin and nature of the debts and how they are binding on the minor the burden of proof is shifted on the purchaser when the plaintiff has established a prima facie case. MAHENDER CHAND v. minor—Mortgage by certificated guardian without sanction of District Court—Mortgage money applied partly to benefit of minor's estate—but by minor to set aside the mortgage—Contract Act (IX of 1872) s 65—9 18 of the Bengal Minors Act (VI of 1883) does not imply that a sale or mortgage or a lease for more than five years executed by a certificated guardian without sanction of the Civil Court is illegal and void ab initio but the proviso means that in the absence of such sanction the certificated guardian who otherwise would have all the powers which the minor would have if he were of age shall be delegated to the position which he would occupy if he had been granted no certificate at all. If any one chooses to take a mortgage or a lease for a term exceeding five years under these circumstances the transaction is on the basis of no certificate having been granted. In a suit brought by the guardian of a Mahomedan minor for a declaration that a mortgage deed executed by the minor's mother was null and void to the extent of the minor's share and for partition and possession of such share it was found that a considerable proportion of the moneys received by the mortgagor had been applied for the benefit of the minor's estate by discharging incumbrances imposed on it by his deceased father. It appeared that at the time of the mortgage the mother held a certificate of guardianship under the Bengal Minors Act and that she had not obtained from the Civil Court any order sanctioning the mortgage under s 18 of that Act. Held that the omission to obtain such sanction did not make the mortgage illegal or void ab initio but relegated the parties to the position in which they would have been if no certificate had been granted. That of a transaction by a Mahomedan mother affecting to mortgage the property of her minor son with whose estate she had no power to interfere. Held that this fell within the class of cases in which it has been decided that if a person sells or mortgages another's property having no legal or equitable right to do so and that other benefits by the transaction the latter cannot have it set aside without making restitution to the person whose money has been applied for the benefit of the estate. Held that even if mortgages executed by a certificated guardian without the sanction required by s 18 of the Bengal Minors Act were void the section did not make them illegal and with reference to s 65 of the Contract Act the plaintiff could not obtain a decree for a declaration that the mortgage was inoperative as against his share except on a condition of his making restitution to the extent of any moneys advanced by the defendant under the mortgage-deed which had gone to the

16 ——— Contract to supply labourers—A contract in consideration of an advance of money to supply labourers to do certain work on an estate falls within the scope of Act XIII of 1859 and the fact that such contract contains covenants to pay penalties in default of supplying the labourers and to repay the advance if necessary by personal labour for five years does not take the contract out of the operation of the Act so as to make illegal an order directing the contractor to be imprisoned for failure to comply with an order to repay the advance RAMASAMI v KANDASAMI

17 ——— Contract to work until repayment of advance made—Defendant in consideration of an advance of money received from complainant bound himself to work for complainant until the repayment of the sum advanced. 18 ——— Money advanced on account of work to be performed—Loan on condition that the workman should enter into a contract of service—A workman agreed in writing to work for the proprietors of an estate for four years and one month from 1st March 1899 to 31st March 1903 for an initial advance of one rupee which was not to be repaid till after the expiration of the agreement. The same person subsequently obtained an advance of Rs 10 to be reimbursed by a monthly deduction of one rupee from his wages. He worked from 1st March 1899 till 18th September 1900 when he ceased to work leaving in all a sum of Rs 5 to be accounted for in the adjustment of the total advance. He was subsequently charged and convicted under s. 3 of the Criminal Breach of Contract Act XIII of 1859—Held that the initial advance of one rupee was not money advanced on account of work to be performed but rather a loan made without interest on the condition that the workman would enter into a contract of service for the duration of the loan and that the Criminal Breach of Contract Act 1859 was inapplicable to this case that with reference to the ten rupees to be repaid out of wages the Act applied and an order should be made directing the workman to work until the expiration of the term of the contract on account of which this sum had been advanced. TANOI JOGHI v HALL I L R 23 Mad. 203

22 ————— Advance of grain and money—Order to repay value of work not performed—An advance of money and grain having been made to a labourer for work to be done the labourer failed to complete the work and an order was passed by a Magistrate under s 2 of Act XIII of 1859 directing repayment of the balance of the advance not worked off by the labourer. Held that as it was not proved that the labourer was offered and accepted the grain in lieu of money to be advanced the order was illegal. KONDADU ■ PANDU ■ I L R ■ Mad. 204

23 ————— Working off previous debts—Breach of contract of service—Labourer—A labourer agreed to serve in consideration of money due from him on account of previous debts. He served for three months only and then quitted service in violation of the agreement. He was prosecuted and convicted of breach of contract of service under Act XIII of 1859. Held that he was not liable to be dealt with criminally because there was no fraudulent breach of contract within the meaning of Act XIII of 1859 and because further no money in advance was received the consideration for the agreement to serve being an old debt. PETA ■ JETHVA VALAD VESTYA ■ Bom 171

24 ————— Jurisdiction of Magistrates to interfere in cases of wilful and fraudulent breach of contract—Meaning of the expression Advance of money on account of work—Act XIII of 1859 (an Act to provide for the punishment of breaches of contract by artificers workmen and labourers in certain cases) applies only where there has been an advance of money on account of any work which words do not include mere loans or old debts. The interference of the Magistrate under the Act is limited to cases where the neglect or refusal to perform is wilful and without lawful and reasonable excuse. As a rule a mere breach of contract ought not to be an offence but only to be the subject of a civil action and a man cannot be treated as a criminal for not performing a contract which could not be enforced against him by civil process. QUEEN EXPRESS ■ RAJAD ■ I L R. 16 Bom. 368

26 ————— Advance in consideration of exclusive services until repayment—Masters and workmen—Breach of contract on the part of workmen—Station—An employer of workmen residing and carrying on business in the city of Mirzapur alleged that he had advanced money to certain workmen on the understanding that they would work for him and no one else until they had repaid such money and that they had broken such contract by leaving his employment made a complaint against such workmen under Act XIII of 1859 which had been extended to the station of Mirzapur by the Local Government. It appeared that such money was advanced by way of loan and with out any reference to the wages of such workmen or the payment for the work performed by them and that no deduction on account of such advance was ever made from their wages or the payments made to them. Held that the contract between the parties was something quite different from any contract contemplated by Act XIII of 1859 and that Act was therefore not applicable. Held also that it was doubtful whether that Act applied locally as it was not shown that the city of Mirzapur was comprised within the station of Mirzapur. IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF RAM PRASAD ■ DEOGAL ■ I L R 3 All 744 with misfeasance, malversation of the temple property or neglect of duty. There is nothing in the Act to oust the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts over suits to establish a right to share in the management. AGRI SARMA EMBRANDI & VISNU EMBRANDI JAYADHANA EMBRANDI & PALA BUL HASVA EMBRANDI [3 Mad., 193]

3. — Right of person interested to sue for misfeasance by managers etc.—Public endowment—In the case of a public endowment transferred to trustees managers or superintendents of such lands under Act XX of 1863 any person or persons interested (and the interest need not be a pecuniary one) in the religious establishment in its worship or service or in its trusts has a right of suit after leave obtained from a Civil Court against such trustees etc for misfeasance or breach of trust or neglect of duty. KUTEEZ FATIMA & SAHEBA JAY [W R 313]

4. — Suit for removal of mohunt and appointment of another—A suit for the removal of the present mohunt of a religious endowment and for the appointment of the petitioner in his place is not of such a nature as is contemplated by Act XX of 1863. KISHORE BOY MOHUNT & KALEE CHURN GIRSE [23 W R 364]

5. — Suit to compel heir of manager to make good deficiency—Leave of Court—Act XX of 1863 does not apply to a suit brought by the dharmakarta of a temple and one of its worshippers to compel the defendant as heir of the late manager to make good out of the property inherited by him the deficiency in the devasthanam funds caused by breach of trust and misappropriation by the late manager. The leave of the Civil Court for the institution of such a suit is not necessary and the suit is maintainable. The right of instituting such suits is not a privilege accorded by Act XX of 1863 but a pre-existing right. JETANGARU LATARU & DURMA DASSI [4 Mad 2]

6. — Suit to eject Dharmakarta or agents from temple—Right of Government to invest itself of power of interfering with appointment—Mad Req VII of 1817—Plaintiffs members of the committee appointed under Act XX of 1863 sued to eject defendants (the dharmakarta and his agents) from the possession and management of the temple dedicated to Sri Viraragava Swami at Traveller and to establish their (plaintiffs) right to the possession and control of the said temple. Defendants denied the right of the plaintiffs to exercise any control whatever over the temple. This right depended upon whether at the period of the passing of Act XX of 1863 the nomination vested in was exercised by or was subject to the confirmation of the Government or any public officer. It was admitted that in 1812 the Board of Revenue did so far as it could divest itself of all right to interfere with the appointment of a dharmakarta but it was contended for the plaintiffs that it was not in the power of the Board of Revenue so to divest itself of the duties imposed upon it by Regulation VII of 1817. Held that assuming the Board of Revenue

If it is not so exercised the power may be controlled by a Civil Court of original jurisdiction. DAVID SAIBA v HIRU ZIN SAIBA I L R. 17 Mad. 212

9 ——— Duties and Powers of committee of management—Meetings of committee—Number of members present—Resolution appointing quorum—Resolution by three out of seven—Failure of trustee to submit accounts—Ground for dismissal—Though committee constituted under the Religious Endowments Act 1863 are not strictly corporations their procedure in matters relating to the management of properties and trustees under their control should be governed by the rules applicable to regular corporations. In 1859 when a committee consisted of seven members a meeting was held at which five were present and a resolution was unanimously passed that at future meetings there should form a quorum. This resolution had never been rescinded and had always been acted upon. In 1890 when the committee also consisted of seven a meeting was held after due notice to all its members at which three were present and a trustee of the temple was on valid ground dismissed from office and called upon to hand over charge of the temple and its properties. The resolution of dismissal was unanimous and was confirmed at a subsequent meeting. Held that the meeting as constituted was competent to pass the resolution removing the trustee. Whether unanimity of the whole committee might not have been necessary in the event of business having been transacted otherwise than at a meeting. Q Are — Failure on the part of a trustee to submit accounts to the committee is a breach of one of the most important duties cast upon him by law and is sufficient to justify his dismissal. ANANTAKRISHNA AYYAR v KUTTALAM PILLAI I L R. 22 Mad 481

2 ——— Removal by Committee of Superintendent of Pagoda—Ground for removal—Where there were not good and sufficient grounds for the removal from office of the defendants superintendents of a pagoda within s 3 of Act XX of 1863 by the committee appointed under that Act the High Court confirmed the decree of the Civil Judge dismissing a suit brought by the plaintiffs who had been appointed by the committee as superintendents in place of the defendants for the recovery of the pagoda and the property belonging to it. CHINNA RANGAIAANGAR v SUBBAYA MUDALI 3 Mad 338

On its appearing that the defendants ancestor was not the founder of the temple but was appointed trustee by the Government as also were his successors in the office of trustee of whom all were not members of his family. Held (1) the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree declaring the temple in dispute to be of the class mentioned in Act XX of 1863 s 3 and as such subject to their jurisdiction (2) the plaintiffs were not entitled under Act XX of 1863 ss 14 1 and 12 to be put in possession of its property of the temple nor in receipt of its income. PONDURANGA v NAAGAPPA

The Civil Judge found that the grant was for the performance of religious ceremonies and pious observances only and that the plaintiff had led a vicious life and been guilty of malversation in his office and hence of opinion that the plaintiff had been properly deprived of the lands belonging to the math under Madras Regulation VII of 1817 dismissed the suit. Held that under s 4 of Act XX of 1863 the plaintiff became entitled on the passing of the Act to the restoration of the endowment. JESAJA CHERRY COSAMBER v. s 14—Suit for wrongful dismissal from temple by officer — A suit by an officer of a mosque temple or religious establishment for wrongful dismissal from his office is not a suit for maintenance within the meaning of s 14 of Act XX of 1863. AMIR SAHIB v. IBAH SAHIB

s 14—Right to sue for removal of trustees—Religious endowment — S 14 of Act XX of 1863 is sufficiently general in its terms to empower any person interested in any temple mosque or religious endowment or in the performance of the trusts relating thereto to sue the trustee manager or superintendent or the member of a committee appointed under the Act for misfeasance and also to empower the Court to order the removal of a trustee etc. The tomb of a reputed saint became a place of pilgrimage and an endowment was made for the maintenance of the shrine and for the performances of certain religious ceremonies. There was a practice on the part of the proprietors and the managers of the institution to divide among themselves the residue of the income and to dispose of it by way of sale or mortgage of the share enjoyed by them. Held that this was a religious institution within the meaning of Act XX of 1863. The 14th section of the Act empowers the Civil Court to remove trustees for misfeasance etc., and it does not recognize any difference in respect of trustees whether hereditary or selected. FAKRUDDIN SAHIB v ACKERI SAHIB I L R. 2 Mad. 197

3 ——— Suit to remove trustee of religious endowment though unlawfully appointed—Act XX of 1863 is applicable to an endowment whereby certain shops have been purchased by subscription and dedicated to the support of a mosque and is also applicable in respect of a person in possession of the endowed property and professing to act as mutawalli even though he may not have been lawfully appointed. Dhurrum Singh v Kissen Singh I L R 7 Cal. 767 and Sheoratan Kaur v Tam Pargash I L R 19 All 227 referred to MUHAMMAD SIRAJUL HAQ v IMAM UD DIN I L R 19 All 104

4. ——— Suit to restrain manager from allowing property to be removed—Form of order—Injunction—Civil Procedure Code 1877 s 80—S 14 of Act XX of 1863 is generally applicable to all religious endowments and while in one sense restrains the ordinary Courts from dealing with cases against trustees of religious endowments it gives special facilities for suits in the principal Civil Court of the district by any of the persons interested in these endowments. Quare—Whether considering the provisions of s 30 of the Civil Procedure Code the intention of s 14 of Act XX of 1863 is at all necessary? An order under s 14 of Act XX of 1863 should be mandatory and not prohibitory. Where a sacred book was kept at a temple and was an object of veneration to the members of the sect entitled to worship there—Held that a suit would lie under s 14 of Act XX of 1863 by some of the persons interested in the temple to restrain the superintendent from removing the book to another place and that he should be directed to retain it as a part of the furniture of the temple. DHURRUM SINGH v KISHEY SINGH I L R 7 Cal. 767 9 C L R 410

5 ——— Trustee of Temple qualifications of—Duty of Committee—Misfeasance—Act XX of 1863 does not require that a person appointed by a committee to be a trustee of a temple should be of any particular sect and although it may be desirable that the trustee of a temple should be of the sect to which the temple belongs the appointment of a Sivaite to be trustee of a Vishnavite temple does not amount to an act of misfeasance neglect or breach of trust on the part of the committee within the meaning of s 14 of the Act. GANDAYATHARA AYYANGAR v DEYANAYAGA MUDALI I L R 7 Mad. 222

6 ——— Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Endowment—Religious endowments Applied on of Act to—Act XX of 1863 only applies to certain religious trusts and endowments which had been or might come to be under the management of the Government and s 14 of that Act although in its terms it appears to be more general than the earlier sections applies in fact only to the same religious endowments to which the rest of the Act applies. Panch Coorie Mull v Chinnoo Lall I L R 3 Cal. 563 2 C L R 121 cited and followed. KALI CHURN GUPTA v GOUDAM 2 C L R 128

7 ——— Suit to recover land on behalf of temple—The provisions of s 14 of Act XX of 1863 (Peligious Endowments Act) do not oust the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts except in the cases specified therein. A suit for recovery of immovable property on behalf of a temple alleging by way of misfeasance and breach of trust that the defendants (the managers of the temple) had forged documents and usurped temple property without any prayer for the removal of the managers or for damages or for a decree for specific performance of any act by the managers is not a suit for which a special jurisdiction is provided by the Act. MAHALINGAIAH v VENCOBA GHOSAM I L R 4 Mad 157

8 ——— Suit by persons interested for breach of trust and neglect of duty—Refusal of trustee without adequate reason to accept and utilise offerings for celebration of festivals—Misfeasance and breach of trust in a religious institution—In a suit against the trustee of a religious institution under Act XX of 1863 for alleged breach of trust and neglect of duty by reason of the non-performance of ceremonies it is not necessary in order to give jurisdiction to Civil Courts for the plaintiffs to show that there are any special funds constituting an endowment of the institution. If it be proved that the ceremonies in question have been conducted as a custom for a series of years and that the defendant trustee was not absolutely unable owing to lack of funds to carry on these ceremonial observances in the customary manner he must be held to have been guilty of neglect of duty rendering him liable to a suit under s 14 of the Act. Where it has been usual for the trustee to celebrate festivals with the aid of voluntary contributions it is a breach of duty on the part of the trustee to refuse to celebrate them with adequate funds if funds are available and the trustee ought not contrary to usage to refuse to receive such offerings and perform the ceremonies for which they are tendered. Per SUBRAHMANYA AYYAR J—Having regard to the fact that funds voluntarily given to public religious institutions not only enrich the institutions but promote the interests of public worship it must be regarded as part of the proper functions of the trustee to utilise such income for the purposes of the institution whenever it is available. It is his duty to accept the money and apply it for the specified purpose unless there are proper grounds for its rejection. Though a trustee may exercise a discretion and cannot be charged with misconduct if he acts with an absence of indirect motive with honesty of intention and a fair consideration of the subject he may be proceeded against if from corrupt or improper motives he refuses to allow voluntary contributions to be offered for purposes not inconsistent with the principles rules or usages of the institution to be applied to these purposes. The Courts are bound to restrain a trustee from injuring the interests of the institution under his charge by corruptly arbitrarily or wantonly departing from the ordinary course of procedure in regard to essential or important matters connected with the institution. The ground upon which the Courts exercise such jurisdiction over him is that such departure on his part amounts to a breach of legal duty incumbent on him. Though the Courts cannot be called upon to decide questions of ritual and worship unconnected with civil rights it is perfectly competent for them to adjudicate upon such questions also when the adjudication is necessary for the determination of civil rights. *Amin Sahib v. The District Judge passed a decree suspending some of the defendants from the office of trustee and the right of puja for a period which was not defined and also passed a decree for the recovery claimed.—Held that the operation of Act XX of 1863 was not excluded by the admission that the trusteeship was hereditary in certain families and that the District Judge had jurisdiction under Act XX of 1863 to deprive the defendants of the right of puja. Held

16 ——— Endowment.—Endowment for benefit of family idol—Suit to remove shabads from office—Arbitration Reference to—Bengal Regulation XIX of 1810—Act XX of 1863 does not apply to an endowment which is not a public one but which is made for the benefit of an ancestral family idol. Two plaintiffs members of a

Hindu family applied for and (in the presence of the defendants) obtained leave to institute a suit against the defendants, who were the shabuts of a certain idol for the purpose of having them removed from their office on the ground of misconduct. In their plaint they alleged that the endowment was a public one all Hindus having a common right of worshipping the idol. This was denied by the defendants. After issues had been framed the Court of first instance made an order under s 16 of the Act referring certain of them to arbitration although the defendants contended that as the endowment was not a public one the Act had no application and objected to the reference. The arbitrators made an award finding inter alia that the idol was the ancestral family idol of the parties to the suit and that the endowment was not made for the benefit of the public. They further in their award laid down certain definite rules according to which the shabuts ought to be conducted and repairs to the temple made. The Court of first instance passed a decree on that award declaring that the idol was the ancestral idol of both parties and directing that the defendants should perform the worship in a certain manner and should execute certain repairs to the temple within six months and declaring that if the parties did not act as directed any member of the family should be able to bring a suit for the appointment of a manager. Against that decree the defendants appealed and contended that the Act did not apply to the case on the finding of facts as to the endowment not being a public one that the compulsory reference to arbitration was illegal and void and that the decree was not one authorised by the terms of s 14 of the Act. Held that on the facts as found by the arbitrators Act XX of 1863 did not apply to the case and that the compulsory reference to arbitration and the decree made thereon were illegal and void. Held further that the decree itself was bad on the ground that it was not one coming within the scope of s 14 of the Act. LACOTAR CHANDRA MISSEY v BROJOVATH MISSEY

17 ——— Suspension and dismissal of trustee of a temple—Powers of temple committee—The plaintiff was appointed to the office of trustee of a Hindu temple under Religious Endowments Act 1863 s 11 by the temple committee constituted under that Act. Subsequently the committee having received certain complaints against him suspended him from office pending inquiry without calling on him for an explanation. They alleged as the grounds of his suspension that he had caused loss of property and money to the temple and that he had conducted things in the temple contrary to custom so as to cause a disturbance of the peace. The trustee refused to acquiesce in the order of suspension and to give up certain records etc which he was by that order required to deliver and denied the authority of the committee as asserted by them. Shortly afterwards the committee dismissed him. The plaintiff denying that his suspension and dismissal were legal brought two suits against the members of the committee the first for damages for the suspension and the second for an injunction to restrain the defendants from interfering with the discharge of his duties as trustee. Both of these suits were dismissed and the plaintiff preferred appeals to the High Court. In the appeal relating to the claim for an injunction it was found that no misconduct had been proved against the plaintiff previous to the order of suspension. Held by SHEPHARD and DAVIES JJ that a trustee in the position of the plaintiff cannot be dismissed from office except for good cause shown and that his conduct subsequent to the order of suspension did not amount to such good cause. In the appeal relating to damages—Held by SHEPHARD J that the order of suspension was illegal and that under the circumstances the plaintiff was entitled to substantial damages. Held by DAVIES J (finding that the committee had proceeded in the bona fide belief that they were acting for the good of the temple in suspending the plaintiff pending inquiry) that the order of suspension was not illegal and that the suit was rightly dismissed. Owing to the difference of opinion between the two Judges the last mentioned appeal was referred to the Chief Justice under Civil Procedure Code s 375 and was heard by him sitting with the two other Judges—Held by COLLINS CJ and SHEPHARD J (DAVIES J dissenting) that the order of suspension was illegal and the plaintiff was entitled to substantial damages. Per COLLINS CJ—The power of suspension by the committee is in my judgment the same as the power of dismissal. The committee having made due inquiry and having called on the trustee for an explanation may suspend for good and sufficient cause but not otherwise. SESHADRI AYYANGAR v NARAYANA AYYAR I L R. 21 Mad, 179

1 ——— s 18—Leave to sue—Public and private endowments—Reg XIX of 1910—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Suit to remove mutawalli—A Mahomedan lady executed a wakf nama purporting to dedicate the whole of her property to an imambara in her house for the purpose of perpetuating various Shia ceremonies. By the wakf nama she constituted herself joint mutawalli with her husband and caused the names of herself and her husband to be substituted in the Collector's register for her own name as owner. On the death of her husband she acted as the sole mutawalli. The wakfnama was publicly registered. But though the property was styled wakf and she the mutawalli thereof in all documents connected with the estate she all along continued to deal with it as absolute proprietress and the dedication though made in 1850 was never under the control of the Board of Revenue or of local agents. In a suit which the plaintiffs obtained leave to institute under s 18 of Act XX of 1913 to remove her from the mutawalliship on the ground of misfeasance—Held the wakfnama did not constitute a public religious establishment within the meaning of Act XX of 1863 and that therefore the Judge below had no authority to give the plaintiffs relief under s 18 leave to sue and that his decision was consequently ultra vires s 18 of Act XX of 1863 applies only to such religious establishments as were under the control or superintendence Jurisdiction of Municipal Courts—Independent States—The transactions of Independent States between each other are governed by other laws than those which Municipal Courts administer. The seizure by the British Government acting as a sovereign power through its delegate the East India Company of the Raj of Tanjore with the property belonging thereto was with its consequences an act of State over which a Municipal Court has no jurisdiction. THE EAST INDIA COMPANY v. of 1818—Jurisdiction of Municipal Courts—A Mahomedan subject of the Crown was arrested in Calcutta taken into the m fusil and there detained in jail under a warrant of the Governor General in Council in the form prescribed by Reg III of 1818. Held that such arrest and detainer were not acts of State but matters cognizable by a Municipal Court. IN RE AMER KHAN 6 B L R 392

3. — Resumption of Jagir by East

India Company—Regulation law—Where lands were held by a jagirdar under the sovereign of an independent State on a zaidad tenure i.e. on a grant of land together with the public revenues thereof on the condition of keeping up a body of troops to be employed when called on in the service of the sovereign and on the conquest of the State by the East India Company the jagirdar remained in the same position to the Company—Held that the resumption of the lands by the Company and the seizure of the arms and stores appertaining to the tenure on the death of the jagirdar was not an act of State and therefore the Municipal Courts had jurisdiction to entertain a suit by the representatives of the jagirdar against the Government for the possession of the lands and for the value of the arms and stores. This was so although at the time of the resumption the Regulation law was not introduced into the territories in which the jagir was comprised. FORRESTER v. SECRETARY OF STATE territories in 1857 was an act of State, and not an act done under color of any legal right of which a Municipal Court could take cognizance. His tenure of the territories assigned him by the Government was a tenure merely durante regno and no power was conferred upon him of creating incumbrances which would survive his deposition. The word confiscation does not necessarily import that the appropriation is to be made as a penalty for a crime nor when used in that sense does it necessarily imply that the forfeiture has accrued upon conviction but it may also be properly used as applicable to appropriations of property by Government as an act of State. SALIGRAM v. 5. — Confiscation by Governor of

Foreign State—Title to timber—The plaintiff brought a suit at Tongooh in British Burma to recover possession of certain timber which he alleged the defendants had wrongfully and in collusion with the Burmese Governor of Nungnan taken out of his possession in foreign territory and removed to Tongooh. The defendants stated that they had acquired the timber from the Governor of Nungnan in terms of an agreement between them and the Burmese Government. It appeared that the Governor of Nungnan had confiscated the plaintiff's timber in contravention of a royal mandate. After the institution of the suit the defendants removed the timber from Tongooh to Rangoon. Held that a British Municipal Court might enquire into the character of the act of the Governor of Nungnan and was not bound to accept it as an act of State. BOMBAY BORNEO TRADING CORPORATION v. Act of State—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—By the treaty of the 31st July 1801 between the then Nawab of the Carnatic and the Governor in Council at Madras the sovereign rights of the Nawab in the Carnatic were vested in the East India Company. Held that a resumption by the Madras Government of a jagir granted by former Nawabs as Altanah istam before the date of the treaty and a regrant by Madras Government to another for a life estate only was such an act of sovereign power by the East India Company as precluded the Supreme Court at Madras from taking cognizance of a suit by the heirs of the original grantee in respect of such resumption. EAST INDIA COMPANY v. In a suit instituted by the representatives of the original grantee for possession of the village and payment of the arrears of revenue so sequestered it was held by the Judicial Committee affirming the decree of the Provincial and

ACTION IN REM

1. ——— Owner indirectly impleaded—Towage contract—Price idem ratio—The M S a steam tug was hired to tow the barque N down the Hooghly and in consequence of the negligence of the master of the tug whilst employed and of his wilful disobedience to the order of the pilot on board the N the latter ran foul of a sailing vessel the S F considerable damage being done to both sailing vessels The S F took proceedings against the N for the damage sustained and an action in rem was brought (pending the proceedings taken by the S F) by the N against the tug to recover damages including any damages that the N might have to pay to the owners of the S F The defence set up by the tug was protection under its towage contract which was to the effect that the proprietors of the tug should not be responsible under any circumstances for any loss or damage to any vessel whilst in tow of the tug whether the same should have happened through the default of the master or other sailors etc of the tug or through the incompetence or want of skill of the pilot in charge The Court below held that the accident was due to the wilful disobedience of the master of the tug in not obeying the pilot on board the N and that such misconduct was a default within the meaning of the clause in the towage contract but inasmuch as the action was one in rem and not against the proprietors the clause was no answer to the suit Held on appeal that the clause was a sufficient answer for that although in every case of a proceeding in rem the suit is directly against the ship itself still the owner of the ship must always be considered as indirectly impleaded THE MARY STUART v THE NEVADA

Therefore where to a suit brought against the Administrator General an administrator of the estate of one W. But where there is an administration suit already pending the proper course to pursue is to obtain an order in the administration suit directing either a suit to be brought in the name of the legal personal representative or appointing a Receiver to sue and in this country the Courts might have the power to direct such Receiver to sue in his own name. ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION & GOSWAMI LALL SEAL [I L R 10 Calc 713]

10 ——— Supplemental suit—Debts due by appointed managing members under the will of the testator—Limitation—A and B two of the sons of one N had been declared in a suit brought to administer N's estate to be indebted to the estate. It was also declared in such suit that a certain sum of money should be set apart for the performance of certain religious ceremonies and paid into Court. A and B died without having satisfied their debt. In a suit supplemental to the former suit the descendants of the sons of N amongst whom were the descendants of A and B claimed to be entitled to their share in the interest on the funds in the hands of the Court and sought for a division of such accumulation of interest. Held that notwithstanding that the debt due from A and B to the estate was barred the descendants of A and B could not be allowed to share in the accumulations of interest in the hands of the Court without first satisfying the debt due by their ancestors to the estate. LOKANATH MULLICK & ODOO CHERRY MULLICK I L R 7 Calc 644

6 — Suit by creditor on behalf of all other creditors—Legal personal representative—Receiver—Suit by—Persons interested in the estate of a testator not being the legal personal representatives of the testator will not be allowed to sue persons possessed of assets belonging to the testator unless it is satisfactorily made out that there exist assets which might be recovered and which but for such suit would probably be lost to the estate. Such a suit may be supported where the relations between the legal personal representative and the debtor to the estate present a substantial impediment to the prosecution by the legal personal representative of a suit against the debtor to recover the assets of the testator and where there is a strong probability of the loss of such assets unless such a suit be allowed. But where there is an administration suit already pending the proper course to pursue is to obtain an order in the administration suit directing either a suit to be brought in the name of the legal personal representative or appointing a Receiver to sue and in this country the Courts might have the power to direct such Receiver to sue in his own name. H sued P to recover the mortgage debt. Pending the suit P died in 1878. Thereupon A the son of P took out letters of administration to the deceased's estate and A contested H's claim. H obtained a decree in the Court of first instance for the sale of the mortgaged property and in execution of this decree the property was sold for Rs 10 and purchased by H. The decree was afterwards reversed on 2nd August 1883 reversed on appeal by the Assistant Judge. Thereupon H entered into a compromise with A by which it was arranged that A should give up his claim under the appellate decree of the Assistant Judge to be repaid by H the sum of Rs 10 which he had realized by the sale of the mortgaged property and that H should pay to A Rs 40 on account of his costs incurred in the suit and in taking out letters of administration. This compromise was effected on 14th November 1883. In the meantime on 14th September 1883 the plaintiff H had purchased from one B an old decree which was outstanding against the estate of the deceased P. On 10th September 1883 the plaintiff sought to execute this decree against the mortgaged property. Having failed in this attempt the plaintiff filed a suit against A for a declaration that the compromise of the 10th November 1883 had been fraudulently effected with the object of defrauding (the plaintiff's) claim and to recover Rs 1000 as damages from the defendant on account of his fraudulent and negligent conduct as administrator of his deceased father's estate. This suit was dismissed by both the lower Courts on the ground that as there were other creditors who had claims against the estate the plaintiff's proper remedy was an administration suit which would enable the Court to assess the claims of all the creditors. Held (reversing the lower Courts' decrees) that the plaintiff was entitled to recover. By the compromise of the 10th November 1883 the defendant had given up his right under the Appellate Court's decree of the 2nd August 1883 to be repaid by H the sum of Rs 10 and had thereby occasioned a loss to the estate of that amount. He was, therefore, liable to the plaintiff to make good the amount under s 323 of the Succession Act (V of 1860) subject however to a deduction under s 280 of that Act of the expenses incurred by him in obtaining letters of administration and the costs of any judicial proceeding that might be necessary for administering the estate. KUTUBUDDIN HASBANI v HOSNAISSA IHHOSHA I.L.R. 17 Bom 637

legal representative of his deceased father. Previously to the date of the decree (i.e. on 4th March 1898) an order had been made by the High Court under ss 17 and 18 of the Administrator General's Act (II of 1874) authorizing the Administrator General to collect the assets of the deceased and ordering him if necessary to take out letters of administration to his estate. On the 29th April 1898 the plaintiff under s. 263 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XI of 1882) attached certain money in the hands of a third party due to the deceased's estate. On the 2nd July 1898 letters of administration were granted to the Administrator General. Held that as against the Administrator General the attachment was void ab initio. At the date of the decree obtained by the plaintiff the Administrator General was entitled by virtue of the High Court's order to take possession of the estate of the deceased. It was soon as that order was made his right to possession became paramount and excluded that of the defendant (the son of the deceased) who was then no longer entitled to recover payment of debts due to his father. A decree therefore subsequently obtained against the defendant could not be against the Administrator General. Confer any rights on the decree holder who could not stand in a better position than the defendant his judgment debtor. Under ss 2/8 and 30 of the Civil Procedure Code the Administrator General had the right to have the attachment removed because he was exclusively entitled at first by reason of the order under s. 18 of Act II of 1874 and subsequently by his letters of administration to recover the debt and was not subject to any decree which affected his title. LALLCHAND HANRAJAL v. — s 35—Right of creditors to immediate payment in full if assets sufficient—Rateable payment—Meaning of—Costs—Meaning of—shall be liable to pay—Succession Act (X of 1865) s 282—Probate and Administration Act (I of 1881) s 104—In a suit by a creditor if his demand be uncontested or proved and the executor admits assets the plaintiff is entitled at the hearing to an order for immediate payment without taking the accounts. The admission of assets for the payment of a debt is also an admission of assets for the purposes of the suit and extends to costs if the Court thinks fit to give them. There is nothing in s 35 of the Administrator General's Act (II of 1874), which qualifies or restricts or otherwise interferes with the right of a creditor to demand immediate payment of his claim in full when the realizable assets in the hands of the Administrator General are sufficient for the immediate payment of all claims in full. The rateable payment referred to in the above section as well as in s 252 of the Succession Act (X of 1865) and in s 104 of the Probate and Administration Act (I of 1881) is rateable payment out of the assets. It is nowhere provided that it shall be made out of the net income of the estate or any other specific part of the assets. The language (shall be liable to pay the costs) used in cl 1 of s 30 of the Administrator General's Act (II of 1874) shows that it was intended not to impose upon a creditor to

He now sued for the recovery of the principal under an ekaramath which did not stipulate for payment of interest. Held that the case put forward by plaintiff in the former suit did not amount to an admission that there was an agreement to pay 12 per cent and that he was entitled to restitution of the property on payment of the principal alone. ROSTYVO COOCHAR MOOKERJEE, BULDEO NARAIN SINGH

The substance of the defence was that even granting that any such papers (as a hibbah and a deed of sale) were written between the parties this can avail the plaintiff nothing as the deeds were fraudulent. Held that there was no such admission on the part of the defendants as shifted the burden of proof upon themselves. HUBBISH CHUNDER PAUL & ADHAMATH SERV 11 W R. 329

70. — False statement by defendant.—A plaintiff cannot take advantage of a statement made by a defendant which at most amounts to a piece of evidence and not to an admission but which is found to be untrue unless it be shown that the status of the plaintiff had been affected or that he had been misled by such statement. GRISH CHUNDER GHOSH & ISSAR CHUNDER MOOKERJEE 13 B L R A C 337 12 W R 228

71. — Mitigation of effect of admission.—Showing nature of transaction when made.—Where a defendant seeks to make use of statements which have been put in evidence and to treat them as admissions by the plaintiff who put them in it is competent for the plaintiff to show the real nature of the transaction to which they relate and to get rid of the effect of the apparent admissions. LUTZEPPOONISSA & GOOR BURLU DAS PHOOL BIDE & GOOR SURU DAS 18 W R 485

The evidence of marriage between D and P consisted of their statements that they were married to each other and of a statement by K that P was D's wife. K was convicted on the charge of adultery. Held that such evidence having regard not only to s 50 of the Evidence Act 1872 but to the principle that strict proof should be required in all criminal cases was not sufficient to establish the vital incident to the charge of adultery namely the marital relation of D and P. EMPRESS & KALLER

s 497—Where a prisoner accused of adultery sets up in defence a natra contracted with the woman with whom he is alleged to have committed adultery in accordance with the custom of his caste the question the Court has to determine is whether or not the accused honestly believed at the time of contracting the natra that the woman was the wife of another man. LEG & MANOHAR RAJ

8 Sagai marriages—Custom of caste—Sagai wives & widows married in accordance with the custom of Sagai prevailing amongst the Koures and other low castes of Behar are so far the legal wives of their husbands as to justify the punishment of persons committing adultery with them. BISSEEM KOTREE & EMRESS

9 Proof of adultery—Sexual intercourse—Presumption of knowledge that woman is married—In a case of adultery sexual intercourse must be proved the sexual intercourse required for adultery being the same identical thing as the sexual intercourse required for rape. The difference lies in the mode of proof in rape no presumption of sexual intercourse can be made in adultery it can be from evidence pointing strongly to an inference of guilt. It is not necessary therefore that there should be direct evidence of an act of adultery nor that the adulterer should know whose wife the woman is provided he knew she was a married woman. QUEEN & MATHUR CHANDER GILL

12 Penal Code (Act XLII of 1860) ss 497 498—Condonation—The complainant alleged that his father in law had detained his wife and that with his help the accused married his wife and since then had kept her in his house. The accused was convicted under s 493 Penal Code. The Sessions Judge made a reference under s 433 Criminal Procedure Code to the effect that the conviction under s 493 Penal Code was bad inasmuch as there was no evidence whatever to show that the prisoner enticed away the complainant's wife from her husband's or her father's house with intent to have illicit intercourse with her and that there could not be any conviction under s 497 Penal Code as the circumstances of the case warranted the conclusion that the offence if any had been condoned by the husband by his omission to take any steps since the last six or seven years against the accused. The High Court agreed with the view of the Sessions Judge. JAHIMADDY SHERIFF & JAGMOHAN MISTRY

Commissioner who dismissed the suit in accordance with the Chief Commissioner's judgment. The plaintiff preferred an appeal to the Chief Commissioner from the Commissioner's decision. The Chief Commissioner did not make any order on the memorandum of appeal admitting it or directing that it should be re-registered or that the respondent should be summoned or that the appellant should appear on a certain day under s 551 of Act X of 1877 but issued a notice to the appellant's counsel to appear on a certain day. The appellant's counsel appeared on that day and the Chief Commissioner intimated that he was acting under s 551 of Act X of 1877. The appellant's counsel then proceeded to address the Chief Commissioner and was heard for some time and then stopped in consequence of the Chief Commissioner resolving to refer to the High Court the question whether the appeal from the Commissioner's decision lay to him or to Her Majesty in Council. The Chief Commissioner subsequently referred such question to the High Court. Held by the Full Bench (SPARKIE J. dissenting) on a reference by the Division Bench before which the Chief Commissioner's reference came that such question arose in the trial of an appeal within the meaning of s 21 of the Ajmere Courts Regulation I of 1877 and was properly referred to the High Court. Held by the Division Bench (SPARKIE J. and STRAIGHT J.) that the appeal from the Commissioner's decision lay in this particular case not to the Chief Commissioner but to Her Majesty in Council. THAKUR OF MASUDA & THE WIDOWS OF THE THAKUR OF NAWDWARA I L R. 2 All. 819

5. — Power of Mufti Sudder Ameen to set aside attachment issued by himself—A Mufti Sudder Ameen may set aside an attachment in a suit issued from his Court and no longer properly in force in the suit although no express statutory power to do so exists. Where however any fact can be proved by evidence taken otherwise than on the spot that evidence ought to be taken by the Court itself in a regular manner and not by an Ameen. Quare—Whether where an Ameen has in fact been though improperly deputed and has examined witnesses that evidence ought to be totally rejected. HINDABUT CHUNDER SIRCAR CHOWDERY v. ## 1 APPEAL NEWLY GIVEN BY LAW

2. — Proceedings instituted prior to change in procedure—Appeal from order under s 312 Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1892)—Act VII of 1888 ss 50 56—It is a general principle of law that an appeal newly given by law is made applicable to proceedings instituted before that change in procedure is made. Held accordingly that an appeal from an order under the second paragraph of s 312 of the Civil Procedure Code although made before Act VII of 1888 came into force would, upon the operation of that Act lie to the Court to which an appeal would lie from the decree in the suit in relation to which such order was made. *Hurro sundari Devi v. This application was refused and an appeal was thereupon preferred against the order of refusal. Held that no appeal would lie under Act X of 1877 and that as there was at the time of that Act coming into operation no proceeding on foot on the part of the appellant which could be saved by the operation of s 6 of Act I of 1868 there was no remedy by way of appeal from the order under Act VIII of 1859. *Runjit Singh v. On the 13th November 1877 the decree holder applied to the High Court for the admission of a second appeal from the order of the lower Appellate Court on the ground that the decree had been misconstrued. Held that an appeal was admissible under the repealed Act VIII of 1869 under the provisions of s 6 of Act I of 1868. Held also that the order of the lower Appellate Court was also appealable under Act X of 1877. THAKUR PRASAD v. On a petition being presented to a District Court asking that the guardians of certain minors who had been appointed by the Court under the Guardian and Wards Act might be removed the Judge passed an order in which he purported to issue an injunction under s 492 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment of the estate of the minors and to appoint a receiver to manage the estate. 57. — Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870) s 15—District Judge's order on reference by the Collector—Questions of conflicting claims to title—Persons claiming interest in the compensation—Apportionment—Construction of the term—A Collector having acquired land under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870) and a question having arisen as to the right to the compensation—each of two rival claimants claiming exclusive title to the whole of the compensation awarded—the Collector referred the question to the decision of the District Judge under s 15 of the Act. The District Judge having decided the question in favour of one of the claimants the other appealed to the High Court. In appeal it was contended that as the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act apply to cases in which there was a dispute as to the apportionment of compensation and not to cases in which there was no question as to apportionment and in which each of the claimants had claim to the entire amount of the compensation the order passed by the District Judge was not appealable under the provisions of the Act as there was no question of apportionment to be determined—Held that looking to the language of s 15 of the Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870) which clearly contemplates the reference of such a dispute being provided for in the subsequent part of the Act and as there is no other provision in the Act made for it the term apportionment in Part IV should be given a liberal construction, as including the case where the Court has to decide between rival claimants to the entire compensation.

84 ————— In a suit in the Munsif's Court seven issues were fixed for determination and the suit was then referred by agreement to three arbitrators. In coming to an award the arbitrators took up specifically some of the issues framed in the Munsif's Court and declined to enter into others. They determined the matter in issue between the parties and the award was signed by the three arbitrators. Two of the arbitrators subjoined to the award a suggestion which if acted on would prevent the necessity of carrying out the award. The Munsif dealt with this suggestion as surplusage and gave the plaintiff a decree in accordance with the award signed by the three arbitrators. In appeal it was contended that the award was not a legal one and it was sought to set the decree of the Munsif aside but the Judge found that the decree was in accordance with the award and that he was precluded by s 325 from disturbing the decision of the Munsif. On special appeal it was contended that the award was incomplete as all the issues were not decided and that the decree was not in accordance with the award as it did not embody the suggestion of the two of the three arbitrators. Held that the decree was in accordance with the award and was therefore final under s 325. gave an award in his favour. The Munsif refused to uphold the award on the ground that the arbitrators had been guilty of misconduct in giving an award contrary to the evidence. The Judge reversed their decision on the ground that the Munsif had no jurisdiction to refer to the evidence taken before the arbitrators in order to determine whether they were guilty of misconduct or not. He gave judgment in accordance with the award. Held that his decision was not final under s 320 Act VIII of 1859 the provisions of that section refer only to the Court by which the case is referred to arbitration. On 3rd September the same arbitrators granted an application for rehearing. Before the matter was re-heard one of the four died and an order striking off the application was made by two of the surviving arbitrators. On 21st February 1876 an application was made to the Court to have the award filed, which was opposed. The Court overruled the objection and ordering the award to be filed under s 325 Act VIII of 1859 gave a decree to the plaintiffs. tration and after having been recalled into Court was again referred. An award was made by the arbitrator and filed in Court. The defendants then objected on the ground that they had no notice after the second reference and that they were not bound and that the arbitrator had otherwise misconducted himself. These objections were disallowed by the Subordinate Judge who gave a decree in the terms of the award. This decree was upheld by the Judge on appeal who however found that the arbitrator had been guilty of misconduct. Held that if the decree of the first Court was not final under s 325 Act VIII of 1859 all that the lower Appellate Court could do was to remand the case to be dealt with on its merits but inasmuch as there had been an award and a decree thereon which was final within the terms of that section the lower Appellate Court had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal or to express any opinion on what had passed in the first Court. WAZIR MANTON v. 115 ————— Judgment in accordance with award—Appeal—Defendants not all joining in reference to arbitration—The question whether under s 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure an appeal will lie against a decree given in accordance with an award depends upon whether the award upon which the decree is based is a valid and legal award. A plaintiff and some of the defendants to a suit applied to refer the suit to arbitration (certain other of the defendants not having joined in the application) an award was passed and a decree made in accordance with such award. The plaintiffs objected to the validity of the award on the ground that all the parties to the suit had not joined in referring the suit to arbitration. An award was duly made and filed and a decree passed in accordance with the terms thereof. Subsequently on the application of the plaintiff in the suit the Court passed an order setting aside the decree and the award and ordering the case to be set down for hearing upon the ground that the proceedings in connection with the arbitration had been taken and the award had been filed without notice to the plaintiff and that although the award was alleged to have been made with the consent of the parties the plaintiff had not consented to it. Hence we have only to deal with issues 2, 4 and 7 and dealing with those issues the arbitrator gave their finding. The award was remitted on the ground that the arbitrators had not determined the issues Nos 1 and 2 and 6. Held (1) the legality of an order remitting an award for the reconsideration of the arbitrators may be challenged on appeal against the decree ultimately passed and (2) that the award ought not to have been remitted there was no illegality on the face of it and there was a decision on the whole matter in issue between the parties. Mathooranath Tencaree v Brindaban Tencaree 14 W R 327 Amica Das v Adyar Chand Pal 1 L R 11 Cal 172 Yanok Chand v Ram Darajan 1 L R 2 All 181 and Bikramjit Singh v Hussain Begam 1 L R 8 All 645 referred to George v Bastian 30 W R 22 I L R 22 Mad 302

The plaintiffs then applied to the Subordinate Judge to have the award filed in Court under the provisions of s 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The defendants came in and objected to the award on the following amongst other grounds—(1) That the value of the property in suit was Rs. 100 only and therefore that the application should have been made in the Munsif's Court and not in that of the Subordinate Judge. (2) That the agreement of submission was vague and indefinite and did not clearly set out the matters in dispute. The Subordinate Judge overruled the objection without taking any evidence and directed the award to be filed and a decree to be passed thereon. The plaintiff appealed. The defendants contended that no appeal lay and that if it did it lay to the District Judge and not to the High Court. Held that

121 Agreement to refer not providing for disagreement of arbitrators—Award by umpire and one arbitrator—Appointment of umpire by Court—Decree in accordance with award—Civil Procedure Code ss 503 523—In an agreement to refer certain matters to arbitration which was filed in Court under s 523 of the Civil Procedure Code and on which an order of reference was made by the Court no provision was made for difference of opinion between the arbitrators by appointing an umpire or otherwise. The arbitrator being unable to agree upon the matters referred the Court on the application of one of them appointed an umpire and directed that the award should be submitted on a particular date. An award was made by the umpire and one arbitrator without the concurrence of the other arbitrator and submitted to the Court which passed a decree in accordance with its terms. On appeal by the defendants in the case the District Judge reversed the decree. Held that an appeal would lie to the Judge from the decree of the first Court where there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated. Lochman Das v Brypal 1 L R 8 All 174 referred to. Held that in the present case there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties. MUHAMMAD ABID v MUHAMMAD ASGHAR [1 L R 8 All 64]

the award to that extent under s 18 of the Civil Procedure Code. On appeal the District Judge while allowing the power of the arbitrators to direct payment by instalments reduced the number of instalments which had been fixed. Held that the decree of the first Court not being in accordance with the award an appeal lay to the Judge with reference to s 522 of the Code. Per MAHMOOD J.—The word award used in the last sentence of s 522 of the Code must be understood to mean an award as given by the arbitrators and not as amended by the Court under s 518. The words in excess of or not in accordance with the award used in s 522 were intended to enable the Court of appeal to check the improper use of the power conferred by s 18. *JAWAHAR SINGH v. With the arbitrator's consent the defendant accepted such offer and gave evidence on such oath. The arbitrator made an award in accordance with the evidence so given. The plaintiff objected to the award not on any of the grounds mentioned in ss 520 and 521 of the Civil Procedure Code but on the ground that the procedure of the arbitrator had been illegal. The Court disallowed this objection and gave a judgment and decree in accordance with the award. Held by STRAIGHT J. that such decree being in accordance with the award was not appealable. Held by STUART C.J. that the award not being open to objection on any of the grounds mentioned in ss 520 and 521 of the Civil Procedure Code and the decree being in accordance with the award the decree was not appealable. Held by OLDFIELD J. that the procedure adopted by the arbitrator being illegal not being warranted by the Oaths Act and there being in reality no award within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code the decree therefore as appealable. Per STUART C.J. that the procedure of the arbitrator did not require to be warranted by the Oaths Act as he was entitled by virtue of his office to proceed as he did. *BRAGIBATE v. The Government Surveyor subsequently gave his certificate as to the cost of the unused portion of the said wall but stated that on the evidence before him he was unable to decide as to the ownership of the foundations etc. of the wall. In a plaintiff's suit in the Court of a Subordinate Judge the plaintiff claimed to recover possession of a house together with some grain which was stored in it. The Subordinate Judge refused leave and returned the plaintiff with directions that the plaintiff should institute two suits for recovery of the house and the grain respectively in the Court of the Munsif. Held that the Subordinate Judge's order was substantially an order rejecting the plaintiff on the ground that the plaintiff had joined a cause of action with a suit for recovery of immovable property, that although this might have been a misapplication of s 44 rule (a) of the Code its effect was to reject the plaintiff that such an order was a decree with reference to the defendant in s 2 and was appealable as such to the District Judge and that therefore a second appeal lay in the case to the High Court and that Court was not competent to interfere in revision under s 62. BANDHAN SINGH v SOHIT

On the 11th August 1893 the defendants filed an appeal from the final decree to the District Judge and questioned the legality of the order of the 28th February 1893—Held that the order of the 28th February 1893 declaring the rights of parties to a partition in certain specific shares was a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure and therefore appealable. Dulhan Golab Koer v.

240 ——— Order directing accounts to be taken—*Civil Procedure Code (1852) ss 2 and 591—Suit for dissolution of partnership and an account—Omission to appeal from preliminary order—Limitation—The right of appeal given by Act VII of 1859 in making an order directing accounts to be taken within the definition of a decree and thus giving an appeal in a preliminary stage of a suit for dissolution of a partnership did not alter the existing law which allowed an appeal against such an order on the termination of the trial that is in the final decree. In a suit for dissolution of partnership and an account the Munsif on the 20th April 1893 passed an order declaring the shares of the parties and directing them to render accounts stating that this must be done within fifteen days from this date after which the final order will be passed and referred the case to a Commissioner to take the accounts. On the 31st May 1893 the Munsif decreed the suit and made defendants Nos 1 and 2 liable to pay certain sums of money in accordance with the report of the Commissioner. On the 14th July 1893 defendant No 1 filed an appeal to the District Judge in which he questioned the correctness of the preliminary order of the Munsif making him liable as a partner. Held that the order of the District Judge allowing the plea of defendant No 1 and finding that he was not a partner was right though no appeal against the preliminary order had been filed within the period of limitation. *Biswa Nath Chakraborty v. 325 ——— Order allowing mortgagor to deposit in Court amount due after date fixed—Ministerial act—Civil Procedure Code ss 244 558—S 244 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates that there must be some question in controversy and conflict in execution which has been brought to a final determination and conclusion so as to be binding upon the parties to the proceedings and which must relate in terms to the execution discharge or satisfaction of the decree. A judgment debtor under a decree for foreclosure made an application to the Court two days after the expiry of time prescribed by the decree for payment of the amount due thereunder in which he alleged that by reason of the two previous days having been holidays she had been unable to pay the money before and asked to be allowed to deposit the same. Upon this application the Court passed the following order—Per mission granted. Applicant may deposit the money. The money was deposited accordingly. Held that the order was merely a ministerial act and nothing more than a direction from the Judge to his subordinate official to receive the money which as it did not fall within either s 244 or s 558 of the Civil Procedure Code was not appealable and that the proper remedy of the decree holder assuming the deposit to have not been made in time was to apply for an order absolute for foreclosure which order would be subject to any steps the parties affected by it might take by way of appeal or otherwise. HULAS RAI v. 336 ——— Claim by legal representative to property as his own independently of deceased judgment-debtor.—Separate suit—Justiciary—Civil Procedure Code ss 504 244 278 and 283—Held by the Full Bench (TYRRELL, J., dissenting) where a judgment-debtor dies after the passing of the decree and his legal representatives are brought on the record in execution proceedings to represent him in respect of the decree questions which they raise as to property which they say does not belong to his assets in their hands and as such is not capable of being taken in execution, are questions which under s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code must be determined in the execution department and not by separate suit. There is no distinction in this respect between the positions of legal representatives added to the suit before and those added after the decree. Under the last paragraph of s. 244 the Court executing the decree may try and determine the question whether property in the legal representative's hands formed part of the deceased judgment-debtor's estate and find this fact for the purpose of bringing the property to sale in execution, and giving the auction purchaser a good title under the sale and the Court's order is subject to appeal but not to a separate suit under s. 253. Seth Chaudh Mal v Durga Devi I L R. 12 All. 313

337 ——— Questions between execution-creditor and persons placed on the record as representative of deceased judgment-debtor.—Civil Procedure Code (1908) ss 244 283 and 283—Certain decree-holders obtained during the lifetime of their judgment-debtor attachment of certain immovable property as belonging to the said judgment-debtor but on the decree holders seeking to bring the property to sale one S D came forward with an objection that the property was his, and was not liable to sale in execution of the decree in question. Pending the decision of the Court on this objection, the decree-holders applied to the Court to have the names of S D and the widow of the judgment-debtor (who died about the time the previous objection was filed) placed on the record as representatives of the judgment-debtor. S D filed a similar objection to this application also but both objections, being heard together on the 6th September 1899, were dismissed and S D was placed on the record as representative of the deceased judgment-debtor. On appeal by S D against "the order of the District Judge of Jaunpur of the 6th September 1900" it was held that the order making S D a party to the execution proceedings as representative of the judgment-debtor rendered any order as to his former objection superfluous and that order was appealable under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Shankar Day Dutt v Harkay

Held that the substitution of such party for the plaintiff in respect of part of the latter's share in the subject matter of the suit did not make that party a party to the suit and gave him no status which would enable him to appeal. SAHIB LOY v CHOONER SINGH 9 W R. 487

1861 s 11—Party to suit—A female plaintiff obtained a decree against certain defendants declaring certain karamatias, etc., void as against her husband and his representatives. After his death she proceeded to execute the decree as one for possession and obtained an order under s. 23 Act VIII of 1861 for delivery of possession of property in the possession of a third party as being a person claiming under a title created by the defendants subsequently to the institution of the suit. The third party appealed from that order. Held that this was not a case in which an appeal lay under s 11 Act VIII of 1861 inasmuch as the questions raised by the appeal were not questions between the parties to the suit. AMERGOON v. A further application was made and was opposed by one of the representatives who had since attained his majority upon the ground that the suit was barred. The Munsif disallowed the objection. On appeal the Judge reversed his decision. Held in special appeal that the terms of s 11 Act XIII of 1861 did not prohibit an appeal by a representative of a deceased judgment debtor against an order passed in execution of a decree against his ancestor. SHYAM NARAYAN BANOOPADHYA v. The judgment debtors objected to the attachment and proposed sale on the ground that the house was their own private property and not the property of the debtor within the meaning of the decree having been validly transferred to them during the debtor's lifetime. The objection was disallowed by the Court of first instance. Held that s 283 of the Civil Procedure Code had no application that the case fell within s 244 and that an appeal would lie from the first Court's order. I am Gulam v. The decree holder attached and proposed to bring to sale certain villages of the judgment debtor. These villages were included in a mortgage subsequently executed by the judgment debtor in favour of third parties. Both before and after the mortgage the decree holder received from the zamandar certain sums in consideration of his agreeing to postpone payments of the sale also it was agreed between them at a date subsequent to the mortgage that interest should be computed at a higher rate than that provided by the decree. Subsequently the decree holder sought to bring the land to sale and in computing the amount then due gave credit for none of the sums so received and calculated interest at the enhanced rate. The mortgagees objected that the computation was erroneous in both these respects and the District Judge upheld his objection. The judgment debtor took no part in the contest. Held that the mortgagee was a representative of the judgment debtor within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code s 244 and that an appeal lay against the order of the District Judge. PARAMANANDA DAS v. 374. ———— Act XVIII of 1861 s. 11—Attachment under s. 237 Act I of 1869—One of several decree holders who had obtained separate decrees against the same judgment debtor attached under s. 237 of Act VIII of 1869 a fund in the hands of the Collector belonging to the debtor being the surplus proceeds of a sale for arrears of Government revenue and the fund was subsequently attached by the other decree holders. The fund was not sufficient to satisfy all the decrees in full. The Principal Sudder Ameen by order of the Judge heard the various execution cases together but recorded separate orders in each case for the rateable distribution of the fund amongst the creditors. On appeal by the first attaching creditor it was claimed to be entitled to be paid the amount of his decree in full to which appeal the rival decree holders as well as the judgment debtor were made parties.—Held (per PEACOCK C.J. and SETON JAMES JACKSON and HOBHOUSE JJ.) that the several orders of the Principal Sudder Ameen were substantially only one order made up of one hearing in one case to which all the execution creditors in the several suits were parties that the rival decree holders were properly made respondents in the appeal and could not be struck out and that the question to be determined being one between the rival decree holders and not between the parties in each suit the case was not appealable under s. 11 Act XVIII of 1861. Held per MACPHERSON J. that though no appeal would lie as regards the rival decree-holders the appeal was maintainable as regards the judgment debtor alone. Prior to attachment the talukhdars assigned their interest in eight annas of the hypothecated property to A and made a mortgage lease of the remaining eight annas to him. The decree holder then obtained an order for summary sale for the rent due for 1870-71. She then attempted to sell the property hypothecated to her. An objection by A was allowed. A regular suit was then instituted by the decree holder against A and it was declared that she was after selling the talukki entitled to sell the hypothecated property. The decree holder again attempted to execute her rent decree by attaching and selling the hypothecated property and an objection by A was disallowed. Held that no appeal lay from the order disallowing the objection as A could not be considered to be a representative of the talukhdars within the meaning of s. 244 cl. (c) of the Civil Procedure Code and was therefore debatable from appealing under ss. 278 and 283. RASHDEHARY MOOKHOPADHYA v SURNOOZEY [I. L. R. 7 Cal. 403 9 C. L. R., 79]

But where the judgment debtor raises the claim or objection on behalf of third parties who are not represented before the Court the order passed thereon must be regarded as an order under s. 280 of the Code and the only mode in which that order can be contested is in a regular suit as provided by s. 283. 379 — Order on claim by trustees for release of trust property attached under personal decree against trustee—Civil Procedure Code (1859) ss 211 218 to 253—Appeal from such order—A decree-holder having attached certain property in the course of execution of two of the defendants in the suit in which the decree had been passed presented a petition praying that the property might be released from the attachment on the ground that it had been set apart for a charitable purpose and that it was held by defendants as trustees. The Subordinate Judge upheld the trust and ordered the properties to be released from the attachment. Plaintiff then appealed to the High Court when objection was taken that no appeal lay against the order of the Subordinate Judge. The Court referred to a Full Bench the question whether an appeal lies against an order passed with regard to a party to a suit against whom there is a personal decree in respect of a claim he may set up to hold property attached in execution of that decree as a trustee on behalf of third persons not parties to the suit. Held that such a claim falls under s 219 and not under s 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure and that no appeal lies against any order passed on it by the Court executing the decree. The claims of third parties whether put forward by themselves or by a party to the suit must be dealt with under ss 218 to 253 of the Code of Civil Procedure and not under s 244. ROOP LALL DASS v BIKAN NARAI 1 L. Under the provisions of s. 148 of Act XVIII of 1873 S was made a party to the suit. The Collector decided on appeal in the suit that S and not C was the tenant of such land and J was her subtenant and not C's and had paid such rent to S. Held that there was no determination by the Collector of the title to such land but as incidental to the question who was entitled to receive the rent and consequently the decision of the Collector was not appealable to the District Judge. CHOTU v. JIVAN [I. L. R. 3 All. 63]

411. — Suit for rent where the right to receive it is disputed—Question of title—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Courts—District Judge Jurisdiction of—M. sued I and another for rent in the Court of the Collector. The defendants pleaded payment to I who was accordingly brought on to the record as a co-defendant under s. 148 of the North Western Provinces Rent Act (VII of 1881). The Collector decided in favour of I. The plaintiff appealed to the District Judge making all three persons respondents. The District Judge reversed the decision of the Collector and ordered the whole costs to be paid by I who thereupon appealed to the High Court. Held that the District Judge had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal so far as the party brought in under s. 148 was concerned and that being so had no power to award costs against him. ANAND RAM v. MAUSUMA BEGAM [I. L. R. 13 All. 364]

412. — ss. 148 183 189—Landholder and tenant—Suit for arrears of rent—Right to rent disputed by third person—Appeal by intersector—K. sued B for arrears of rent such arrears not exceeding Rs. 100. His right to receive rent was disputed by H a third person who was made a defendant under the provisions of s. 148 of Act XVIII of 1873. The suit was tried by an Assistant Collector of the second class who decided that K was entitled to the rent. H and B appealed to the Collector who decided that H was entitled to the rent. K thereupon appealed to the District Judge who affirmed the decision of the Collector. K then appealed to the High Court. Held that the Collector was not competent to entertain an appeal by H that as between K and B all that the Collector could decide was whether or not K was entitled to the amount of rent claimed that the District Judge had no jurisdiction to entertain K's appeal and that K's appeal to the High Court was not entertainable. The District Judge not having decided any question of proprietary right that would justify such an appeal. HISTIA RAM v. HIROR LAL I. L. R. 4 All. 237 with the rules which were to govern the partition and this proceeding was confirmed by the Collector under s 131. An Amn was ordered to carry out the partition and in taking steps to do so stated the principle upon which he proposed to distribute the common land. An objection was then for the first time raised by two of the co-sharers in the Court of the Assistant Collector to the inclusion of a particular piece of land in the partition on the ground that it appertained exclusively to their share. This objection was disallowed by the Assistant Collector and on appeal by the District Judge. Held that at the stage of the proceedings when objections were taken it was too late to determine questions of title under s 113 of the Act that accordingly the Assistant Collector could not be said to have done so that the objections could therefore only be regarded in the light of objections to the mode in which it was proposed to make the partition and that consequently there was no appeal from the order of the Assistant Collector to the District Judge or from the District Judge to the High Court. *JOTA PAM v. The lower Appellate Court improperly directed the Court of first instance to settle the matter in dispute in accordance with a decision of a former Judge in the matter and allowed the parties ten days after the return of the case to file objections. The plaintiff appealed against this decision to the High Court. Held that the mutation of the claim under s. 29 of Act VIII of 1859 was not to be regarded as a fresh suit but was merely a continuation of the criminal suit and that there was therefore no appeal against the order in question to the District Judge. *11 ALI TAHAJI v. fresh suit—Civil Procedure Code (1859) s. 331—Specific Relief Act (Act I of 1877) s. 9—Subordinate Judge Jurisdiction—A defendant obtained a decree for possession of certain land against B and others under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. He was obstructed by the defendant a third party when he went to take possession. Thereupon he applied to the Munsif's Court for the removal of the obstruction and his application was registered as a regular suit under s. 331 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The Munsif gave the plaintiff a decree. On appeal the Subordinate Judge reversed it. Against the order of the Subordinate Judge the plaintiff appealed to the High Court on the ground that the proceedings under s. 331 were merely a continuation of the original suit under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act and no appeal lay against a decision passed under that section. No appeal lay to the Subordinate Judge. Held that proceedings under s. 331 of the Code are in the nature of a fresh suit between the decree holder and a third party and therefore an appeal lay to the Subordinate Judge. *Rajoy Tamay v. The Court after hearing the parties made an order allowing the petition of amendment and rejecting the defendant's objections. The Court of first instance held that the deed was invalid but that the defendant was entitled to remain in possession of the property till her former debt was satisfied and the Court passed a decree which merely dismissed the suit without embodying the finding as to the deed. On appeal by the plaintiff to the District Judge the defendant filed objections under s 51 of the Civil Procedure Code in regard to the first Court's decision that the deed of endowment was invalid. The Judge dismissed the plaintiff's appeal affirming the finding as to the deed and refusing to decide the question of the validity of the deed as being unnecessary for disposal of the claim. such decree being the thing which by law is made appealable and nothing else that party has no right of appeal therefrom. If in the judgment of which such decree is the formal expression is findings have been recorded upon some issues against that party and he desires to have formal effect given to them by the decree as to allow of his filing objections thereto under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code or of appealing therefrom under s. 540 he must take steps under s. 206 to have the decree properly brought into conformity with the judgment so that there may be matter on the face of it to show that something has been decided against him but if he fails to take this course the decree though in general terms will stand good as finally deciding the issues raised by the pleadings upon which the ultimate determination of the cause and the decree itself rested. The findings in a judgment upon matters which subsequently turn out to be immaterial to the grounds upon which a suit is finally disposed of as to the plaintiff's right to any portion of the relief sought by him as declared by the decree amount to no more than obiter dicta and do not constitute a final decision of the kind contemplated by s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that in the present case the Judge was right in holding that the question as to the validity or otherwise of the deed of endowment was wholly immaterial. The judgment of STRAIGHT J in Lachman Singh v. Mohan I L R 4 All 417 approved and followed. Per OLD FIELD J contra that the decree to agree with the judgment and fulfil the requirements of s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code should contain the material points for determination arising out of the claim and material for the decision thereon that if this has not been done the defect is a good ground of appeal notwithstanding that the decree on its face may be altogether in favour of the appellant and notwithstanding that he may not have applied for amendment of the decree under s. 206 or for review of judgment and that in the present case the defect in the decree would afford a good ground of appeal. Per MAHMOOD J that inasmuch as the provisions of s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code relate as well to the trial of issues as to the trial of suits and in the present case the validity or otherwise of the deed was a matter directly and substantially in issue between the parties, and was adjudicated upon the finding of the first Court upon that issue was not a mere obiter dictum but would be binding upon the defendant as res judicata notwithstanding the fact that the suit against her was dismissed on the ground that she held in possession of the property in lieu of dower that whatever has the force of res judicata is necessarily appealable that the word fr as used in s. 540 of s. 584 and the expression "objection to the decree" in s. 561 refer not only to matters resting upon the face of the decree but also to those which should have existed, but do not exist there and that the defendant in the present case was aggrieved or injured by the omission in the decree of the first Court and was therefore entitled to file objections to it and for the same reason to appeal to the High Court from the decree of the lower

After the decree had been altered application was made to execute it as altered, but this was opposed by the judgment-debtor on the ground that that was not the decree which could be executed. Held by the Division Bench that the order of the first Court disallowing the objection and directing that execution of the decree as altered should proceed could not be regarded as passed under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code but was an order passed in execution of decree and as such was appealable. *MURRAYAD SULTAN KHAN v. On appeal the Appellate Court remanded the case for the purpose of a local investigation being held at the cost in the first instance of the plaintiff. The lower Court thereupon made an order that the plaintiff should pay the costs of the local investigation and on default being made by the plaintiff it dismissed the suit. The order of remand was found to be invalid as made without jurisdiction. Held that all proceedings taken by the Court of first instance after the remand and pending the hearing of the appeal against the remand order were null and void inasmuch as the jurisdiction of that Court to hear the case upon remand depended upon the validity of the remand order. Commissioner having taken the account and made his report an order was made on further directions varying it in certain respects. Subsequently a final decree was passed founded in part on the order on further directions. An appeal was filed against the final decree in which objection was taken to the order on further directions. It was contended that no appeal having been filed against the order on further directions as might have been done under s 15 of the Letters Patent so much of the appeal as arose out of that order had been barred by lapse of time. Held that the order passed on further directions was not appealable under Chapter XII of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) and that it fell therefore under the concluding portion of s 591 of the Civil Procedure Code and any error in it might subsequently be set forth as a ground of appeal against the final decree. Per JEVINS C J—Assuming that the order on further directions was a judgment within the meaning of s 15 of the Letters Patent and as such appealable the contention of the respondent cannot prevail as that would not deprive the appellants of their right to appeal under the Code 555 — Order made in the course of execution proceedings and not appealed against—Right to raise the question as to its propriety in the appeal against the final order—A decree having in 1894 been passed in favour of the plaintiff in a suit against a number of defendants for the recovery of land with mesne profits the amount of such mesne profits was ordered to be fixed in execution. In 1897 an order was passed declaring that all the defendants were liable jointly and severally for such mesne profits which order was not appealed against. Later in the same year a Commissioner was appointed to ascertain the amount of the said mesne profits and in due course a final order in execution was passed by the District Court. At the time when the last mentioned order was passed certain of the defendants desired to reopen the question of their joint liability but were not permitted to do so. Held that even assuming that the order declaring the defendants to be jointly and severally liable was one from which an appeal could have been preferred—as to which there might be some doubt—it was a determination of one of the questions which had to be determined before the particular application for execution could be finally disposed of and the question of the propriety of the order was one that need not be at once raised by appeal but could be raised in the appeal against the final order.

The purchaser preferred an appeal to the Privy Council pending which he had to give up possession of the land but security was furnished under an order of the Court by persons not parties to the suit for its re delivery to him and for payment of mesne profits in case of his appeal being successful. On appeal the Privy Council reversed the order of the High Court. The purchaser was accordingly re placed in possession of the land and he applied for execution in respect of the mesne profits against the respondents in the Privy Council and the sureties. The Court of first instance dismissed the application as against the sureties and limited the applicant's claim against the others to the net income of the land less the cost of management and allowed him no interest. Held the order must be taken to have been made under Civil Procedure Code s. 610 and an appeal lay therefrom. AREVACHELLAM & AREVA CHELLAM to them. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit on the ground that the fruit on such tree had not been removed but found incidentally that such tree belonged to the plaintiff. The plaintiff appealed from the decree of the Court of first instance and the defendants objected to the decree contending that such tree belonged to them. Held that inasmuch as the Court of first instance did not in deciding that such tree belonged to the plaintiff decide a question substantially in issue it did not decide in this matter against the defendants within the meaning of s 561 of the Civil Procedure Code and as the decree was limited to dismissing the suit the defendants as respondents were not qualified to take an objection which they could not have taken by way of appeal and therefore the Appellate Court was not warranted by law in entertaining the objection taken by the defendants. BALAR TIVARI v. KANUL MISHRA [I. L. R. 4 All. 491]

647 — Objection by party improperly made respondent—Extent of respondent's right—A obtained a decree for possession of land against B a d f r costs against B C D and others defendants in the suit C and other defendants appealed against this decree so far as it awarded costs against them making A and D respondents to the appeal. Under s 561 D objected to that part of the decree which awarded possession of the land to A. Held on appeal that it was open to D although improperly made a party to the appeal by C against A to take objection to the rest of the decree. TECHATA MADA v. LAKSHMANA BRAHMA [I. L. R. 7 Mad. 215]

648 — Objections on appeal as to costs—Procedure—Notice of objections—The Court of first instance found for the defendants on the merits and passed a decree in their favour with out costs. The defendants appealed against that part of the decree which disallowed them their costs. The plaintiff filed a notice of objections to the decree on the merits as required by s 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure (XIV of 1882). The lower Court of Appeal varied the decree by allowing the defendants their costs and held that the plaintiff was not entitled to file any objections. Held that the Court of Appeal was in error in holding that the plaintiff's objections could not be entertained. S 561 of the Code gives the respondent the power of taking any objection to the decree at the hearing of an appeal which he could have taken by way of appeal provided he has filed a notice of his objections not less than seven days before the date fixed for the hearing of the appeal and this power is independent of whether an appeal lies on a mere question of costs. KAMAT v. HAMAT [I. L. R. 8 Bom. 308]

650 — Co-respondents—A defendant or respondent cannot be heard by way of cross appeal under s 348 Act VIII of 1859 as against a co-defendant or co-respondent. TARUCK NATH ROY v. TABOORUNISSA CHOWDHURY [7 W. R. 39]

651 — Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 348—A respondent making a cross appeal can take objection to any part of the judgment of the first Court adverse to him to which the appellant can answer and which affects the appellant's interests only but the cross appeal of a respondent does not open up any question between himself and his co-respondents for they cannot be allowed to interplead. The law gives a respondent a right to raise objections at the hearing of the appeal but under s 348 Civil Procedure Code reasonably construed the contest is between two parties equally interested and not with third parties. MAHMOOD ALI v. ZUN BANO BIBEE [9 W. R. 78]

652 — Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 348—Plaintiff sued two tenants and his co-sharer for joint rents. His suit was dismissed and the dakhilas produced by the tenant defendants were declared to be false. The latter appealed making the former and his co-sharer respondents. Plaintiff then appeared and made a cross appeal under s 348 Act VIII of 1859. Held that plaintiff had no locus standi to entitle him to make a cross appeal against his co-sharer upon the appeal of the tenant defendants. ANUNTO DOSS SEIN v. FAN JOY SEIN [11 W. R. 435]

653 — Whether a respondent can prefer a cross objection against another respondent—Civil Procedure Code (1882) s 561—In a suit for possession of land the Court of first instance decreed the plaintiffs' suit in part against the defendants. Some of the defendants appealed to the High Court without making the other defendants party respondents. The plaintiffs preferred a cross objection under s 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The non appealing defendants were added as respondents by an order of the High Court to the effect that they might be made parties with out prejudice to any objection that might be urged on their behalf at the hearing of the appeal. The non appealing defendants at the hearing of the appeal contended that they were wrongly made parties and that the plaintiffs could not urge their cross objection as against them. Held that as a general rule the right of a respondent to urge cross objections should be limited to his urging them against the appellant and it is only by way of exception to this general rule that one respondent may urge a cross objection against another respondent the exception holding good among other cases in those in which the appeal of some of the parties opens out questions which cannot be disposed of completely without matters being allowed to be opened up as between co-respondents; but as there was nothing exceptional in this case the plaintiffs were not allowed to urge their cross objections against the

Appellate Court should not go beyond the subject matter of the appeal applies to an objection called a cross appeal under s 348 which enables the respondent to take an objection to the decision of the lower Court which he might have taken if he had preferred a separate appeal. The joint effect of this section and of Act VII of 1850 s 16 is to place the respondent in the position of a cross appellant in so far that he must before the hearing specify his matter of objection and must pay into Court the Court fee attaching thereto. An Appellate Court was held to have acted without authority and to have contravened the Court Fees Act in having voluntarily suggested what it thought to be an error of the Court below and allowed the respondent to take it as an objection giving effect to the objection subject to the payment of the Court fee stamp. first instance as an alternative. In a suit between the widows of two brothers deceased the plaintiff's title rested on this that her and the defendant a late husband respectively having been the sons of the same father had therefore been sapindas to each other so that the plaintiff as the widow of the one would be the heir of the other expectant on the death of his widow. In this character she sued to have set aside an adoption made by the defendant. The Courts however found that the plaintiff's husband was an illegitimate son and not a sapinda and the suit was dismissed. The plaintiff now appellant on findings of fact that both the sons were illegitimate urged that though they could not inherit from their father they yet could sue and to the estate of one another. The Sessions Judge, although he disagreed with the verdict declined to submit the case to the High Court under s. 213 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The Local Government thereupon directed the Legal Remembrancer to appeal under s. 212 of the Code and in pursuance of this direction an appeal was preferred by the Junior Government Advocate. Held that the appeal was duly made. Held further that the judgment passed by the Court of Session in favour of the verdict of a jury acquitting the prisoner was a judgment of acquittal within the meaning of s. 210. Held also that there being an acquittal on the charge of murder the appeal lay. EMPRESS v. JUDOOATM GANGOOOLY I L R. 2 Cal 273

86 — Power to hear appeals—Criminal Procedure Code 1861 ss 14 and 412—Officer to hear criminal matters—Magistrate of District—Government may by proclamation declare and direct that an Assistant Collector in charge of the Collectorate during the absence of the Collector shall be during that period the officer in charge with the executive administration of the district in criminal matters and such officer being within the meaning of s. 14 of the Criminal Procedure Code the Magistrate of the district may hear appeals from subordinate Magistrates under s. 412 of the Code. *120 v BHAIHARAN HARIBAN 3 Bom. verdict of the jury who have the opportunity of seeing the demeanour of the witnesses and weighing the evidence with the assistance which this affords whereas the Judges of the Appellate Court can only arrive at a decision on the perusal of the evidence. Makin v Attorney General of New South Wales L. C. 57 referred to s. 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not warrant an Appellate Court in a case where there has been misdirection in a charge to a jury going into the evidence with a view to decide whether there is sufficient evidence to justify a conviction. Under s. 418 an appeal in a case tried by a jury lies on matters of law only and the Appellate Court has no power to try the accused on matters of fact. The word erroneous in cl. (7) of s. 423 must not be read as wrong on the facts but must be read in connection with the words that follow as meaning that the verdict has been vitiated and rendered bad or defective by reason of a misdirection or a mis-understanding of the law. WAFARAN KHAN v QUEEN EMPRESS

It was contended that the power to order a new trial under s 423 cl (b) of the Criminal Procedure Code could only be exercised when the conviction and sentence were set aside for want of jurisdiction in the trying Magistrate. Held that there is nothing in s 423 cl (b) of the Code to limit the power of an Appellate Court to order a re-trial. Queen Empress v Maula Buteh I L R. 15 All. 203 and Queen Empress v Jabanulla I L R. 23 Calc 970 followed. Queen Empress v Sukka, I L R. 8 All 14 disapproved of. SATIS CHANDRA DAS BOSE v QUEEN EMPRESS and the sale set aside and an application by the auction purchaser for the cancellation of the order setting aside the sale was refused. Thereupon the purchaser applied by petition to the High Court praying that the order made on review might be reversed. In his petition he submitted that the sale ought to have been confirmed when the application of the judgment-debtor to have it set aside was first rejected, but the petition did not contain a formal prayer for confirmation of the sale. A rule however was granted, calling on the judgment-debtor to show cause why the order reversing the sale should not be set aside and the sale confirmed, which rule after argument was made absolute. The judgment-debtor having obtained leave to appeal to the Privy Council from the order making the rule absolute the purchaser objected that such order was not appealable under cl. 39 of the Letters Patent 1865 on the ground that it was not an order made on appeal. Held that as the purchaser had obtained a rule calling on the judgment-debtor to show cause why the sale should not be confirmed, and had allowed that rule to be made absolute he could not contend that the order making the rule absolute was not an order made on appeal. Scindle—Orders made by the High Court under s. 15 of 24 & 25 Vict. c 104 are subject to appeal to the Privy Council. HUKERO NARAIN SART & GRIDHARI SINGH

15 — Civil Procedure

Code 1877 s. 595 (a)—Final decree—Certain persons interested in an award applied under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code to have it filed in Court. The Court made an order under s. 528 that the claim of the plaintiffs be decreed. The defendants appealed to the High Court from this decree. The High Court held that the appeal would not lie and suggested that the plaintiffs to apply to the lower Court to give judgment according to the award and a decree to follow it. Thereupon the plaintiffs made an application to the lower Court of the nature suggested but styled it one for review of judgment. The lower Court granted the so called review of judgment. The defendants appealed from the order of the lower Court contending that the review of judgment had been improperly granted. On the 23rd June 1880 the High Court held that the order of the lower Court was not appealable not being one passed on review of judgment but on an application to give judgment and a decree in accordance with an award which had been filed in Court. The defendants applied for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from the order of the High Court of the 23rd June 1880. Held that such order was not a final decree within the meaning of s. 595 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code and therefore it was not appealable to Her Majesty in Council. PANADHIN MAHTON & GANESH I. On the ground that a decree for an account was not final within that section the High Court refused under s. 601 to grant the defendant a certificate. On his application for special leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council not by way of an appeal from the local Court's refusal but asking for the exercise of the prerogative right to admit an appeal—Held that as leave could be granted on any other ground should any appear besides the ground that the Court had refused the certificate without good cause while leave could also be granted on the latter ground if established to make this application was perhaps more convenient than to appeal from the order of refusal. Held also that the real question in this suit having been the liability of the defendant to account to the plaintiff upon several claims the decree had decided this against the defendant in such a way that although the account had not been taken the decree was final within s. 495. RAHIMBOY HUSAINBOY v TURNER I. Admiralty Rules—By rule 35 of the rules respecting appeals from the Vice Admiralty Courts abroad made and ordained by King William IV in Council in pursuance of the Statute 2 Will IV in c 51 all appeals from the decrees of Vice Admiralty Courts are to be asserted within fifteen days after the date of the decree. Held that the words "after the date of the decree" mean after the date when the decree is pronounced by the Admiralty or Vice Admiralty Court as the case may be not the date when the decree is reduced to writing and signed. On the 23rd July 1850 the High Court in its Appellate Jurisdiction modifying a decree of the High Court as a Court of Vice Admiralty in a cause of damage by collision referred it to the Registrar to assess the damages that had been incurred in reference to one of the ships both of which were held to be in fault. The parties went without protest before the Registrar for that purpose the impugnants also having taken out process to compel the appearance of the promovents before him and the damages were assessed with the consent of both parties at a certain amount. On the 2nd September 1850 a notice of appeal was given on behalf of the impugnants and was recorded as asserted pursuant to rule 35 above referred to. Held that the appeal was not within time more than fifteen days having elapsed after the decree before the appeal was asserted. According to the law laid down in the Vice Admiralty Courts the proceedings taken before the Registrar were themselves sufficient also to prevent an appeal as of right. THE OWNERS OF THE SHIP BARETHILDA v THE BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY I. As however the defendant in the Court below who would have been respondent in the appeal had filed an appeal under the Letters Patent s 15 against the grant of the certificate the applicant contended that the six weeks would not begin to run until such appeal was finally disposed of. Held that there was no ground for this contention as the appeal did not operate as a stay of proceedings nor remove the record to any other Court. Held that the Court had no jurisdiction to enlarge the time specified in s 11. PUNENDRO DEB ROY v KUT v JOGENDRO DEB 23 W. This was done without calling for security as provided by s 4 Bengal Regulation XVI of 1797. The appellant on the admission of the appeal applied to the Sudder Court for security from the party in possession pending the appeal but that Court held that as the decree holder was in possession under an execution order which could not be appealed from they had no power to interfere. On petition the Judicial Committee under the circumstances and on affidavit of waste made an order declaring that it was competent to the Sudder Court to require security to be given for protection of the property pending the appeal notwithstanding execution of the decree had issued and gave permission to the appellant to apply to the Sudder Court with an intimation of that opinion. JARIUTOOL BEZOOT v HOSSEIN BEZOOT 10 Moore s I A. 198

The present defendants furnished security and executed a document under which the plaintiff who had succeeded in the Privy Council now sued to enforce his rights. It appeared that after the date of the instrument abovementioned a payment was made from the income of the property in satisfaction of a decree obtained by the zamindar against the present plaintiff for arrears of poruppu previously accrued due. Held (1) that the order of the High Court requiring security to be furnished was not ultra vires and that the instrument abovementioned was enforceable (2) that the defendants who had given no personal guarantee were not competent to put an end to the security under the provisions of the Contract Act relating to revocation of a surety (3) that on the right construction of the instrument the period for the profits of which the defendants were chargeable was that between the date of the instrument and the date of the decision of the Privy Council (4) that the defendants should be credited with the amount paid in satisfaction of the decree for poruppu. NARAYAN CHETTI & ARUNACHELLAM CHETTI I. The Sudder Court refused the application as not being within the provisions of the Regulation. On petition the Judicial Committee declined to interfere as there was no allegation of waste by the respondents in the petition. Quære—Whether there was any jurisdiction in the Judicial Committee under s 4 of Madras Regulation VIII of 1818 to call for security from the respondent when put in possession. NAGAL CHETTI & UMMAI & GOPPO NADARAJA CHETTI [14 Moore s L. 108 ——— Restoration of property pending appeal—The Court has power under s. 608 Civil Procedure Code to stay execution of a decree of the High Court in a suit subsequently appealed to Her Majesty in Council. Quare—Where the Court has power to order restitution of possession of property already taken in execution of its own decree pending an appeal to the Privy Council. *ASHUTILLA v. ## 4 EFFECT OF PRIVY COUNCIL DECREE OF ORDER

109 ——— Effect of order of Privy Council dismissing suit on power of High Court to make orders in suit—Petition for the amendment of an order in Council dismissing a suit—Receiver's liability to account—Rights as between the Administrator General and executors transferring estate to him and the petitioner interested in the estate—Act II of 1874 s. 31—A Court having appointed a receiver in a suit has authority incidental to its jurisdiction to order him to account although the suit may be no longer pending. The estate is in its hands and the receiver is its officer and the dismissal of the suit by an Appellate Court does not alter that state of things. The original Court in such a case may permit parties interested to intervene on questions as to the accounts and may deal with costs and other matters. In a suit by a plaintiff interested in the estate wholly based on the alleged illegality of its transfer by the executors named in the will of a Hindu to the Administrator General (Act II of 1874 s. 31) decrees were made by the High Court Original and Appellate in the plaintiff's favour. The Judicial Committee however held the transfer legal and the suit brought against the Administrator General and the executors as co-defendants was dismissed. Held on the plaintiff's petition for such modification of the order dismissing the suit as would maintain what had been ordered below relating to the accounts thereby enabling the High Court to bring matters in dispute to an end that there were no grounds for the amendment. Their Lordships' opinion was that the High Court would not be deprived of any jurisdiction in that respect by the dismissal of the suit. It should be necessary to the carrying out of the transfer that the Administrator General should take proceedings he could do so. To make orders upon the Court's receiver was within its powers and either the receiver or the executors could be called to further account without the petitioner being met by the defence of prior adjudication of the matter (s. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure). *IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF PREM LALL MULLICK ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL OF BENGAL v. 113 ——— Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) s. 124A—The accused who was the editor proprietor and publisher of the Kesari newspaper was charged under s. 124A of the Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) with exciting and attempting to excite feelings of disaffection to Government by the publication of certain articles etc. in the Kesari in its issue of the 15th June 1891. At the close of the Judge's charge to the jury counsel for the first accused asked that the following points might be reserved for the decision of the Court under s. 434 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1882) viz.—(1) Whether the order for the prosecution was sufficient under s. 19b of the Criminal Procedure Code. (2) Whether the High Court had power in the absence of a sufficient order to accept the commitment of the accused under s. 53c of the Criminal Procedure Code and to proceed with the trial. (3) Whether the meaning given to the term disaffection by the Judge in his charge to the jury was correct. The Judge declined to reserve the above points. The first accused having been convicted applied to a Full Bench under cl. 41 of the Letters Patent 1860 for a certificate that the case was a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council. The points upon which he desired to appeal were those which his counsel at the close of the trial asked the Judge to reserve as above stated. The Full Bench refused to grant the certificate. QUEEN EMRESS v. BAL GANGADHAR TIWAK

1 GENERAL DUTY OF APPELLATE COURTS

1. — High Court Practice of—Appeal on questions of fact—Credibility of witnesses—The High Court sitting in appeal on questions of fact was guided by the same rules as those of the Privy Council when they sat upon motions for a rule for new trials from the old Supreme Court. The High Court sitting in appeal will not disturb a judgment upon a question as to the credibility of witnesses unless it be manifestly clear from the probabilities attached to certain circumstances in the case that the Court was wrong in the conclusion drawn from such evidence. The High Court sitting in appeal will look upon the decree of a Judge as to facts in the same light as the verdict of a jury and though some of the reasons given for the conclusion arrived at be erroneous the High Court in appeal will not say that the decree is against the weight of evidence if sufficient reason for such decree still remain. HEERALALL CHITREBETTY v. MOHSEN CHUNDER GHOSAL [1 Hyde 105

2. — Privy Council Practice of—Appeal on questions of fact—The rule of the Privy Council not to disturb a judgment of a Court in India upon a question of fact unless it is clear from the probabilities of the case that the judgment is wrong however necessary as regards a Court of Appeal far removed from India would hardly be extended as one equally necessary and applicable with the same strictness to a Court of Appeal in India. SARODA SOONDERY v. TINCOWRY [1 Hyde 223

3. — Question of fact Ground for disturbing finding on—Hell on examination of the evidence that the lower Appellate Court ought not to have disturbed the distinct finding of the lower Court as it had upon what appeared to be mere conjecture LAL MAHOMED RIFARI v. SHOLA BEWA 11 C L R. 104

4. — Jurisdiction where appeal is barred—When an appeal is barred by law an Appellate Court cannot interfere in any matter let its matter arising out of the case unless there is want of jurisdiction. KUTUB CHAND KOLKHAH v. HIRFF MOHTE GUO R 2 W R. Mis 46

5. — Presumption of correctness of judgment appealed from—Duty of Judge—A Judge of appeal is not in the position of an arbitrator who has to look at the evidence on both sides and determine which is preferable. He has to deal with the decision of a properly constituted Court which if not shown to be erroneous ought to be affirmed. SHETABDEE BISWAS v. MOLANDPE MUNDDE 25 W R. 30

6. — Presumption as to facts found by lower Court—Omission to file objections under Civil Procedure Code s 561—Where a decree is in favour of the respondent the Appellate Court is not entitled to accept the facts found by the Court of first instance as incontestably proved merely because the respondent has not filed any cross-objections to the decree under s 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XI of 1882) DHAGOJI v. BAPTUJI 1 L L R. 13 Bom. 76

7. — Credibility of witnesses—In cases turning on the credibility of witnesses the Appellate Court gives great weight to the decision of the Courts below. WOMESH CHUNDER ROY v. DEENDAYAL PORAMAYICK 2 Hay 12

8. — Where credit has been given to witnesses by the Court of first instance before which they have been examined the Appellate Court is not at liberty to say that it disbelieves them without stating reasons. HOYMO DASSEE v. SREE KISEEN MUNDY 14 W R. 68

9. — Dealing with documentary evidence—Where a Munsif pronounces an opinion as to the authenticity of certain documents the lower Appellate Court must assume that he did his duty and looked into each and every one of them before pronouncing such opinion. On a question of simple credit to be given to a witness an Appellate Court having before it merely written depositions is not authorized to set aside the opinion of the Court of first instance which heard the witness and recorded that his demeanour was not satisfactory. GOPPE NATH MOOKERJEE v. BODDHUMUST MAL [25 W R. 28]

See NOBIN CHUNDER POOSHALL v. RANGO CHUNDER CHATTERJEE 25 W R. 363

10. — Method of dealing with questions of fact in appeal—In dealing with questions of fact which turn entirely upon evidence given on the trial the High Court ought not merely to consider whether the lower Court has come to the same conclusion as that to which it should have come if it had originally heard the witnesses but before reversing the decision it ought to be satisfied that the Court was clearly wrong. OOTUM v. MULICK GHOLAM HOSSEIN 2 Hay 359

11. — Point taken in appeal but not argued by pleader—Where a point is taken on appeal the Appellate Court should consider and decide it although the vakil may omit to argue it. DADA VALAD VALLI v. BAYASHA VALAD KASAM [6 Bom. A C B]

12. — Duty of Judge to hear comments on evidence—It is the duty of the Judge of an Appellate Court to allow the parties or their pleaders to submit the evidence to him at the hearing in open Court and to make upon the evidence so submitted every comment and found upon it every argument they may think necessary. LALLA JTG. GESHUR SAIHOY v. GOPAL LALL 15 W R. 54

13. — Duty of Appellate Court to direct examination of witnesses before reversing decree—Dismissal of suit by first Court without examining defendant's witnesses—Petition of decree on appeal—Where a Court of first instance considering it unnecessary to examine certain witnesses for the defence dismissed the suit, and the lower Appellate Court disbelieving the evidence of those witnesses for the defence who were examined allowed the plaintiff's appeal—Held that before doing so the lower Appellate Court should have afforded the defendants an opportunity of supplementing the evidence which they had given in the first Court by the testimony of those witnesses whom that Court had declared it unnecessary to hear and that the case must be regarded as one in which the first Court had refused to examine the witnesses tendered by the defendants. The Court directed the first Court to examine the defendant's witnesses and having done so to return their depositions to the lower Appellate Court which was to replace the appeal upon its file and dispose of it. KHEDA BAKSH v. IMAM ALI SHAH 1 L L R. 8 All. 339

14. — Duty of Appellate Court to call the remaining witnesses before reversing the decree of first Court—Dismissal of case in first Court without hearing all the witnesses—The Subordinate Judge having heard all the witnesses for the plaintiff and some of the witnesses for the defendant intimated that he did not consider it necessary for the defendant to call any more evidence. He then dismissed the suit. On appeal by the plaintiff the Judge upon the recorded evidence reversed the decree and allowed the plaintiff's claim. The defendant appealed to the High Court contending that the lower Court ought not to have found against him without allowing him an opportunity to call the witnesses whose evidence had been dispensed with by the Subordinate Judge. Held (reversing the decree of the lower Appellate Court and remanding the case) that the lower Appellate Court ought not to have reversed the decree of the first Court without allowing the defendant to give the evidence which the 15 — Discretion Exercise of—

Discretion capriciously exercised—Error of law—
The discretion vested in a Court of Justice must be exercised in a sound and reasonable manner and a capricious and unreasonable exercise of discretion on the part of a Court of first instance is an error in law which it is the duty of an Appellate Court to correct
LEWIS v MALISS 3 Bom. A C 94

16 — Appellate Court's power to interfere with exercise of discretion—When an appeal against an order based on facts is given from a subordinate to a superior Court the discretion vested in the former is absorbed in the latter and it is the duty of the superior Court to weigh the facts which form the basis upon which the subordinate Court proceeds and arrive at its own independent conclusion and this is so notwithstanding that the subordinate Court exercised its discretion after a proper enquiry and due consideration of the facts put before it and not capriciously or with prejudice

due consideration has exercised the discretion in a

20 — Question of Limitation—
Appeal—B sued M and T for money due on a bond and on the 27th April 1877 obtained a decree against T the suit against M being dismissed. T applied for a review of judgment and B also made a similar application. On the 25th May 1877 T's application was granted and on the 16th July 1877 B's was rejected. On the 29th June 1878 the Court heard the suit against T and dismissed it. B appealed making T and M respondents and impugning in his memorandum of appeal the decree of the 27th April 1877 as well as that of the 29th June 1878. The Appellate Court assuming that the appeal was one from the decree of the 27th April 1877 preferred beyond time admitted it after time and after hearing the case on its merits gave a decree against M and dismissed the suit as regards T. Held that the Appellate Court erred in assuming that the appeal was from the decree of the 27th April 1877 and that it was at liberty to admit it beyond time the appeal being from the decree of the 29th June 1878 that decree being the one which had brought B before that Court as an appellant and that the Appellate Court was not competent on an appeal from the decree of the 29th June 1878 to reconsider the merits of the case against M the appeal from the decree of the 27th April 1877 being barred by limitation and that decree and the decree of the 29th June 1878 being separate and distinct and not appealable in one memorandum of appeal from the latter decree. MOTI

45 ———— Objection for defect in plaint—An Appellate Court is competent at any stage to allow objections to be taken to an apparent defect in the plaint. COMBAY COINER & LITHO 2 B L R A 212 11 W R 40

46 ———— Striking names out of plaint and amending issues—Merits of case Error not affecting—Act VIII of 1859 s 30—Your plaintiffs sued as partners but it was found during the trial that they were not all partners at the time the cause of action accrued and the Judge thereupon amended the issue which had been raised on that point and raised the question whether the plaintiffs were or were not partners and it being decided in the negative the Judge ordered two of the plaintiffs' names to be struck out of the plaint and he gave a decree in favour of the other plaintiffs. Held that the Judge acted rightly in amending the issue but that he should have done so without striking the names of the plaintiffs out of the plaint. Such an error is an error in an interlocutory order not affecting the merits of the case and therefore under s 30 Act VIII of 1859 not a ground for reversing the decree on appeal. EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY v JORDAN [4 B L R O C 97 14 W R O C 11]

47 ———— Remand—Civil Procedure Code 1877 s 562—An Appellate Court is not empowered by Act X of 1877 to order or allow a plaint to be amended or to remand a case under s 562 of that Act for the purpose of such amendment. FARFAND ALL v YUSUF ALI 1 L R 2 All 669

48 ———— Waiver of defect in plaint in Court below—Ground for dismissal—In a case in which although the plaint mentioned no overt act justifying the plaintiff's request for a declaration of title and still it appeared on the admitted facts of the case that there was a cause of action and the Court of first instance adjudicated on the merits and passed a decree in favour of plaintiffs—Held that it was too late for the lower Appellate Court to dismiss the claim on the ground of the above defect in the plaint. SHOME DUTT CHOWDERY v SUBB NARAIN CHOWDERY 24 W R 242

49 ———— Amendment of record on appeal—A second plaintiff was added in the Court below but no amendment was made in the record and the suit was dismissed with costs. An appeal being brought the original plaintiff failed to pay the costs was made insolvent and the Official Assignee declined to proceed with the appeal. It was objected that the appeal ought to be dismissed there being no appellant on the record but the Court allowed the appeal to proceed and the amendment order by the Court below to be affected. KEDAR NATH DOSS v PROTAP CHUNDER DOSS [1 L R 8 Calc 628 8 C L R 238]

52 ———— Objection not taken to plaint—Ground for dismissal of suit—Suit for declaratory decree without asking consequential relief—A suit should not be dismissed by an Appellate Court on the ground of its being one asking merely for a declaratory decree and no consequential relief where that objection has never been taken by the defendants to the suit. The plaintiffs should in such a case be allowed an opportunity of amending their plaint. LIMBA BIN KRISHNA v RAMA BIN LIMBU 1 L R 18 Bom 548

53 ———— Suit for declaration of title without asking for possession—Where a person brings a suit merely for declaration of his title without seeking to recover possession although he may be in physical possession the Appellate Court will not grant an opportunity to amend the plaint if the plaintiff had already such an opportunity and did not avail himself of it. Limba bin Krishna v Rama bin Limbu 1 L R 18 Bom 548 distinguished. RAJ NARAIN DAS v SHAMA NANDO DAS CHOWDERY [1 L R 28 Calc 645 4 C W N 162]

54 ———— Evidence Act 1857 s 57—Re hearing of ex parte case on fresh evidence—Where a Court of first instance sets aside its own ex parte judgment and after a new trial in which it takes fresh evidence as well as admits that originally recorded again gives plaintiffs a decree it is the duty of the lower Appellate Court to enquire under s 57 of Act II of 1857 whether independently of the evidence originally recorded there was sufficient to justify the decree. ROSELY SINGH v KISHOREE LALL 8 W R 499

55 ———— Evidence sufficient for judgment—Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 303—When parties have had an opportunity of putting in such evidence as they consider sufficient to entitle them to a judgment upon the material issues of the case the evidence ought to be held sufficient under s 303 Civil Procedure Code to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce a satisfactory judgment. ZAHIRAN v BHUGWAN DASS [18 W R 211]

59 ——— Evidence improperly admitted in lower Court—The lower Appellate Court was not competent to reject the documentary evidence which had been admitted by the Court of first instance merely because it had been admitted after the first hearing of the case or after the date on which it had been ordered to be produced. HOOGOMAN SINGH v FEEL 3 Agr 148

60 ——— Decision in lower Court on merits—A W P Rent Act 1851 s 20—In a suit instituted in the Court of an Assistant Collector under cl (4) s 93 of the A W P Rent Act an objection was taken that the plaintiffs are being recorded shareholders the suit was not maintainable in the Revenue Court. The objection was all well but the Court at the same time disposed of the case on the merits and dismissed the suit. On appeal the lower Appellate Court affirmed the decree on the ground that the Revenue Court had no jurisdiction in the matter. Held that as there were materials in the record for the determination of the suit the Judge should with reference to s 20 of the Rent Act have disposed of the appeal on the merits. De's Saran Lal v Dels Saran Upadhyay I L R 6 All 29 referred to SHRO KRASAD v AVERDH SINGH

65 ——— Evidence insufficient—Where the evidence upon the record is not sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce a judgment upon regular appeal it may require the Court against whose decree the appeal is made to take additional evidence defining the points to which such evidence is to be confined in order to enable the Appellate Court finally to determine the case. NARASIMHARAY KRISHNARAY v ATTARI VIRUPAKSH 2 Bom. 64 2nd Ed. 61

68. — Omission to call evidence in lower Court—A suit to recover money having been commenced against P and others an attachment was applied for and certain goods supposed to be the defendants' were attached by order of the Court. Two other persons coming forward and claiming the attached goods as their property plaintiffs concluded them to be partners with the original defendants, and made them also defendants. The lower Court at the trial held that the proof of partnership failed. Held on appeal that the plaintiffs case could not at this stage be supplemented by examining parties whom the plaintiffs did not think fit to call or by books which they did not produce in the Court below. VELAET ALI KHAN v MATADEVI [19 W R 402]

69. — Fresh evidence—Civil Procedure Code s 555—An appellant who had ample opportunity of giving evidence in the Court below and elected not to do so but to rest his case on the evidence as it stood, ought not to be allowed at the stage of appeal to give evidence which he could have given below. RAM DAS CHAKRABARTI v OFFICIAL LIQUIDATOR OF THE COTTON GROWING COMPANY L L R, 9 All 886

Plaintiff who had purchased one B's rights and interest in a 4 annas share of the property intervened; but his intervention having been rejected in the summary department he sued to set aside the summary order and to establish his vendor's right in the property. The vendor having admitted the sale to the plaintiff the first Court thought it unnecessary to examine the witnesses to and the writer of the deed of sale and, finding the plaintiff in possession, decreed the suit.

This decision was reversed on appeal. Held that the lower Appellate Court did wrong in presuming collusion between B and his vendee (the plaintiff) and ought not to have rejected the deed without examining the writer and witnesses; and that it should have decided whether plaintiff was in possession at any time under the deed of sale. RAM LALL JHA v ISHAR CHUNDER DEB 10 W R, 451

73. — Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 355—Additional evidence after review—Where a lower Appellate Court admitted a review with the object of taking into consideration a material issue which it had omitted to consider at the trial—Held that having admitted the review on grounds independent of fresh evidence it was competent for the Court under s 300 Act VIII of 1859 to admit fresh evidence if required to enable it to pronounce a satisfactory judgment or for any substantial cause. BEHAREE LALL NUDDER v TROYLUCKHO MOTER BURNOMER 12 W R 223

74. — Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 355—The true interpretation of s 355 Act VIII of 1859 is that when a Court sees that by some inadvertence or mistake a party has not produced some evidence which he was capable of adducing and that he is likely to be prejudiced by that omission or mistake which was simply unintentional undesignated and accidental the Court will allow such further evidence to be taken. GOWHUN ALI KHAN v SAKHIEVA KHANUM 15 W R 507

75. — Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 355—Appeal from ex parte decree—The Court declined on appeal from an order rejecting an application under s 119 Act VIII of 1859 to set aside an ex parte decree to receive an affidavit which had not been previously tendered and held that a 3-5 was not meant to have application to such a case as this but to empower the Court of Appeal at its discretion to receive evidence upon issues of facts which had been tried in the Court of first instance. LESLIE v ALLENDEE [17 W R 390]

77 ————— Civil Procedure Code 1859 s. 351—Evidence excluded by first Court—When the first Court was satisfied with the evidence produced and therefore did not allow the plaintiff to produce all his evidence and the Appellate Court does not think the evidence sufficient it ought to allow the plaintiff on appeal to call the evidence excluded by the first Court. BIHJO SOODHAR LOY & HAMMOOVISSA 23 W R, 63

78 ————— Improper reception of evidence—Demand—When a lower Court disposes of a case upon the merits as proved by evidence not legally admissible against the defendants and the Appellate Court considers it proper to allow the plaintiff to adduce further evidence it may either take such further evidence itself or send the case back to the lower Court to take such evidence. RAMJOY LEMAN MOVOOMDAN & LURAY KISHEN SINGH [W R, F B, 124]

79 ————— Discovery of fresh evidence—Application for review—The High Court will in a case irrespective of certain documents brought forward by a party at the hearing of the appeal and afterwards received an application for a review of that judgment. In an application to the Privy Council for special leave to bring in these documents—Held that further evidence ought not to be admitted under a 300 Act VIII of 1843; that there was great danger in the Court of ultimate appeal lightly introducing evidence which had not been under the consideration of the Courts below and which the parties had no means of stating. GODIND BUDABI DIBRAI & JAGADAMBA DEBIA 3 B L R, P O, 26

80 ————— Civil Procedure Code s. 164—The test as to whether additional evidence will be received in an Appellate Court under s. 164 of the Code of Civil Procedure depends upon the question whether or no the Appellate Court requires the evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment on any other substantial cause; as to this the Appellate Court is to be the sole judge. 92 ————— Record of reasons—In a suit for possession of certain lands under a howla tenure the possession of which for some generations was alleged no special documentary title was set up in the plaint but one of the plaintiffs in his deposition referred the title to a particular pottah which he said had existed and had been lost in the time of his grandfather. Two of the defendants were the zamindars of the talukh in which the howla tenure was said to exist and had transferred their proprietary right to the other two defendants. The zamindars did not defend the suit and were not examined in the Court of first instance. The lower Appellate Court considered it necessary for the proper decision of the case to examine the zamindars and relying mainly on their evidence reversed the decision of the Munsif and gave a decree in favour of the plaintiff. Held on appeal that the lower Appellate Court had sufficiently recorded its reasons within the meaning of s 856 of Act VIII of 1859 for requiring the additional evidence that it was right in so doing and that although no special title had been set up in the plaint the decree which was given on the evidence in favour of the plaintiffs could not be reversed in special appeal. RADHANATH DHUBI v. to Appellate Court—The plaintiff as purchaser at a Court's sale sued in 1871 for possession of certain immovable property and tendered in evidence a sale certificate dated 20th September 1860. The first Court decided against the plaintiff on the ground among others that the certificate was not registered though registration of it was compulsory. On the 9th February 1875 the plaintiff filed an appeal in the High Court against that decree and on the 26th July 1875 applied to that Court for permission to give in evidence a new certificate of sale issued on the 1st February 1870 regarding the same property as that to which the certificate of the 20th September 1865 related. Held by the High Court that as the new certificate was issued after the first Court had made its decree the High Court ought not to receive it or to suggest or facilitate any application to the lower Court for a review of its decree on documentary evidence which had no existence when that Court made such decree. LALBHAI LAKHMIDAS v. 102 — Civil Procedure Code (1882) ss. 562 568 569—Additional evidence by Appellate Court—Invalidity of order reversing decree of lower Court on account of exclusion of evidence—A trial took place in the Court of a District Munsif who heard evidence decided issues and passed a decree. On an appeal being preferred the Subordinate Judge reversed the decree and remanded the suit for re-trial on the ground that certain documentary evidence which had been tendered by a defendant had been excluded, and plaintiffs' witnesses who had been cited in the list had not been wholly examined. On an appeal being preferred against that order—Held that s. 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure was inapplicable to such a case, and that the proper and only legal course for the Subordinate Judge to take under the Code of Civil Procedure was to act either under s. 568 or s. 569 by himself taking the evidence which he considered to have been wrongly excluded or to direct the District Munsif to take it. Perumbra Nayyar v. 122 — Stamp Act 1879, s 84, proviso III—Admission of documents in evidence—Unstamped promissory note admitted as a bond on payment of stamp duty and penalty—The plaintiff sued to recover the amount due on three khataas. The defendant objected that the khataas were not duly stamped. The Subordinate Judge held that the instruments were bonds and as such admitted them in evidence on payment of the proper stamp duty and penalty under s III proviso I of the Stamp Act (I of 1879). At a subsequent stage of the same suit his successor in office was of opinion that the khataas in question were promissory notes that as such they could be stamped only at the date of their execution and that they had been illegally admitted in evidence under a s 34 proviso I. He accordingly dismissed the suit. On appeal the District Judge agreed with the Subordinate Judge that the instruments sued on were promissory notes but held that after they had once been admitted in evidence on payment of the stamp duty and penalty the question of their admissibility could not be subsequently raised in the suit under proviso III to s 34 of the Stamp Act (I of 1879). He therefore reversed the decree of the Subordinate Judge and remanded the case for trial on the merits. Against this order of remand defendants appealed to the High Court. Held that the promissory notes having been once admitted in evidence could not afterwards be rejected on the ground of their not being duly stamped. DEVA CHAND v HIRA CHAND KAMARAJ I. L. 151. — Misjoinder of causes of action—Property wrongly attached—Joint suit by holders of two shares to have their shares declared not liable to attachment—Civil Procedure Code s 578—Amendment of plaint—A decree holder in execution of a decree against one G L attached a house as belonging to G L and his two sons forming a joint Hindu family. The sons objected that the house had previously been partitioned and was held by them and their father in separate shares but their objection was disallowed. They then brought a joint suit for a declaration that their respective portions of the house were not liable to attachment in execution of a decree against their father. No objection was taken to the frame of that suit and the Court of first instance gave the plaintiffs a decree on the finding that partition had in fact taken place prior to the suit in which the defendant judgment creditor had obtained his decree. On appeal by the judgment creditor the lower Appellate Court dismissed the suit entirely on the grounds of misjoinder of causes of action. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court. Held on these facts that the plaintiffs should have been allowed to amend their plaint by striking out the name of one of them and that though there was irregularity in the procedure such irregularity did not affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court within the meaning of a 578 of the Code of Civil Procedure the claim was liable to dismissal by reason of its involving the misjoinder of plaintiffs with different causes of action. In answer to this contention it was urged by the appellants that as the respondents went to trial upon the merits it was not open to them to urge any objection like this to the frame of the suit on appeal. Held that it was open to the respondents to raise the objection as to misjoinder in appeal

The decree provided for payment of the secured debt in various instalments by May 1893. The mortgagor died in 1883 having discharged part of the debt. The decree holder having attached certain family property in execution the mortgagor's two younger sons who had not been born at the date of the above decree objected that their shares were not liable to attachment. This objection prevailed the Court expressing the opinion that the matter in controversy should be determined in a regular suit. The first Court gave the plaintiff a decree and this decree was affirmed on appeal by the District Judge who however gave no reasons of his own for his judgment but merely adopted those of the lower Court. Held that having regard to the nature of the case and the simplicity of the point for determination the fact of the District Judge having omitted to state his reasons did not amount to such an error of law within the meaning of s 578 of the Code of Civil Procedure as affected the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court. ROHIMONI DABI v. The defendant did not appeal or file cross objections. The lower Appellate Court remanded the whole case to the first Court under s 563 of the Civil Procedure Code the plaintiff not appealing under s. 538 ("8) from the order of remand. The first Court then dismissed the whole suit and on appeal by the plaintiff the lower Appellate Court confirmed the decree. On a second appeal to the High Court held (i) that the High Court was competent to consider the validity or propriety of the order of remand though it had not been specially appealed against (ii) that the order of remand was ultra vires so far as it related to that part of the first Court's decree which was favourable to the plaintiff the lower Appellate Court not having jurisdiction in the absence of any appeal or objections by the defendant to disturb that part of the decree (iii) that the order of remand was not made valid by the subsequent appearance of the plaintiff before the first Court or by the appeal from the first Court's decree on the remand and (iv) that the case was not

200 ——— Application to set aside sale in execution of decree—Court reversing lower Court on evidence taken before necessary party was added—Superintendence of High Court—Civil Procedure Code s. 622—A person alleging himself to be the undivided brother and as such the legal representative of a deceased judgment debtor applied to have set aside a sale of certain property alleged by him to be joint family property which had taken place in execution of the decree. He did not make the purchaser a party to such application. The Court of first instance dismissed the application. On appeal the Appellate Court made the purchaser a party to the proceedings and holding that there was irregularity in conducting the sale reversed the order of the Court of first instance. Held that the Appellate Court was wrong in so holding, upon evidence recorded by the Court of first instance when the purchaser was not a party to the proceedings and the order of the Appellate Court was set aside under s. 622 of the Code. *SUBBARAYUDU v. lite—When the decree of a subordinate Court is under appeal to the High Court it is open to the High Court to vary it either in points in which it is erroneous or in respect of matters occurring subsequently to the date of such decree which are admitted. The plaintiff obtained a decree in a partition suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court for his share in certain joint family property in the possession of the defendants (his co-partners). The decree was affirmed on appeal. The defendants filed a second appeal in the High Court but before it was decided one of the defendants died. The plaintiff at the hearing of the second appeal claimed a larger share in the family property than he had been awarded by the decree of the Courts below. Held that he (plaintiff) was entitled to a share in that of the co-partner who died pendente lite and that the decree appealed from ought to be varied accordingly. SA KHANAM MAHADEV DANGE v. HARI KRISHNA DANGE [I. L. R. 8 Bom. 113]

203 ——— Power to vary decree as made in the lower Court—Decree confined to rights in issue between parties—S. 555 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1877—After the trial of issues raising the question whether the plaintiff was or the defendants were entitled to zamindari rights in certain mehals a decree was made affirming the title of the plaintiff the evidence in support of the defendant's case being discredited, and the latter were declared by the decree to be the plaintiff's under tenure holders of the said mehals. This was modified on appeal by the declaration that the defendants are patnidars of the same mouzahs. Held that it was unnecessary on this appeal to consider whether the Appellate Court was right in its conclusion that the defendants were patnidars because upon the case which had been set up for the defendants and upon the issues framed and tried in the lower Court the Appellate Court could not properly make such a declaration the defendants could not be in a better position than they would have been in had they claimed to be patnidars in which case an issue as to that title would have been framed and tried. ■ 555 of Act X of 1877 does not enable an Appellate Court to declare a right in favour of one of the parties where no issue has been fixed on the point and the right has not been set up in the lower Court. *OFFICIAL TRUSTEE OF BENGAL v. 224 ——— Objection to share taken on adoption—Objection on appeal to extent of share awarded to adopted son—In a suit by an adopted son to recover his share in his adoptive father's estate a son having been born to the adoptive father subsequently to the plaintiff's adoption the Court of first instance awarded the plaintiff a fourth share of the property in dispute. The defendant appealed to the District Court but in appeal raised no question as to the extent of the share awarded to the plaintiff. On second appeal to the High Court it was contended that in any event the plaintiff was only entitled to a fifth share. Held that under the circumstances and having regard to the nature of the question the point might be taken in second appeal on behalf of the defendant and the High Court varied the decree by awarding the plaintiff a fifth share instead of a fourth share but ordered the appellant (defendant) to bear his own costs of the appeal. GIRIAPA v. 225 ——— Alienation—Alienation by member of Mitakshara family—Invalidity of alienation—Proof of consideration—A father having executed a deed conveying certain ancestral property to two persons (D and B) who alienated it to several others his son sued to have the conveyances by D and B set aside on the ground that the deed given by the father was benami and that D and B never had possession. The suit was dismissed by both the lower Courts. Held that as plaintiff went to trial in the Courts below upon one issue only viz. whether D and B were ever really in occupation he was not entitled in special appeal to complain that evidence had not been taken as to the passing of consideration money. Held that as no issue was raised in the lower Courts which could have been the foundation for a declaration of right the non decision of a claim to such a declaration could not be made a ground of special appeal. Held that where the question whether the alienation of certain property by the father without the son's consent was valid under the Mitakshara law was not raised in the lower Courts such invalidity could not be admitted as a ground of objection in special appeal for it necessarily involved an issue of fact. PURIAT DUTT v. 271. — Summary suit for possession—A and B obtained a decree for possession of land against C. On their proceeding to execute their decree D who was in possession, presented a petition to the Munsif complaining that they were thereby attempting unlawfully to interfere with his possession. The case was tried on remand from the Judge as a suit under the provisions of s. 229 of Act VIII of 1859. Held per JACKSON J. that as the decree holder had not complained that the officer of the Court had been obstructed or resisted by the claimant the case did not fall within s. 229 of Act VIII of 1859 and therefore the Court had not jurisdiction to take summary cognizance of the case. 272. — Objection to suit for mesne profits as being matter for execution—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) s. 244

—A landlord sued his tenant for arrears of rent and obtained a decree for a certain amount and a declaration that if the amount were not paid within fifteen days the tenant should be ejected under s. 59 of Act VIII of 1859. The amount was not paid and the landlord executed the decree and obtained possession. The tenant appealed and succeeded in getting the decree set aside and the amount found due from him for arrears by the first Court was reduced and a decree made directing that if the reduced amount were not paid within fifteen days, he should be ejected. He paid the amount found due by the Appellate Court within the fifteen days and recovered possession of his holding. He then brought a suit in the Munsif's Court to recover mesne profits from his landlord for the time he was in possession after the execution of the first Court's decree. It was contended on second appeal that the suit would not lie as the matter might and should have been determined in the execution department under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that as the suit was instituted in the Munsif's Court and the Munsif under the circumstances of the case was the officer who in the first instance would have had to determine the matter in the execution department there was at most only an error of procedure and no exercise of jurisdiction by the Munsif which he did not possess and that upon the authority of the decision in Purmessure Iershah Narayn Singh v Jankes Koorer 19 W R. 50 this could not be made a ground of objection on appeal. Held also that the point being one that was not raised in the pleadings or before either of the lower Courts and being a point which went exclusively to the jurisdiction of the Court it could not be raised on second appeal. instance were not applicable. RAM AUTAR RAI v. TALMUNDI KHAN 7 N W, 49

271. — Summary suit for possession—A and B obtained a decree for possession of land against C. On their proceeding to execute their decree D who was in possession presented a petition to the Munsif complaining that they were thereby attempting unlawfully to interfere with his possession. The case was tried on remand from the Judge as a suit under the provisions of s 229 of Act VIII of 1859. Held per JACOB J. that as the decree holder had not complained that the officer of the Court had been obstructed or resisted by the claimant the case did not fall within s 229 of Act VIII of 1859 and therefore the Court had not jurisdiction to take summary cognizance of the case. Per MITTER J.—This objection taken for the first time on special appeal did not affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court. BHAI SINGH CHOWDEY v. BHARI LALL 11 B L R. A. C 206 10 W R., 318

272. — Objection to suit for mesne profits as being matter for execution—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1892) s 244

—A landlord sued his tenant for arrears of rent and obtained a decree for a certain amount and a declaration that if the amount were not paid within fifteen days the tenant should be ejected under s 52 Act VIII of 1869. The amount was not paid and the landlord executed the decree and obtained possession. The tenant appealed and succeeded in getting the decree set aside and the amount found due from him for arrears by the first Court was reduced and a decree made directing that if the reduced amount were not paid within fifteen days he should be ejected. He paid the amount found due by the Appellate Court within the fifteen days and recovered possession of his holding. He then brought a suit in the Munsif's Court to recover mesne profits from his landlord for the time he was in possession after the execution of the first Court's decree. It was contended on second appeal that the suit would not lie as the matter might and should have been determined in the execution department under s 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that as the suit was instituted in the Munsif's Court and the Munsif under the circumstances of the case was the officer who in the first instance would have had to determine the matter in the execution department there was at most only an error of procedure and no exercise of jurisdiction by the Munsif which he did not possess and that upon the authority of the decision in Purmessure Ierashad Narayan Singh v. Jankee Koor 19 W R 90 this could not be made a ground of objection on appeal. Held also that the point being one that was not raised in the pleadings or before either of the lower Courts and being a point which went exclusively to the jurisdiction of the Court it could not be raised on second appeal. *ALIYUDDIN HOSSEIN v. 286 ——— Minority—Right of member of family to alienate—A plaintiff obtained a decree to set aside an alienation of ancestral property effected by his father during his minority Defendant objected in special appeal first that the suit was barred by lapse of time since plaintiff attained his majority and secondly that under the Mitakshara law the father had a right to alienate a share of the property Held that as the first of these objections was entirely a matter of fact and as the second though essentially a matter of law went to the substance of the plaintiff's claim they should have been urged in the lower Courts and could not be admitted for the first time in special appeal BEYODE PUTNAIK v. ## APPROPRIATION OF PAYMENTS—

5 — Payments unsupplied by either the debtor or the creditor should be appropriated to the earlier items making up the debt due. This rule is not impaired by the decision in the cases of Mills v Fowler 5 Buzg v C. 4 J and East v Hodgson 6 De G M and G. 4 S. MIRADA KARIMA APFAN v GADIGI NEDDAPPA

[11 Mad. 197]

6 — In consideration of an advance of Rs 118 the defendant executed, in favour of the plaintiff a mortgage-bond, dated 3rd November 1879 by which it was stipulated that the amount should be repaid in kind by delivery of half the amount of the rubber crops of every description produced at the first-class rates and in case the same is not paid in kind it will be paid principal with interest from the date of execution at one anna per cent. per mensem in cash in the month of Baisakh 128, F b (April 1880). The defendants admitted execution of the bond and pleaded payments in grain to the amount of Rs 136 which they failed to prove. It was found that the plaintiff had received payments in grain to the extent of Rs 171 more than half of which however he claimed to be entitled to appropriate to the payment of other antecedent debts which were due to him by the defendants. It was not stated at the time of payment towards which debt the payments were to be applied but all the payments were admittedly made in kind. Held that the plaintiff was not entitled to appropriate the payments to the antecedent debts inasmuch as, within the meaning of a 60 of the Contract Act there were other circumstances indicating that the payments were made in liquidation of the amount of the bond. SUGUR LAL v BAIKATH BOY I L R. 13 Cal 184

7 — Contract Act (IX of 1872) s 60—Creditor's appropriation of payments to one or other of debts.—One of two mortgages bore interest at 12 per cent on the mortgage debt payable with costs and the other carried simple interest. Payments made by the debtor had been appropriated by the creditor to payment of the interest on the bond bearing simple interest while the compound interest on the other hand had been left to accumulate. In a suit brought against the representative of the debtor after his decease to enforce the mortgage bearing compound interest the objection was taken to the appropriation by the creditor. Held that the rule in s 60 of the Indian Contract Act 1872 follows the ordinary law in prescribing a rule as to the case in which the creditor may at his discretion apply to one or other of the debts due to him payments made by the debtor. A reluctance shown by the debtor to agree to pay compound interest before he executed the mortgage bond at such interest was not an indication within that section that he intended that application of his payments should be made first to that bond. RAMESWAR KOER v MAHOMED MEHDI HOSSAIN KHAN

19 ————— Tender of pardon Effect of—Criminal Procedure Code ss 337 339—Accomplice—Subsequent trial of accomplice for connected offences—A prisoner charged before a Magistrate at Benares with offences punishable under ss 471 472 and 474 of the Penal Code made a confession to the Magistrate in respect of those offences. He was then sent in custody to Calcutta and was there together with other persons charged before a Magistrate with offences punishable under ss 467 473 and 474. The conduct to which these charges related was closely connected and mixed up with that to which the charges first mentioned had reference. Under s. 337 of the Criminal Procedure Code the Magistrate at Calcutta tendered a pardon to the prisoner upon the conditions specified in that section and the prisoner accepted the pardon and gave evidence for the prosecution. The Magistrate held that this evidence was not sufficiently corroborated, and accordingly discharged all the accused but the pardon was not withdrawn and there was nothing to show that the Magistrate was dissatisfied with the prisoner's statements or considered that he had not complied with the conditions on which the pardon was tendered. Subsequently the prisoner was committed by the Magistrate of Benares for trial before the Court of Sessions upon the charges under ss 471 472 and 474 of the Penal Code. He pleaded not guilty but did not in terms plead the pardon as a bar to the trial though he made some reference to the subject and the Sessions Judge having made a brief inquiry as to the proceedings at Calcutta came to the conclusion that there was no sufficient proof of any conditional pardon and convicted and sentenced the accused. Held that by the terms of the conditional pardon granted to the accused by the Calcutta Magistrate the conditions of which were satisfied as was shown by its never having been withdrawn the accused was protected from trial at Benares in respect of the offences under ss 471 472 and 474 and was not liable to be proceeded against in respect of them and that the trial and conviction were therefore illegal. Although s. 337 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not in terms cover a case where a Magistrate holding a preliminary inquiry for commitment against several persons tenders a conditional pardon to one of them examines him as a witness and subsequently discharges all the accused for want of a prima facie case against them the words every person accepting a tender under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case mean that for all purposes (subject to failure to satisfy the conditions of the pardon as provided for by s. 339) such a person ceases to be liable for the offence or offences under inquiry or (with reference to s. 339) for any other offence of which he appears to have been guilty in connection with the same matter while making a full and true disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his knowledge relative to the offences directly under inquiry. The words last quoted refer to the importance when a pardon is tendered of encouraging the approver to give the fullest details so that points may be found in his evidence which may be capable of corroboration. The question of how far the pardon protects him and what portion of it should not protect him ought not to be treated in a narrow spirit. QUEEN EXPRESS v GANGA CHARAN

3 ——— s 32—Power of irregularity—Well in all compound—Manufactory—By a Government notification of the 2nd of June 1863 published in the Gazette it was declared under the provisions of Act VI of 1857 that a certain strip of land passing by the mill of the defendants was required for a public purpose—the Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway—a plan of which land was to be seen in the Collector's office. On the 4th of November following the secretary of the defendants company received a notice signed by the Collector requiring the owner of the mill to call at the Collector's office to signify his acceptance or otherwise of the compensation for the land required. The secretary went to the Collector's office and there saw a plan from which it appeared that an adjoining well from which the engine of the mill was supplied with water was intended to be taken but no compensation for the well and land required was then agreed upon. On the 28th of November a notice, signed by the Collector was received by the defendants stating that he had appointed an arbitrator on behalf of Government and requiring the defendants to appoint an arbitrator also; the defendants in reply stated that they had already appointed an arbitrator. Held that the defendants by appointing their arbitrator did not waive the compensation for the land required nor did any irregularity in the previous proceedings preclude them from claiming to have the well and land taken under s 32. Act VI of 1857 though no proceedings were taken in the arbitration for nearly twelve months subsequently and the defendants had shortly before such proceedings commenced such a claim. HEMCHAND LAL AYOJI vs. *THE GOVT. arbitration comes within s 523 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1859) and may be filed under that section. The section is not confined to cases in which a dispute actually existing at date of agreement is agreed to be referred to arbitration. But the agreement must name the arbitrator or arbitrators and an agreement which provides for the future appointment or election of arbitrators does not fall within the section. The effect of the last clause of s 523 is to give the parties to such an agreement power to nominate the arbitrator even when they have agreed that he shall be appointed by the Court. In such cases the Court must appoint their nominee. FAZLEHOY MEHRAJI CHUNOT v BOMBAY AND PERSIA STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY

An executor having propounded a will applied for probate a caveat was filed denying the execution of the alleged will and the matter was duly registered as a suit. The executor and the caveator subsequently referred the dispute to arbitration and an award was made that the alleged will had not been executed. The executor nevertheless subsequently continued the suit. At the hearing the caveator pleaded the award and contended that it was binding on the plaintiff (executor). The plaintiff (executor) contended that the Court as a Court of Probate had no jurisdiction to try any question as to the award but was limited only to the question of the execution of the will. Held per CANDY J that the Court had jurisdiction to determine the question as to the award. Held also that the award was binding on the executor. GHELLABHAI ATMARAM v NANDUBAI*

37 ——— Appointment of sole arbitrator in place of four—Civil Procedure Code 1859 s 319—Recall of reference—Consent—Appointment of substitute for arbitrator—In a suit for a partnership account the matters in dispute were by an order dated the 19th April 1877 referred by consent to four persons and an umpire the award to be made within five months. Some steps were taken in the reference but the arbitrators failed to make their award within the time limited and meanwhile the umpire died. After negotiations for appointment of a fresh arbitrator and enlargement of the time had failed the plaintiff moved that the order of the 9th April 1877 might be recalled and that the matters in dispute might be referred to the arbitration of such person or persons as the Court might be pleased to admit or be tried and determined by the Court. The defendant opposed the application. An order was however made on the 29th May 1878 that the order of the 19th April 1877 should be recalled and that all matters in difference between the parties should be referred to C D who should make his award in writing within three months or within such further time as the said C D might think necessary. Certain provisions as to the payment of costs were also made. Held that the order of the 19th May was not an order recalling the reference under s 318 and then referring it afresh under s 316 of Act VIII of 1859 but an order under s 319 appointing a new arbitrator in the place of the old ones for which the consent of all parties was not necessary. Under s 319 of Act VIII of 1859 the Court has power to appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators either in the place of an arbitrator or in the place of arbitrators. RAMKESAR v JOGGERNATH 6 C L R., 1

The plaintiffs and defendant referred their dispute to two arbitrators. These arbitrators disagreed in their report and referred the case to the Bombay Chamber of Commerce for the appointment of an umpire. The Chamber of Commerce appointed an umpire who made his award. Held that the appointment of the umpire was invalid. On the application of the plaintiff the Subordinate Judge under s 526 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1859) ordered the award to be filed. Held that the arbitrators had as such an implied power to deal with the costs. The defendant applied to the High Court under its extraordinary jurisdiction praying that the record of the case might be sent for and the order of the Subordinate Judge set aside. Held that the arbitrators had no implied power to deal with the question of costs and that on the defendant's objection the Subordinate Judge should have refused to file the award. 58 ——— Making and filing award—Award made but not filed within time specified by order of Court—Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII of 1859) s 509 and 521—The present suit for dissolution of partnership and all matters in dispute between the parties thereto were by Judge's order dated 15th July 1887 referred to the arbitration of A and B. The time for making and filing the award was by subsequent orders extended to the 18th May 1888. The award was made on that day but was not filed until the 18th June 1888. The second defendant obtained a rule calling on the other parties to show cause (inter alia) why the award should not be set aside by reason of its not having been filed in time. Held that the omission to file the award on or before the 18th May 1888 did not render it invalid. The word made in s 514 and 521 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII of 1859) does not include the filing of the award. UMBERSEY PREMJI v SHALJI KANJI L. L. R. 13 Bom. 119

The first meeting of the arbitrators was held on May 2nd 1867 and four subsequent meetings were held at which all the parties attended and evidence was taken. At the last of which meetings namely on 27th July an objection for the first time was taken on behalf of the defendant that the time limited by the order of reference had expired but the arbitrators proceeded with the reference. The award was made on 19th August 1867 and remained with one of the arbitrators until his death in August 1868. Subsequently it was produced by the other arbitrator on the application of the parties to the suit and delivered to the successful party by whom it was brought

66 — Refusal of arbitrator to reconsider award. The plaintiff in this suit sued the defendants to recover certain moneys payable to him on his marriage which he alleged the defendants had received and appropriated to their own use. The defendants denied that they had received such moneys but admitted that such moneys had been credited by the plaintiff's father to the firm in which they the plaintiff and the plaintiff's father were jointly interested against a larger sum of moneys belonging to the firm which had been expended on the plaintiff's marriage. The parties agreed to refer the matter in dispute between them to arbitration and to abide by the decision of the arbitrator. The arbitrator decided that the plaintiff should not recover the money he sued for and which had been credited to the firm of which he was a partner as a larger sum had been expended on his marriage out of the funds of the firm. The plaintiff obtained the opinion of certain pundits to the effect that under Hindu law gifts on marriage are regarded as separate acquisitions and prayed that the Munsif would remit the award with this point to the arbitrator. The Munsif remitted the award with the pundits requesting the arbitrator to consider them and to return his opinion in writing within a certain period. The arbitrator having refused to act further the Munsif proceeded to determine the suit and gave the plaintiff a decree on the ground that in a joint Hindu family presents received on marriage do not fall into the common fund. Held (1. RAJOO V. J. DAS) that there being no illegality apparent on the face of the award the Munsif was not justified in remitting the award or in setting the award aside and proceeding to determine the suit himself but that he should have passed judgment in accordance with the award. NANAK CHAND v. 67 — Refusal by arbitrator to act—Award on one point only—Remission to arbitrator—Limitation—Adverse possession.

A case was referred for decision to an arbitrator. The arbitrator made his return deciding by the award only one of the issues raised in the case, that the defendants had been in possession of the land in suit for more than twelve years. The plaintiffs and the defendants claimed under the same landlord. The Munsif remitted the award to the arbitrator for determination of the other matters arising in the case the arbitrator however refused to act further in the matter and the Munsif himself took up the case and decided it in favour of the plaintiffs. On appeal the subordinate Judge held that the award made by the arbitrator was subsistent for the determination of the case and reversed the decision of the Munsif and gave the defendants a decree in terms of the award. Held that as the plaintiffs and the defendants claimed under one and the same landlord and the question between them being which of the two had the better title to the land in dispute the case could not have been concluded by the finding of the arbitrator upon the question of possession and that the Munsif had acted rightly, on the arbitrator declining to complete the award in deciding the case himself. JAYARON MUNDUL DAHA v. The arbitrator refused to reconsider it and the Court thereupon proceeded with the suit and gave the plaintiffs a decree. The defendants appealed from such decree on the ground amongst others that the award had been improperly remitted under s. 520. Held that the question whether the award had been properly remitted under s. 520 or not could be entertained in such appeal. ABDUL RAHMAN v. 69 — Omission of arbitrator to carry out terms of reference—Suit for partition and to take an issue.—Civil Procedure Code 1877 ss. 240, 522, 523—Living agreement to refer to arbitration in Court.—De res—The sharers of a joint undivided estate agreed in writing that such estate should be partitioned and the accounts there settled by arbitrators and named one of such sharers as arbitrator and agreed that he should settle all the accounts showing the surplus at each sharer's credit and prepare lists after partition of the lands and houses comprehended in such estate and have them drawn within one year from the completion of the partition. Subsequently one of such sharers applied under s. 523 of Act X of 1877 to have such agreement filed in Court. The other sharers not objecting to this course such agreement was filed accordingly and the case was referred to such arbitrator. The arbitrator made an award whereby he partitioned such estate into lots assigning a moiety only of such lots by name and wherein he stated that he had not been able to settle the accounts owing to the default of the parties and that considering that the partition should take effect without any delay he did not ask for further time. He further stated that all the parties state that they will adjust the accounts after renewing the agreement and he requested that the unassigned lots might be drawn in Court. The Court made an order confirming the award and it being objected that the settlement of the accounts should not be postponed but that they should be settled as agreed directed that the arbitrator should settle the accounts and gave him a year's time for that purpose and some of the parties not being willing to draw the unassigned lots directed the distribution of such lots in reference to the age and number of the sharers. Held that such order was a decree within the meaning of ss. 2 and 5 of Act X of 1877, that the arbitrator should himself have drawn such lots and should have made the parties draw them but inasmuch as it was not shown that the arbitrator had drawn such lots in Court and no objection had been taken to the arbitrator not having himself drawn them it was not incumbent on the Court to have remitted the award in order that the arbitrator might have drawn them. That the Court however should not have distrusted such lots in the manner it had done but should have drawn a lot for each person and in acting as it had done it had acted contrary to the award and that the result of its decree could not be maintained and that in confirming the award before the accounts had been settled and an award made in respect thereof the Court had acted erroneously inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz. the settlement of the accounts and the Court should under s. 53 of Act X of 1877 have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator and as it had the power to remit it up on such terms as it thought fit the Court could have all voided the award and the settlement of the accounts and in this case and also because the Court had made an order postponing the settlement of the accounts and thereby made an order contrary to and in excess of the award its decree must be reversed. *DADA ALI v. The award was remitted on the ground that the arbitrators had not determined the issues Nos 1, 2, 3 and 6. Held (1) the legality of an order remitting an award is the reconsideration of the arbitrators may be challenged on appeal against the decree ultimately passed and (2) that the award ought not to have been remitted there was no illegality on the face of it and there was no decision on the whole matter in issue between the parties. *Moth oranath Zeaures v. It was signed by both defendants and by the plaintiffs' pleader. As the plaintiffs' pleader had not been specially authorized in writing to join in the application the Court postponed making any order on the application till the 23rd idem. On that day the first defendant did not attend the Court but the plaintiffs' pleader produced the requisite authority and the Court made an order referring the suit to the decision of the arbitrator nominated in the application of the 19th. On 27th June the first defendant made an application to the Court to revoke the authority of the arbitrator and appoint a new arbitrator in his place on the ground that after signing the application of the 19th he had become aware of certain circumstances connected with the arbitrator which showed that he was not worthy of the confidence reposed in him. No final order was made upon this application till after the submission of the award when it was rejected on the ground that the charges of misconduct and partiality imputed to the arbitrator were not made out. Held first that the first defendant not having objected to the appointment of the arbitrator on or before the 23rd June 1884 when the order of reference was made must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court and that such acquiescence amounted to a fresh submission. Ardesar Hormormy Wadia v Secretary of State for India 9 Bom 177 and Sreenath Ghose v Ray Chunder Paul 8 W R 171 followed. The objections raised by the first defendant could only be considered after the submission of the award and then only to the extent permitted by s 521 of the Code of Civil Procedure (XIV of 1882). When once a matter is referred to arbitration it is not competent to the Court under the second paragraph of s 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882) to deal with the matter in difference between the parties except as provided in Ch XXVII of the Code. There is no section of that chapter which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator and to appoint a new one except in cases falling strictly within the purview of s 510 of the Code where the scope and object of the reference cannot be executed. It is only in those cases apparently that the authority conferred on arbitrators can be revoked for good cause the cause being such as is contemplated in that section as where an arbitrator refuses or neglects, or becomes incapable to act or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return to India at an early date. The enactment of the second paragraph of s 508 of the Code of 1882 which does not occur in the corresponding section (315) of Act VIII of 1859 has the effect of rigidly restricting the Courts to the exact procedure laid down when dealing with cases in which the appointment of a new arbitrator becomes necessary. HALIMBHAI KARIM BHAI v SHANKAR SAI I L R, 10 Bom, 381

83 ——— Revocation of agreement to have case decided on the evidence of third person—Act X of 1873 (Oaths Act) ss 8-12—Act X of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code) Ch 1 XXVII —The plaintiffs and some of the defendants in a suit agreed that the matters in difference between them in the suit should be decided in accordance with the statement made on oath by one J after he had made a local enquiry into such matters. The Court trying the suit accordingly directed that J should be examined on a certain day. Before J was examined the defendants objected to the case being decided in accordance with J's evidence but the Court disallowed the objection and having taken J's statement on oath decided the case in accordance therewith. Held by STUART C.J. that the provisions of ss 8 to 12 of Act X of 1873 were not applicable to the reference of the case to J that such reference was in the nature of a reference to arbitration under the Code of Civil Procedure that it would have been valid and binding on the parties had all the defendants joined in it but that as all the defendants did not do so the proceedings were illegal and they should be set aside and the suit be decided on the merits. Held by OLDFIELD J. that the reference of the case to J was not made under or governed by the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code relating to arbitration and therefore the defendants were competent to revoke the agreement and that assuming the reference was made under the provisions of the Oaths Act there was no rule of law prohibiting the revocation of such a reference and therefore the defendants were competent to revoke the same. LEKHEAJ SINGH v. award by which the arbitrator to whom the question of the defendants liability under the mortgage and certain other claims which the defendants urged against the plaintiff had been referred had found that the plaintiff was entitled to a particular sum under the mortgage for principal but that as a Mahomedan he was not entitled to any sum for interest. The plaintiff contended that the award was bad. Held on appeal that the plaintiff was not entitled to by reason of interest having been disallowed to treat the award as a nullity that the omission by the arbitrator to allow interest was a mistake which might be rectified by the Court and that the award must be taken to be binding on the plaintiff. Held further that the plaintiff was entitled to proceed on the mortgage and that the sum found due by the award having been a portion of the mortgage debt the plaintiff was entitled to the usual mortgage decree for the sum found due with interest at 24 per cent from the date of the award. ## 99 Maintenance

Grant of villages for—Nature of grant whether absolute or resumable. A grant of villages was made by a talukhdar to his younger son for maintenance. The elder son inherited the family talukh. In the next generation in 1861 an award was made by a body of Oudh talukhdars as arbitrators on the submission of the disputants who directed that the village given as maintenance be decreed in favour of the grantee to continue as heretofore. The questions raised in that award were whether the villages had been granted only for life or were inheritable by the descendants of the grantee and whether the talukhdar or the holder of the grant for the time being was liable for the revenue on the villages. The same questions were now raised by the third generation who were the great grandsons of the grantor on the construction of the award. There was no limitation in the original grant of the villages to the grantee personally nor was the grant expressly declared to be to him and his lineal descendants through males. But possession had followed in that order and the talukhdar had always paid the revenue. The award had never been filed with him six months after the passing of the Oudh Estates Act 1859 did not come within s. 33 of that Act. Held (1) that the award was not on that account invalid. It was obligatory upon both parties to the submission and upon those whose interests they represented. (2) That evidence of the antecedent possession of the villages as well as of the quasi-judicial acts of the arbitrators was admissible. (3) That the terms of the award conferred upon the grantee and his descendants the right to possess the villages free of rent to the talukhdar who remained responsible for the revenue. (4) That the villages could not revert to the talukhdar's line until the line of the grantee's descendants should have become extinct. BHAIYA ARDAWAN SINGH v. UDEY LAL BANERJEE [I L R. 23 Cal. 838]

101 ——— Award allowing maintenance in perpetuity—Enforcing an award beyond lifetime of parties—The plaintiff and the defendant were members of a deshpande family in Khandesh. An arbitration award dated 1838 which was assented to by the ancestors of the parties provided that the defendant's father should continue to hold the deshpande estate and pay a certain allowance to the plaintiff's father and two uncles unless they should see fit to make a partition. The plaintiff alleged that the allowance so fixed was payable in perpetuity and was paid till 1845 when it was stopped and prayed for a decree declaring him entitled to it and arrears for eleven years. Held that effect could not be given to the award as a decree as no Court would pass a decree fixing a grant of maintenance in perpetuity that an allowance fixed by a decree as maintenance was ordinarily liable to be varied on the party ordered to pay it showing circumstances rendering it equitable to make the variation and that there being no reason to suppose that the arbitrators had any idea of fixing the allowance for a longer period than the lifetime of the parties and all these parties being dead no effect could any longer be given to the award. An application to confirm the award was refused on the ground that the letter had been improperly used as evidence. ELAHKEE BUKSH v HAJOO

127 ————— Civil Procedure
Code s 521 cl (a) — Misconduct of arbitrator —
The word misconduct as used in s 521 cl (a) of the Civil Procedure Code should be interpreted in the sense in which it is used in English law with reference to arbitration proceedings. It does not necessarily imply moral turpitude but it includes neglect of the duties and responsibilities of the arbitrators and of what Courts of Justice expect from them before allowing finality to their awards. An arbitrator to whom the matters in difference in a suit were referred under s 508 of the Civil Procedure Code and who was directed by the order of reference to deliver his award by the 22nd September applied on the 17th September for an extension of time on the ground that a very full investigation was necessary which it was not possible to make within the prescribed period. On the 20th September without waiting for the order of the Court he notified to the parties that he proposed to hold an inquiry in the case on the 24th and it appeared that he did not expect this intimation to reach them before the 21st or 22nd. On the 23rd he informed the plaintiff's pleader that a new date would be fixed for the inquiry of which notice would be given to the parties. Notwithstanding this on the 23rd the arbitrator took evidence for the defendant in the absence of the plaintiff and his pleader. All these proceedings were held before the arbitrator received an order of the Court extending the time for delivery of the award up to the 26th October. On the 27th September he directed the parties to be informed that the investigation would be held on the 5th October. On the 4th October the plaintiff presented a petition praying the arbitrator to summon witnesses and to take documentary evidence and upon this a thing definite was settled at the time but after the pleaders had left the arbitrator passed an order rejecting the petition on the ground that the evidence sought to be produced was unnecessary.
On the same date and on the 5th and 6th October he took evidence for the defence in the absence of the plaintiff and his pleader. On the 10th he rejected a petition by the plaintiff praying for further time to produce evidence and complaining of his having taken evidence in the plaintiff's absence and having received in evidence a fabricated document. On the 25th October the arbitrator delivered his award in favour of the defendant. Subsequently upon objections made by the plaintiff the Court set aside the award and directed that the trial of the suit should proceed. Held that although no case of corruption within the meaning of s 521 cl (a) of the Civil Procedure Code had been made out against the arbitrator the circumstances above stated amounted to misconduct and the award was therefore bad in law and had rightly been set aside. *Soobal Thakur

131. ————— In another case heard at the same time and between the same parties the facts were these — The first meeting of the arbitrators was held on the 9th January without any notice to the defendants. It was alleged that nothing was done at this meeting. On that day the arbitrators sent a notice to the appellants appointing the next day (10th) at 6.30 P.M. for the next meeting.
The defendants' attorney thereupon wrote protesting and asked the arbitrators not to proceed, as they intended to apply to the Court. No notice of this protest was taken by the arbitrators and they proceeded with the arbitration on the 10th in the absence of the defendants. On the 11th the defendants' attorney received a notice that the arbitrators would hold a meeting on the 12th at 8 A.M. A meeting was held on that day in the absence of the defendants and an award was made decreeing the suit. Held that the arbitrators did not give the defendants a fair and reasonable opportunity of being heard and were guilty of such misconduct as was sufficient to vitiate the award. Semble — The ex parte meeting on the 10th was alone sufficient to warrant the Court in setting aside the award. *TOOLSEEMOKEY DASSEE v SUDDEV

132 ——— Ground for setting aside award—Arbitrator receiving evidence from one side in absence of other side—Misconduct—Civil Procedure Code (1882) s 521—An arbitrator ought not to hear or receive evidence from one side in the absence of the other side without (if he does) giving the other side affected by such evidence the opportunity of meeting and answering it. This proposition is however subject to the qualification that the parties may agree that a reference may be conducted in any particular way and when an agreement may be either express or implied from their conduct during the arbitration and they may also expressly or by their conduct waive their objection to an irregular course of conduct on the part of the arbitrator. Where an arbitrator received certain papers and documents from the defendants in a suit referred to his arbitration together with a letter from the defendants containing certain documents sent to him and made his award without giving the plaintiffs an opportunity of seeing the said papers and documents and of meeting the inferences deducible from them — Held that there was such a breach of duty on the part of the arbitrator as entitled the plaintiffs to have the award set aside. CURSETJI JENABOIR KHANBATTIA v CROWDER I L R 18 Bom 299

133 ——— Civil Procedure Code ss 509 514 521—Omission to fix time for delivery of award—Extension of time after expiration of period fixed—Invalidity of award if not made within time fixed by Court—Costs—The provision contained in s 508 of the Civil Procedure Code requiring the Court to fix a reasonable time for the delivery of the award is not imperative but directory and non-compliance with it does not make the order of reference abortive and any subsequent arbitration proceeding is ineffectual and bad. Under s 514 of the Code the Court may extend the time for making the award after the time fixed therefor has expired. The last paragraph of s 514 does not imply that an omission by the Court to fix a positive date within which the award is to be filed is fatal to the validity of the award. Where an order extending the time for delivery of an award was made after the time fixed therefor had expired and did not fix any positive date for the filing of the award — Held that the adoption of the award by the Court amounted to an enlargement of the time for delivery of the award to the date on which it was in fact delivered and to a satisfaction of what had been done by the arbitrators and that the justice having made no objection to the action of the Court must be taken to have waived any objection to the award. The mere circumstance of an arbitrator having first tendered and then withdrawn his resignation does not formally divest him of his character as arbitrator. Jogmangsi Singh v Mohan Ram Marwarce 23 W P 429 referred to HAR NARAIN SINGH v BHAGWANT KWAR I L R 10 All 17

Pending that being done the parties applied to the Appellate Court to refer the case to arbitration and that Court referred that application to the original Court for disposal although the case was still pending on its own file for disposal. Subsequently another application was made to the original Court to refer the case to arbitration and on the 10th May the record was sent to the arbitrator with directions to submit his award within seven days. On the 12th September as the award had not been sent in the original Court passed an order recalling the record and subsequently the award of the arbitrator dated the 12th September was filed. The original Court thereupon forwarded the record to the Appellate Court for it. Objections were taken to the award but overruled and the Appellate Court passed an order directing the case to be sent back to the original Court with orders to pass a final decree in accordance with the award of the arbitrator. 150 ————— Award by three arbitrators where reference is to five—Illegal order—The parties to the suit agreed to refer the disputes between them to the arbitration of five persons named by them and did not agree to accept the decision of any less number of persons so nominated. Three only of the arbitrators nominated were proceeding with the arbitration and one had declined to act. The Court which made the reference ruled in favour of the plaintiffs in the suit in which the reference was made the attachments existing on debts due to the defendant in that suit at the instance of the three arbitrators who appeared to authorize the plaintiffs to call in those debts and direct the debtors to pay their debts to the plaintiffs. It was held that assuming that the reference permitted the arbitrators to nominate to authorize either of the parties to call in the debts attached inasmuch as the agreement was unimpaired by any stipulation that a less number than the whole of the arbitrators could determine whether with permission should be given the act of the three arbitrators which led to the issue of the order could not be supported and that the last portion of that order was ultra vires and must be declared void. LAL MEHAR DAT v. 140 ———— Award made out of time—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1899) s 506 514 An appeal was preferred against a decree of an original Court dismissing a suit and the Appellate Court sent the case back for the purpose of certain evidence being taken and certified to it. Pending that being done the parties applied to the Appellate Court to refer the case to arbitration and that Court referred that application to the original Court for disposal although the case was still pending on its own file for disposal. Subsequently another application was made to the original Court to refer the case to arbitration and on the 10th May the record was sent to the arbitrator with directions to submit his award within seven days. On the 12th September as the award had not been sent in the original Court passed an order recalling the record and subsequently the award of the arbitrator dated the 12th September was filed. The original Court thereupon made an order that the record to the Appellate Court for it. On objections were taken to the award but overruled and the Appellate Court passed an order directing the case to be sent back to the original Court with directions to pass a formal decree in accordance with the award of the arbitrator. Some of the defendants applied to the Subordinate Judge to have the effect of a decree given to that portion of the award which was left outstanding by the first decision. The Subordinate Judge overruled the objection without taking any evidence and directed the award to be filed and a decree to be passed thereon. The plaintiff appealed. Held on appeal that as the objection was well founded inasmuch as the agreement to refer was vague and indefinite and did not clearly lay down the power of the arbitrator in dealing with the subject matter in dispute and as it was not possible to make out what powers were intended to be conferred upon the arbitrator the award should not be allowed to be enforced under the provisions of ss 525 and 526. BHINDASSUR PERSHAD SINGH v JANKEE PERSHAD SINGH

The partition of joint estate consisting of different properties having been submitted to arbitration and the parties agreeing to a division being made by steps and that each division should be final without any condition that the award should not be final while part remained undivided. Held in a suit brought by one of the parties for partition of the whole estate after such a division of part that although cases cited as to the invalidity of an incomplete award might have been applicable had the arbitrators awarded as to only part of the property of their own authority and without that of the parties it was competent to the latter to agree before the arbitrators to the division being made as it had been and that here the partition as to the property divided was final. Objections to filing award—Civil Procedure Code 1877 ss 520 and 521—Rejection of application to file award—Consent of parties to jurisdiction.—A dispute between the plaintiffs and defendant having been referred to arbitration and an award made the plaintiffs applied under s 520 of the Civil Procedure Code that the award should be filed in the Munsif's Court. It having been objected that the arbitrators had been guilty of impartiality and other misconduct an issue was framed with the consent of both parties whether the award could be filed and enforced and the Munsif after hearing evidence dismissed the application. On appeal the Subordinate Judge decided that the award was valid. On second appeal—Held that although where an application to file an award under s 520 and objection is made up on any of the grounds mentioned in s 520 or 521 the proper course for the Court is to dismiss the application and leave the applicant to bring a regular suit to enforce the award yet both parties having consented to the matter being tried upon the application as if in a regular suit it could not on second appeal be objected that the lower Courts had acted without jurisdiction.

Showing cause—Sufficient cause.—The term to show cause in ss 520 and 521 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X of 1877) does not mean merely to allege cause in order to make out that there is room for argument but both to allege cause and to prove it to the satisfaction of the Court.

Civil Procedure Code ss 520 521—Partnership—Agreement to refer disputes to arbitration.—The three parties to a deed of partnership agreed that in case of any dispute or difference the matter should be referred to the arbitration of persons chosen by each party to such dispute and that in case any such party should refuse or fail to nominate an arbitrator then the arbitrator named by the other party should nominate another arbitrator and the two should nominate a third person as umpire. Certain differences having arisen among the three partners two of them called upon the executors of the third to nominate an arbitrator under the terms of the deed but they refused to do so. The first mentioned partners then nominated an arbitrator who in his turn nominated another and these having appointed an umpire made an award. One of the partners at whose instance the matter in dispute had been referred to arbitration presented an application under s 25 of the Civil Procedure Code praying that the award might be filed in Court. This application was opposed by the executors of the third partner who appeared and lodged verified petitions disclosing grounds of objection within the meaning of s 520 or s 521 of the Code. Held that the word parties as used in s 520 should not be confined to persons who are actually before the arbitrators but if persons by an agreement have undertaken between themselves that in the event of a certain state of things happening a particular procedure shall be followed which under one state of circumstances may be adopted in another they should for the purposes of s 520 be regarded as parties to that arbitration and that there was sufficient reason to show that the defendants in the present case were prima facie bound by the arbitration so as to bring them within the terms of s 520 as parties thereto who should be called on to show cause why the award should not be filed.

Willson v Storley L R 1 C P 671 and Re Newton and Hetherington 19 C B N S 842 referred to. Held also that as s 520 and 521 of the Code read together mean that the party coming forward to oppose the filing of the award must show cause that is must establish by argument or proof or both reasonable grounds to warrant the Court in arriving at the conclusion that the award is open to any of the objections mentioned in s 520 or s 521 and it is not sufficient when it is sought to make the award a rule of Court for the defeated party to come and merely say upon a verified petition that this or that ground referred to in ss 520 and 521 existed against the filing.

each sitting they came to a decision either unanimously or by a majority on different questions submitted to them. These decisions were entered on the minutes of their proceedings and at their last sitting the arbitrators all agreed and informed the parties that the decisions so arrived at constituted the final award and gave directions for embodying those decisions in the shape of a formal document which was drawn up on a subsequent day but was signed by four only out of the seven arbitrators. The remaining arbitrators not being asked to sign it they never did sign it. Held that the actual award was an oral award made by all the arbitrators on the last day of their joint sitting and the drawing up of the formal award was a purely ministerial act to give effect to the previously completed judicial act. The omission to take the signatures of the minority of the arbitrators to the document which formed the record of the award was not fatal to the award. DANDEKAR v DANDEKARS I L R. 6 Bom. 663

An application by the plaintiff to have the award made a rule of Court was opposed by defendant No 1 and the plaintiff was referred to a regular suit. He now brought his suit in the alternative on the award and on the promissory notes. The award was found to be unenforceable. The plaintiff then declared himself satisfied to withdraw his suit as far as the award was concerned and the Court passed a decree for plaintiff on the merits. Defendant No 3 alone having appealed the Court of first appeal held that the plaintiff must succeed or fail on the award and that the withdrawal of the prayer for a decree on the award altered the nature of the suit and finding that there was no evidence of misconduct on the part of the arbitrators he passed a decree in the terms of the award. If prosecuted the production of the licence at the trial is a sufficient answer to the charge of infringing the Arms Act. Held further that a licence granted to a person to carry arms and including a retainer authorizes any retainer to carry the arms specified with the permission of his master and does not restrict him merely to carry them while in the actual presence of his master. QUEEN EMPRESS v. 9 — ss 19, 20 29—Possession of or control over—Breach of Legality of—Sanction to prosecute—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1878) ss 50 103 and 165—The licence of the accused for the possession of firearms and ammunition was cancelled in August 1897. He was suspected of being in possession of arms after the cancellation of his licence. On the 23rd of April 1899 the Assistant Magistrate of Purneah with a number of police went to the house of the accused to search for arms. They surrounded it arrested the accused, and then searched his house. The police had no search warrants, nor was there anything to show upon what charge the accused was arrested. Two gun stocks some ammunition, and implements for reloading were discovered in the house. There was nothing to show that the sanction required by s 29 of the Arms Act was given before proceedings were instituted against the accused. Accused was convicted and sentenced under ss 19 and 20 of the Arms Act. Held that the conviction under s 20 was not sustainable but that the accused must be taken to have had arms and ammunition as defined by the Arms Act within the meaning of sub s (f) of s 19 of that Act, and the conviction under that section must be confirmed. Held further that with respect to the question of whether or not any previous sanction had been given under s 29 of the Arms Act the Court was not unimpaired of the suggestion that the charge in this case was in the first instance in respect of an alleged offence under s 20 and not of one under s 19 but that ss 19 and 20 were so interwoven that it was difficult to see how an offence could be committed under the first paragraph of s 20 unless an offence under one of the enumerated sub-sections in s 19 had also been committed. It was not suggested that the charge here was an offence under the second paragraph of s 20. AHMED HOSSAIN v QUEEN EMPRESS temple neglected to take out a licence in respect of these arms under Act XI of 1878. A Police Inspector who was appointed to see that the provisions of the latter Act were obeyed searched the temple on information received and having found the arms prosecuted the persons who had charge of the temple. The latter was convicted by the Deputy Magistrate of Patna under s 19 cl (f) of Act XI of 1878 and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs 50 or to be rigorously imprisoned for two months. The Deputy Magistrate also ordered the arms to be confiscated, and directed that their value and the fine should be divided between the informer and the Police Inspector. On a reference from the Sessions Judge of Patna, Held with reference to Act X of 1872 s 579 and the last heading to sch IV of the same Act and to s 19 cl (f) of Act XI of 1878 that the proceedings of the Police Inspector and the conviction of the accused were not illegal. There is nothing in the Arms Act to exempt the custodians of a temple from complying with the requirements of the Arms Act either by taking out a licence or obtaining exemption under s 27. S 25 of the Arms Act appears to refer to cases in which the Magistrate considers that arms whether under a licence or not are possessed for an illegal purpose or under circumstances such as to endanger the public peace. S 30 of the Arms Act appears to contemplate the presence of some specially empowered officer besides the officer conducting the search. EMPASS v TEGHA SINGH

1 — Arrest pending inquiry into insolvency—Application of judgment-debtor to be declared insolvent—Subsequent proceedings in execution against him—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1852) ss 245B 336 337A 344 and 349—G obtained a new decree against M and in execution applied for his arrest and imprisonment. Before the warrant of arrest was issued but after M had appeared in Court in obedience to a notice under s 245B of the Civil Procedure Code another judgment creditor applied for execution of another decree against him. Thereupon M applied under s 344 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1852) to be declared an insolvent and in his application mentioned G as one of his creditors (s 345). The Subordinate Judge referred to the High Court the question whether pending the inquiry into M's insolvency he could be arrested in execution of G's decree against him. Held that there was no provision in the Code to prevent the Court from issuing a warrant of arrest against him. Where however such a judgment debtor is brought before the Court under a warrant of arrest or comes before it upon notice under s 245B the Court has a discretionary power not to put the warrant in force under s 349 or not to issue it under s 336 (where the requisite notification has been published by the Local Government) if the applicant furnishes security for his appearance when called upon. — ss ■ prov (b) 12 and ss 39 151 and 154—Settlement holder his rights under a settlement—Nisf kherajdar his rights to a settlement—The effect of ss 39 and 151 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation 1886 is that a settlement made by a Settlement Officer unless interfered with by the Chief Commissioner is final but the settlement holder does not thereby acquire any right to the land so settled as against any person claiming rights to it. The effect of an order by the Government of India before the passing of the Assam Regulation in regard to the right of a nisf kherajdar to hold lands found upon survey to be in excess of his nisf kheraj estate and to obtain a settlement thereof considered. In 1891 S a nisf kherajdar obtained a settlement for a year of certain lands which were found upon survey to be in excess of his nisf kheraj estate. Subsequently a pottah was granted to S for a portion of the excess lands while the other portion was settled by the revenue authorities under a kopala pottah with V who entered into possession under his settlement. In a suit by S the nisf kherajdar for a declaration of his right to a settlement of the portion settled with V and for possession—Held that having regard to the provisions of s 2 prov (b) s 12 of the Regulation and the order of the Government of India the nisf kherajdar was entitled to a declaration of his right to a settlement but in view of s 154 he was not entitled to a decree for possession. Procedure Code (Act X of 1882) ss 263 272 284 285—The accused was committed for trial to the Sessions Court on a charge of murder. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and claimed to be tried. Thereupon the Sessions Judge chose two assessors but as one of them was ill his attendance was at once dispensed with and the Sessions Judge proceeded with the trial with the aid of the other assessor only. Held that this procedure was illegal and contrary to ss 284 and 285 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1882). The attendance of one of the assessors having been dispensed with before the commencement of the trial the Sessions Judge ought to have chosen another assessor in his place. A trial in the Sessions Court with the aid of assessors does not begin with the reading of the charge as the assessors are chosen under s 272 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1882) only if the accused does not plead to the charge or claims to be tried. QUEEN EMPRESS v. Later on another assessor became too ill to take any further part in the trial and the third assessor was obliged to retire at the beginning of the accused's plea to address to the Court and did not return until it was finished. Held that the law contemplated the continuous attendance of at least one assessor throughout the trial. This condition not having been fulfilled the proceedings before the Sessions Court must be set aside as having (with regard to the provisions of s 268 of the Code of Criminal Procedure) been held before a Court not having jurisdiction. QUEEN EMPRESS v. The trial proceeded with two assessors present but after the Public Prosecutor had closed his case it was discovered that one of the remaining assessors was as deaf as to be incapable of understanding the proceedings. A pension guaranteed payable by the latter by a treaty obligation contracted with another sovereign power is in the strictest sense a political pension. An allowance payable by the Government of India under an arrangement made between the King of Oudh and the Governor General in 1842 for the benefit of members of the King's family and household and their respective heirs in perpetuity and payable to one of such heirs who has inherited it as his share in the interest in the Oudh loan of 1842 is a political pension within the meaning of s 266 sub s (g) Civil Procedure Code 1852. The arrangement of 1842 cannot be treated as merely a provision out of the King's private estate for the maintenance of members of his family there having been in a State like that of Oudh no distinction between State property and private property vested in the sovereign. The lower Court held that as the interest taken by the defendant in the house under her husband's will was only a widow's estate F as her husband's son had an interest in the house (which might be attached by the plaintiffs. The entire estate was vested by the testator in the defendant. No doubt her estate was a widow's estate. Her estate in it closely resembled that of a married woman in England to whom property is given with a restraint against alienation. That being so she was unable to dispose of it but still she was its full owner. The whole property passed to her from the testator. Nothing was left in him. a deed of gift conveyed the 100 bighas to K and ultimately died on 25th January 1883 Plaintiffs then sued to set aside the gift and for possession which she was to hold rent free for her life and that she had been in possession thereof for twenty years Further that U had the right to resume the land and assess it to rent on the death of G and that all the rights and interests of U in the land were attached and sold in 1874 On second appeal it was contended that the interest of U in the land at the time of the sale of the village by auction was in the nature of a mere expectancy and there-that U gave to G the usufruct of the land for the suit was revived. The decree however was returned to the High Court unexecuted. In a suit for partition of the estate of R C deceased brought by P C against B C in the High Court a decree was made in February 1871 for an injunction to restrain B C from intermeddling with the estate or the accumulations and for the appointment of the Receiver of the Court as Receiver to whom all parties were to give up quiet possession. B C was in that suit declared entitled to a moiety of the property in suit. Held on application by D M to the High Court for an order that the Receiver should sell the right title and interest of the widow and son of B C in the estate in his hands to satisfy the balance of his debt that D M was entitled to an order that their interest should be attached in the hands of the Receiver and that the Receiver should proceed to sell the same. On an application to the High Court by the plaintiff decree holder for execution of the decree by attachment held that s 273 provides for the delivery of specific moveable property in the possession of the judgment debtor and was therefore inapplicable to a case where the property sought to be attached was not in the possession of the judgment debtor but of the Bank. Held also that ss 269 and 268 apply to the cases of moveable property belonging to the judgment debtor in the possession of a third party and in that of a Court or public officer respectively and were not therefore applicable where the property sought to be attached had been declared to belong to the plaintiff. The only remedy open to a plaintiff to recover possession of moveable property decreed to belong to him and not in the possession or power of the defendants is to proceed by suit against the person in whose possession or power it is. PRUDHANT SINGH v. Before the cheque was presented by the plaintiff for payment the defendant who was the judgment creditor of R served the Executive Engineer with a notice attaching any money in his hands due by him to P. The Executive Engineer thereupon stopped payment of the cheque the amount of which was eventually paid to the defendant. Held that at the date of the attachment the cheque had become the property of the plaintiff and that the defendant should refund the amount received by him. The second contract was sold to the plaintiff by R and the account in the Executive Engineer's office relating to it was closed, showing a sum of money to P's credit at the date of the defendant's attachment. Held that the plaintiff being the only person really interested, was entitled

*Request to wife with obligation of maintaining and educating children—Interest taken under such bequest—Decree against wife—Attachment of interest under will—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) ss. 265, 274, 276—Assignment of interest while under attachment—B died in 1891 leaving a widow (defendant No. 1) and two sons P and D (defendants Nos. 2 and 3). By his will he bequeathed the residue of his property to trustees (of whom his widow was one) in trust to pay the rents and income thereof to his widow for life, she therewith maintaining, educating and bringing up his children in a manner suitable to their degree in life. After his death the property moveable and immovable was to be divided among his sons equally when D should attain the age of twenty-five. He attained majority in October 1890. At the date of suit D was eighteen years old and P was twenty-five. It was contended that the widow was only a trustee of the rents for the benefit of her sons P and D. On the 13th June 1895 the plaintiffs obtained a decree for Rs. 976 10-10 against the widow and her son P. In execution of that decree they attached under an order dated 2nd July 1895 the immovable properties which had belonged to the testator's estate on the ground that both the widow and P had an interest in them. The attachment was issued under a 2/4 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). The defendants contended that the widow had no attachable interest at all in the said properties she being under the will merely a trustee as above mentioned for her sons and that if she had it was an interest in moveable property which should have been attached under s. 268 of the Code and that the attachment under s. 274 was ineffectual and inoperative. They further alleged that by an assignment dated the 20th February 1896 she had assigned and surrendered her life interest to her son D and that such interest was therefore not available to satisfy the plaintiff's decree against her. As to P's interest the defendants alleged that by a deed of settlement dated the 9th February 1895 it was validly settled for the benefit of himself and his family and that therefore he had no interest in him which could be attached under the order of the 2nd July 1895. Held (1) that the widow had an attachable interest in the property (2) That her interest was an interest in immovable property and was validly attached under s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code. (3) That her assignment of the 20th February 1896 was invalid as against the plaintiffs under s. 276 of the Civil Procedure Code. *NATHA KERRA v. DEUTCHAI of a vritti to attachment and sale in execution of decree—Voluntary conveyances—The nature of an upadhiyana vritti on the River Godavari at Nashik was stated to be as follows. The vritti is an hereditary priestly office by virtue of which certain religious ceremonies are performed on the River Godavari on behalf of pilgrims who pay fees to the holders of such priestly offices for performance of such religious ceremonies at or about the time of their performance. By law and usage a certain relationship grows up between certain pilgrims or worshippers and a particular priest and when such relationship exists such pilgrims or worshippers are called yajmans or clients of the priest whose right to offer and perform the religious ceremonies in question for such yajmans becomes exclusive against rival priests so far that under the Hindu law as applied and followed in this Presidency if any such yajmans accept the religious services of another priest they must compensate the priest whose yajmans they are by giving to him a reasonable fee. Held that such a vritti is a right of personal service within the meaning of cl. 132. — Attachment of money deposited in Court.—Civil Procedure Code (1882) ss. 453 and 454—The term "property" as used in ss. 453 and 454 of the Code of Civil Procedure is wide enough to include property of every description moveable and immovable whether in the actual possession of the defendant or of some other person on his behalf; and the words the Court may require him to produce and place at the disposal of the Court only refer to such property as is capable of being produced in Court. Where property ordered to be attached is deposited in the Court which made the order for attachment that order is sufficient notice to itself that the property ordered to be attached is to be held subject to the further orders of the Court, and it is not necessary that a separate formal notice should be drawn up. *Chen v. 133. — Attachment before judgment of Company's property.—Winding up Company—See Inquest Manager of Company—Company is a party to the suit—Remedy of liquidator—Appeal—Civil Procedure Code (1882) ss. 233 493 497 589 and 623—The Dhulia Manufacturing Company Limited, carried on business at Dhulia and had its registered office at Bombay. One M was the manager at Dhulia and he had authority to borrow money and draw drafts on behalf of the company. In August 1894 the directors opened negotiations for the sale of the company's factory in one H and in September 1894 while the negotiations were pending a special resolution was passed to wind up the company voluntarily. The resolution was confirmed in October 1894 and A was appointed liquidator under s. 177 of the Indian Companies Act (VI of 1884). In December 1894 the liquidator agreed to sell the factory to H for the said sum of Rs 38,000. Under the agreement H was to enter into possession of the factory but the company was to have a lien upon it until the completion of the purchase which was to take place in May 1895. A month before the date fixed for the completion of the sale the plaintiff filed a suit in the Court of the first class Subordinate Judge of Dhulia against M the manager of the company in his individual capacity and as manager of the company. His claim was professedly against the company but he did not make the company which was then in liquidation a party to the suit. Subsequently the plaintiff applied for and obtained an order for attachment before judgment of the company's factory at Dhulia. No notice of the application or of the order made on it was given to the liquidator. He at once applied to the Court to raise the attachment contending that the Court had no power to attach the property of the company which was not a party to the suit. The Court made the company a party and dismissed the liquidator's application confirming its previous order for attachment. The liquidator appealed to the High Court. Held that the order of attachment should be reversed. The intended sale by the liquidator which was the sole reason for making the order was not with intent to obstruct any decree that the plaintiff might obtain against the company but was being effected by the liquidator in the course of his duty and in pursuance of a contract entered into long before the suit was instituted. The plaintiff's claim if established would be satisfied pari passu with the other debts of the company. The plaintiff was not entitled to security for his claim in preference to the other creditors. It was contended that no appeal lay against the order of the Subordinate Judge and that the liquidator's sole remedy was by suit under ss. 233 and 457 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XVI of 1882). Held that the company having been made a party to the suit the order of attachment was made under s. 453 of the Civil Procedure Code and consequently under s. 639 an appeal lay from that order. If the company had not been made a party the High Court would have set aside the order of attachment under s. 629 of the Code as in that case the Subordinate Judge would have had no jurisdiction to make it. *MIR ALI MAHOMED PATEL v. That an attachment whether before or after judgment places the property in the custody of the law. That if property have been attached before judgment there is no need of a second attachment in the same suit after judgment. That the words attachment before judgment in s. 89 of Act VIII of 1882 must be read as equivalent to attachments in pending suits or in other words the phrase before judgment must be read as meaning until after judgment. *RAJCHUNDER ROY v. The master being about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court with his vessel the plaintiffs under s 477 of the Code of Civil Procedure applied for an order that the defendant should give security for his appearance to answer any decree that might be passed against him and a rule was issued calling on him to show cause why such security should not be furnished. The defendant showed cause and alleged that the amount claimed for the repairs was excessive that the repairs were badly done that the plaintiffs were not entitled to dock hire and that some of the repairs charged for had not been executed. He further counter claimed for a large sum for demurrage owing to the detention of his vessel and damages caused to it by the wrongful act of the plaintiffs. It was contended that as the claim was on a contested account which on the face of it was stated but unsettled on the principle of the English authorities the plaintiffs were not entitled to the order asked for. It was further contended that the suit was not a bond fide one but brought merely to harass the defendant and that for this reason security should not be ordered to be given. It was not disputed that the defendant had no domicile in this country and that he was shortly leaving in his vessel in the ordinary course of his business. The Court found the plaintiffs were undoubtedly entitled to recover some amount on account of repairs and that the mere fact that the plaintiffs added on to such a claim one of a disputable character did not go to show that the suit was not a bond fide one. Held that there is no authority for saying that the principles applied in England to the granting of writs ne exeat regno should be applied in this country that the Court can only look to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure that when a person comes on business to this country in which he has no property or domicile and enters into a contract with a person to do work in connection with that business and which must be done before he leaves the country and it is known he intends to leave as soon as the work is completed there is an implied understanding if the work was done on his credit that it should be paid for before he leaves. Held also that the case fell within the provisions of s 477 of the Code and that the defendant should furnish security for his appearance while the suit was pending, within a week in terms of s 479 such security to be for the amount of the claim. PROBODER CRUDDER MILLICK v DOWDY

Meanwhile in December 1885 a decree for pre-emption in respect of a sale by the judgment-debtors in 1881 of their musaf interests in the village was decreed in favour of persons who were not parties to the litigation in which the attachment of 1884 was effected. The plaintiffs (who were in possession) sued for a declaration of their right to the musaf interests as against the auction-purchaser under the sale of January 1886. Held that the attachment in 1884 was not a good attachment of the musaf interests of the judgment-debtors, and the auction-purchaser could not be held to have purchased those musaf interests and the title of the plaintiffs under their pre-emptive decree of December 1885 must prevail. HABIB LAL SINGH v. On reference to the High Court—Held that the order of attachment was ultra vires as neither the defendant nor his disbursing officer resided within the jurisdiction of the Bhusaval Court. 205 ——— Attachment before judgment—Termination of attachment—Sale in execution—Material irregularity in publishing or conducting sale without attachment—Order—Civil Procedure Code ss 311 453—The plaintiff instituted a suit against the defendant for recovery of money and previous to judgment that is on the 8th January 1885 applied for and on the 11th obtained orders for attachment of several houses and premises belonging to defendant and such attachment was made. The suit was dismissed but eventually on appeal it was decreed but the attachment was never withdrawn. Plaintiff then applied for execution of his decree and his application was granted by an order directing that the property of the judgment-debtor should be notified for sale on the 1st February 1887 and accordingly on the 21st December 1886 a sale notification was issued. Judgment-debtor twice applied for postponement of sale but his applications were refused and the sale took place on the date fixed. The judgment-debtor then objected to the confirmation of the sale urging that the property sold was never attached in execution of the decree and the attachment previous to judgment was infructuous because afterwards the claim was dismissed by the Court of first instance that there had been several other irregularities in publishing and conducting the sale; and that owing to the irregularities property had been sold at a grossly inadequate price causing substantial injury. The Subordinate Judge overruling the objections confirmed the sale. On appeal by the judgment-debtor—Held following Mahadeo Dubey v. Bhola Nath Dicht I. L. R. 5 All 86 that a regularly perfected attachment is an essential preliminary to sales in execution of decrees for money and where there has been no such attachment any sale that may have taken place is not simply voidable but de facto void and may be set aside without any inquiry as to substantial injury being sustained by the judgment-debtor for want of a valid attachment; and that an attachment before judgment like a temporary injunction becomes functus officio as soon as the suit terminates. Further that the phrase a material irregularity in publishing or conducting in the first paragraph of s 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure should be liberally construed and that absence of attachment of property at the time of sale thereof is a material irregularity attachment being the first step which a Court in executing a simple money decree has to take to assert its authority to bring property to compulsory sale. RAM CHAND v. 5 PRIORITY OF ATTACHMENT

211 Question of priority of attachment—Attachment under decree of High Court of property already attached under decree of Small Cause Court—Claim to attached property by what Court to be decided—Civil Procedure Code (1882) s 272—In execution of a decree obtained in the High Court the plaintiffs on the 22nd of March 1895 attached certain property of the defendant which however had been already attached on the 22nd of February 1895 by one B who had obtained a decree against defendant in the Court of Small Causes. The plaintiffs attachment was therefore effected under s 272 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) by a notice addressed by the Prothonotary of the High Court to the Registrar of the Small Cause Court. The claimant was mortgagee in possession and the defendants were his tenants. On the 26th February he had lodged a claim in the Small Cause Court to the said property as mortgagee in possession and on the 2th March 1895 a consent order was passed by the Chief Judge of that Court directing that B's attachment should stand subject to the claimant's claim. On the 22nd April 1895 the claimant applied to the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court to issue a notice to the plaintiffs in this suit under s 272 of the Civil Procedure Code to determine the question of priority of claim to the attached property between him and the plaintiffs. His application was refused the Chief Judge being of opinion that he could not interfere in a High Court suit. The claimant then filed his claim in the High Court and took out this summons to remove the plaintiffs attachment. Held that under s 272 of the Civil Procedure Code the Small Cause Court was the only Court to decide the question of priority between the claimant and the plaintiffs. JAY NARAYAN MEGHNAI v ISMAIL KURIMA attached before judgment during the continuance of the attachment is void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment. Twelve years after the attachment no further steps having been taken in the matter the execution case was struck off the file and the property was afterwards mortgaged by the judgment debtors to J. Subsequently a fresh attachment was issued at the instance of the holder of the former attaching creditor and in which the property was put up for sale subject to J. as mortgagee and J. herself became the purchaser. In a suit by R. to set aside the judgments granted during the continuance of the first attachment—Held that the prohibition against alienation of property under attachment avoids such alienation in only as against the execution creditor or persons entitled to claim under him. A conveyance executed by the judgment debtor after an attachment has been removed and before a fresh attachment is issued is valid though the second attachment is under the same execution as the first. Quære—Whether an alienation of property under attachment void as against the execution creditor becomes valid by relation when the attachment is removed. Settle—It may be presumed that an execution long neglected and finally struck off has ceased to be operative and in that case a judgment creditor's title will only date from any subsequent attachment which he may obtain. PUDDOMONZE DOSSEE v. Code (1882) s 273—Dismissal for an application for execution—Attachment of a decree—Execution of attached decree—The holder of a decree dated 1885 applied to execute it but his application was dismissed in March 1887 on the ground that no further steps had been taken. It did not appear that any notice was given to him before the order of dismissal was made. Nevertheless the decree holder proceeded to execute a decree of the judgment debtor attached by him and brought to sale certain property which was in question in the present suit and it was purchased bona fide by the present defendant who obtained a sale certificate from the Court. The present plaintiff claimed as assignee from the holder of the attached decree to execute it against the same land and now sued for a declaration that it was liable to be brought to sale by him and that the defendant's purchase was void as against him. Held (1) that under the circumstances of the case the attachment in execution of the decree of 1885 was subsisting at the time of the purchase by the defendant (2) that a judgment creditor who attaches a decree is competent to execute it. RANGASAMI CHETTI v PERIASAMI MUDALI I. When either the decree holder or his assignee applies to have attachment under the decree of property which has been previously attached under the decree it lies upon the decree-holder or the assignee of the decree as the case may be if the question is raised to show that the second application was unnecessary by reason of the first attachment being still subsisting. The attaching creditor thereupon sued for and obtained under s 283 of the Code a declaration that the mortgaged property was nevertheless liable to be sold under this attachment. A few days after obtaining such decree he again attached the judgment debtor's property. The mortgagees then sued on their mortgage and obtained a decree for sale. The sale in execution of the attaching creditor's decree and that ordered by the decree in favour of the mortgagees were both advertised for the same day. The plaintiff purchased at the sale under the attaching creditor's decree and then sued for a declaration that the property was not liable to be sold in execution of the mortgage-decree on the ground that the judgment creditor's attachment was restored by the decree under s 283 of the Code and that the mortgage executed by the judgment debtors was invalid as against the plaintiff the purchaser at the execution sale. Held (affirming the decisions of the Subordinate Judge and the District Judge) that the plaintiff was entitled to the decree sought. Alahommed Waris v Pitambar Sein 21 W. A took out the money but applied for and obtained an order from the Munsif that the property should remain under attachment in order to satisfy any future sum which should fall due under the decree and in payment of which B should make default. A failed to pay a further instalment when due and A obtained an order for sale of the property. Subsequently B mortgaged a portion of this property to C. A assigned his decree to D upon whose application the property was attached and sold and C became the purchaser. 248 ----- Alienation under attachment making material error in description of property—Civil Procedure Code 1877 s. 276—Attachment of immovable property—Private alienation after attachment—Application was made for the attachment in execution of a decree of a muafi holding, belonging to the judgment debtor. The numbers and areas given in such application as the numbers and areas of the lands comprised in such holding were the numbers and areas of certain revenue paying lands and were not the numbers and areas of any lands held as muafi by the judgment debtor. The order of attachment described the property as described in the application for attachment. The judgment debtor later alienated by sale a muafi holding belonging to him the decree holders sued to have such alienation set aside as void under the provisions of s. 276 of Act X of 1877 Held that having regard to the description given in the application for attachment and the order of attachment it could not be said that the muafi holding alienated by the judgment debtor was under attachment at the time of the alienation and its alienation was therefore not void under s. 276 of Act X of 1877 Held also that the material misdescription of the property in this case in the order of attachment protected the alienor who are bona fide purchasers from having the alienation set aside as void under s. 276 as the attachment could not under the circumstances be held to have been duly intimated and made known as required by that section. 258 — Extinguishment of attachment—Act VIII of 1859 s 270—Execution of decree—Striking off execution case—Money decree—A obtained a decree against C for possession and mesne profits but no specific amount of mesne profits was then assessed. In 1864 A in execution of his decree attached land belonging to C but the execution case was struck off the file in 1865. After several ineffectual proceedings A re-attached the property in March 1869. In execution of a decree against C B had in February 1869 attached the same property. The property was sold under A's attachment in May 1869 and on the application of A the Subordinate Judge on the strength of A's attachment in 1864 gave priority to A's claim over that of B. The balance of the sale proceeds after satisfaction of A's decree was only sufficient to cover a small portion of the decree obtained by B. In a suit by B against A under s 270 Act VIII of 1859 to recover the amount of her claim which remained unsatisfied—Held that the attachment of A in 1864 on the strength of which A's claim was considered by the Subordinate Judge to have priority over that of B was not a sufficient and valid attachment under s 270. The attachment contemplated by that section means an attachment after a final money decree. Held also that the striking off of the execution case of A in 1865 caused an extinguishment of the effect of the attachment of 1864. BINDA BIBEK v LAILA GOPPENATH (14 B L R. 323 21 W R. 86)

275 ——— Stay of execution on security pending appeal.—Alienation pending attachment—Striking off execution case on inability to give security—While an appeal from a decree was pending before the Privy Council the decree holder (M) applied for execution and attached the property of the judgment debtor (D) who thereupon obtained an order of the High Court for stay of sale until security would be furnished. The decree holder having failed to furnish adequate security the execution case was struck off. The appeal to the Privy Council having been dismissed the decree holder revived execution proceedings adding costs and interest to her original claim. Upon this a third party intervened and objected to the attachment on the ground that he had obtained a mokurari pottah of the properties from B's representative. The objection having been allowed under Act VIII of 1859 s. 246 M brought suit to have the mokurari declared to be null and fictitious. Held that plaintiff was not required to cause M to admit proprietary right to be sold before she could maintain her suit. Held that the act of the Court in striking off the execution proceeding because of the inability of the decree holder to furnish the required security was only for the convenience of business and it left intact all the proceedings which had been taken up to that stage nor did the decree holder abandon the attachment which was therefore subsisting when the mokurari pottah was granted. Accordingly the alienation of the property by the pottah was invalid and inoperative. SOONDUR SINGH v. BUNOORIA ALUM BASHIR [24 W R. 38]

2 ——— Mischief by fire

—Possession of a fire ball—Held by GLOVER J that incendiarism having on several occasions occurred in a village produced by a ball of rag with a piece of burning charcoal within it and the prisoner one evening being discovered to have a ball of that description concealed in his dhoti which contained burning charcoal he is under s 511 of the Penal Code guilty of an attempt to commit mischief by fire. The possession of the instrument to commit mischief by fire and the going about of the person with it are sufficient to raise a presumption that he intended to commit the act and had already begun to move towards the execution. These facts are sufficient to constitute an attempt. Held by MITTER J that the possession of a fire ball and moving about with it cannot support a conviction under ss 436 and 511 of the Penal Code. These facts are not sufficiently indicative of an intention to destroy a building used for human dwelling. To constitute an offence under s 511 of the Penal Code it is not only necessary that the prisoner should have done an overt act towards commission of the offence but that the act itself should have been done in the attempt to commit it. QUEEN v. 4. ——— Attempt to murder—

Inconsistency between English Law and Penal Code—In order to constitute the offence of attempt to murder under s 307 of the Penal Code the act committed by the prisoner must be an act capable of causing death in the natural and ordinary course of events. Aliter under s. 511 taken in connection with ss 299 and 300. Therefore where the prisoner presented an uncapped gun at F G (believing the gun to be capped) with the intention of murdering him but was prevented from pulling the trigger—Held that he could not be convicted of an attempt to murder upon a charge framed under s 307 of the Penal Code but that under the same circumstances he might be convicted upon a charge of simple attempt to murder framed under s 511 in connection with ss 299 and 300. Apparent inconsistency between the English law with reference to attempts is laid down in Reg v Collins 33 L J M C 177 and the provisions of the Indian Penal Code explained. REG v. CASSIDY of killing him. The deceased fell down senseless on the ground. The accused believing that he was dead set fire to the hut in which he was lying with a view to remove all evidence of the crime. The medical evidence showed that the deceased was struck by the accused with a thick stick to cause death, and did not cause death, and that death was really caused by injuries from burning when the accused set fire to the hut. Held (PARONS J. dissenting) that the accused was guilty of attempt to murder under s. 30 of the Penal Code. QUEEN v. EMPRESS & KHANDE. I. L. R. 15 Bom. 104.

6 ——— Facts necessary to constitute such attempt — All of the Penal Code does not apply to attempts to commit murder which are fully and exclusively provided for by s. 30 of the said Code. A person is criminally responsible for an attempt to commit murder when with the intention or knowledge requisite to its commission he has done the last proximate act necessary to constitute the completed offence and when the completion of the offence is only prevented by some cause independent of his volition. QUEEN v. EMPRESS & VIDHA. I. L. R. 14 All. 38.

7 ——— Intention—Knowledge of probable consequences of act—Presumption — Where a woman of twenty years of age was found to have administered datura to three members of her family it was held that she must be presumed to have known that the administration of datura was likely to cause death although she might not have administered it with that intention. QUEEN v. EMPRESS & TELHA. I. L. R. 20 All. 143.

8 ——— A young Brahmin widow was confined of a child. The chief constable of police acting as he stated on information that the accused was about to kill a baby went to search her house with a number of men and found her lying on the first floor and discovered on the second floor a living new-born child wrapped up in a cloth with a cooking pot turned over it. The Sessions Judge convicted the accused of attempt to murder. The High Court on appeal reversed the conviction on the ground that the evidence was insufficient to support it. REG v. CHIMA. [8 Bom. Cr. 164]

9 ——— Attempt at dacoity — s. 511 of the Penal Code does not apply in a case of dacoity. Where a prisoner was found guilty of an attempt at dacoity under that section and of causing grievous hurt in such attempt under s. 397 and a sentence of three years rigorous imprisonment was passed on him the finding was amended by striking out s. 397 and 511 and substituting s. 39. *QUEEN v. conviction for an attempt to fabricate false evidence. QUEEN v. MUDA. 4 N. W. 133

11 ——— Attempt to commit forgery—Penal Code ss 467 511—Intention to commit offence — To constitute the offence of attempt under s. 511 Penal Code there must be an act done with the intention of committing an offence and for the purpose of committing that offence and it must be done in attempting the commission of the offence. The provisions of s. 511 Penal Code do not extend to make punishable as attempts acts done in the mere stage of preparation. Although such acts are doubtless done towards the commission of the offence they are not done in the attempt to commit the offence within the meaning of the word attempt as used in the section. QUEEN v. HANSARU CHOWBEY. [4 N. W. 48]

12 ——— Penal Code ss 467 and 511—Forgery—Facts necessary to constitute an attempt—Abetment — One C calling himself K the son of B went to a stamp vendor accompanied by a man named A S and purchased from him in the name of A a stamp paper of the value of 4 annas. The two men then went to a petition writer and C again giving his name as A they asked the petition writer to write for them a bond for Rs 10 payable by K to K S. The petition writer commenced to write the bond but his suspicions being aroused did not finish it but took C and A S to the nearest thana. Held that under the above circumstances A S was rightly convicted of an attempt to commit the offence defined in s. 467 of the Penal Code and C of abetment of the said attempt. QUEEN v. RAM SARAN CHOWBEY & N. W. 46 referred to. QUEEN v. EMPRESS & KALYAN SINGH. [I. L. R. 16 All. 408]

13 ——— Attempt to cheat—Penal Code ss 417 511 — In a prosecution for an attempt to cheat under ss 417 511 of the Penal Code the accused was charged and convicted of having at the central octroi office made false representations as to the contents of certain kuppas (skin vessels) the object of which was to obtain a certificate entitling him to obtain a refund of octroi duty. Prior to granting the certificate the octroi officers examined the contents of the kuppas and found that the representations of the accused regarding them were untrue. In consequence of this discovery no certificate was given to him and he was charged and convicted as above mentioned. The procedure necessary for obtaining a refund of octroi duty was that the central office on satisfying itself that the articles produced were of the nature stated would grant a certificate which certificate would have to be indorsed by the outpost clerk when he passed the goods (on which refund was claimed) out of the town and the owner would have to take back the certificate so indorsed to the central office and present it to be cashed. Held that even assuming the accused to have falsely represented the contents of the kuppas as alleged he had not completed an attempt to cheat but had only made preparation for cheating and that the conviction must therefore be set aside. QUEEN v. EMPRESS & DRUMI. I. L. R. 8 All. 304

It appeared from the evidence that the Currency Office never contemplated paying M in respect of the notes. The form was filled up and signed by M and returned by him to the Currency Office. a further mortgage executed which included the original sum with the interest then due and the further advance. Further advances were made in the same way in October 1871 and March 1876. In all these transactions the defendant had no independent professional advice and the mortgages were prepared in the plaintiff's office but not charged for. In a suit to recover the sum due on the mortgages by sale of the mortgaged property the plaintiff abandoned any accumulation of interest since the date of the third mortgage. Held that the defendant notwithstanding he had declined the offer of the plaintiff in 1869 to tax the bills and notwithstanding the delay that had taken place was entitled (having regard to the relation between the parties and to the fact that a portion of the costs was incurred in suits then pending) to have the bills taxed and to re-open the account. Under the circumstances the Court would not infer acquiescence from the delay on the part of the defendant nor did the plaintiff's offer to tax and the defendant's refusal of that offer debar the defendant of his right to have the bills taxed in the usual way. Held also that there is no rule which prevents an attorney from taking security or otherwise arranging with his client for the payment of costs which have actually become due and that the plaintiff was entitled to sale of the property to accumulations of interest prior to the date of the third mortgage calculated by allowing annual rests to interest at 10 per cent as being a fair rate for the client to have undertaken to pay when the mortgages were executed and to interest on his costs. MORRIS DOSS & POMANATH LAW

—Title deeds delivered for specific purposes—Right to re delivery—D an attorney who had a lien against C for costs on the title-deeds of certain property belonging to C for whom he had been acting in negotiations for the sale of the property delivered the deeds at the request of C to M who was acting as attorney for J an intending purchaser. M on obtaining the deeds signed a receipt for them by which he undertook to return them on demand without claiming any lien for costs or otherwise. D subsequently ceased to act for C in the matter of the sale of the property of which J became the purchaser. The title deeds remained with M. Held that D was entitled to have re delivery of the deeds to him from M even independently of the express contract to return them. He did not give up possession of them to C by delivering them to M though that was done at C's request. IN THE MATTER OF MACKETICH

11 — Lien for costs—
Lien on documents—Discharge by dissolution of partnership—Contract Act (IX of 1872) ss 171
—Where a firm of attorneys dissolved partnership after the death of a client there being at that time papers and documents belonging to the client in their hands and a debt due in respect of costs from the client to them—Held that the dissolution of partnership operated as a discharge by the firm and that the attorneys were not entitled to retain the papers and documents until their costs were paid, but were bound to hand them over to the administrator of the client. S. 171 of the Contract Act does not give an attorney an absolute lien. S. 1 provides that nothing in the Act contained shall affect any usage or custom of trade and as no part of the English law is inconsistent with a. 171 cases arising in this country must be governed by the English authorities. According to those authorities while the relation of attorney and client exists the attorney may either continue to employ the attorney himself. When he claims to do the latter it is not sufficient to say that he is not willing to act he cannot ask the attorney to give up papers in his possession without giving notice to the attorney. The attorney has no choice either to go on acting to act or to give up the papers. On the death of the client the attorney is entitled to the papers in exactly the

Lien on translation of documents.—Messrs P and W were solicitors for the plaintiff in this suit from its commencement. When the case was about to appear in the list for hearing Messrs P and W wrote to the plaintiff requesting her to send them an advance of Rs 1000 to enable them to deliver briefs to counsel. They received no reply from the plaintiff who afterwards obtained leave to sue as a pauper and appeared by other solicitors Messrs P and W were subsequently served with a subpoena to produce at the hearing certain translations and other documents relating to the plaintiff's case which had remained in their possession and upon which they claimed a lien in respect of costs due to them by the plaintiff. Held that Messrs P and W could not be compelled to produce. A solicitor who is discharged by his client holds the papers entrusted to him subject to his lien for costs and the plaintiff by her conduct had discharged Messrs P and W from being her solicitors. A solicitor has the same lien upon translations as he has upon other documents and the fact that they have been made by the Court's interpreters makes no difference. Having got the work done and paid for it he need not part with such translations or produce them except on terms which will secure him against fraud. BAI KESSEBBAI v. NARANJI WALJI

The plaintiff not having satisfied in full his attorney's taxed bill of costs the attorney applied for payment out of the fund in Court. Previously to this application the fund had been attached by a third party. Held that the attorney was entitled to enforce his lien as against the attaching creditor for all costs incurred up to the date of attachment that the attaching creditor was then entitled to be satisfied before the attorney could claim payment out of the balance in Court of any sum remaining due to him on account of his costs. SUBRAMANYAN BETTY v. No attorney has a right to insist on the payment of past costs as a condition to the further prosecution of his client's cause. ## BANKERS

1. — Deposit of money—Obligation to keep funds separate—Breach of trust—Commission agents—The insolvents carried on business as bankers and commission agents receiving the money of their constituents on deposit for investment or for remittance charging a commission on each transaction and allowing 4 per cent interest on deposits. An opposing creditor one of their constituents, sent them in April 1879 a letter instructing them to invest Rs 40,000 in municipal debentures. The insolvents failed in November and it was found on the evidence that they could not have procured the desired quantity of municipal debentures without paying more than the market price for them. They purchased Rs 18,000 worth of such debentures and were debtors to the opposing creditor for the balance. Held that the money was in their hands as bankers and not as agents and thus being so they were not bound to keep the Rs 40,000 separate from their own funds nor even after the letter received in April to set it apart for investment. 2. — Loss of hundi—Negligence—Criminal act of Bank servant—A sent a hundi by post to a bank. The bank presented it for payment by one of its servants B who brought it back reporting that payment had been refused. The manager of the bank with the intention of returning it to A placed it in an envelope sealed and stamped, which was laid upon the table ready for the post it being the custom of the bank to post all letters in that manner. The hundi did not reach A and it afterwards appeared that B presented it for payment the following day and obtained cash for it. Held that the bank was guilty of such neglect as to render it liable to A for the amount of the hundi. PEOPLE'S BANK v. ORBARD

to pay dividends to shareholders at a time when the bank is insolvent and cannot legally pay dividends. In the case of a bank registered under the Indian Companies Act as a company limited by shares and governed by the regulations contained in table A in the first schedule to the Act it was held that the directors had dominion over the property and the management of the funds of the bank that they were bound not to pay dividends except out of the profits of the bank; and that if they dishonestly that is knowingly and intentionally paid dividends to the shareholders out of deposits when there were no profits, intending to cause gain to themselves or others to which they were not entitled or to cause wrongful loss to other persons they were guilty of criminal breach of trust as bankers under s. 409 of the Penal Code but that the manager and the accountant or assistant manager were not within the meaning of the section, persons who were entrusted with property or with dominion over property as bankers or agents and therefore did not come directly under s. 409 though they might be guilty of abetment under s. 409 read with s. 109 by conspiring with the directors to commit criminal breach of trust if they assisted the directors to obtain the sanction of the shareholders to the illegal payment of dividends and did so for the dishonest purpose of causing wrongful gain or wrongful loss. Whether the illegal payment of dividends under the circumstances stated could be regarded as causing wrongful loss to the bank as a corporate body quære. Whether moneys deposited in the bank by its customers and not in any way earmarked could after such deposit be regarded as property of the depositors within the meaning of s. 409 quære. Held also that if the directors manager and accountant dishonestly that is to obtain wrongful gain for themselves or to cause wrongful loss to others, put before the shareholders balance sheets which they knew to be materially false and misleading and likely to mislead the public as to the condition of the bank and concealed its true condition and thereby induced depositors to allow their money to remain in deposit in the bank they were guilty of cheating in the aggravated form made punishable by s. 418 of the Penal Code and if they acted together to put forward such a false balance sheet they were guilty of abetment by conspiracy to cheat. Semble—The making of such a false balance sheet is not an offence within s. 191 of the Penal Code and where it is made prior to the commencement of the winding up of the company is not an offence within s. 216 of the Companies Act (VI of 1882). A balance-sheet of a company under the Indian Companies Act must be a true balance sheet in the sense that it must represent the actual state of the company's assets and liabilities. If it falsely states the condition of the company it is a false balance-sheet per se and the accounts as shown in it be false or not, and correctly represents what is in the books a balance-sheet which shows all the assets and liabilities of a company amounting to Rs 25 lakhs whereas the actual assets without allowing for reserves amount to Rs 10 lakhs and the liabilities amount to Rs 15 lakhs, which of such a balance-sheet is presented to the shareholders and the directors are not guilty of an offence.

and also showed a divisible balance of profits amounting to Rs 19,000 the facts being that out of the Rs 23 lakhs some Rs 13 lakhs were bad and irrecoverable and that the capital reserve fund and other provision for bad debts had been lost and that the company instead of making profits was and long had been insolvent was found to be false and misleading. Having regard to the nature of the charges above referred to the Court under s 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure rejected an application by the defence that the accused should be tried separately. QUEEN EMPRESS v MOSS I L R 16 All 88

The condition being fulfilled G collected moneys for A under the decree and retained the sum promised. It was not proved that A assented to the appropriation by G of the sum retained in payment of the promised present. A sued G to recover the sum retained. Held (1) that if G was to be regarded as a barrister he was under a disability to contract with A as to his fees (2) that if G was to be regarded as a pleader he was prohibited by a Circular Order of the Sudder Adalat from enforcing this contract. Semle—The decision in Kennedy v Brown 13 C B N S 677 governs all agreements made by members of the English Bar in that character. ACHAMPARAMBATH CHERIA MUTHIAM v GANTZ I L R. 3 Mad. 138

The degree of barrister is but one of the qualifications for admission and enrolment as an advocate of the High Court. Where the defendant a barrister who was not admitted an advocate of the High Court or specially authorized to plead in the superior Court accepted a vakalatnamah from the plaintiff to defend him upon a charge pending in the Session Court and the defendant failed to appear on the day to which the trial of the plaintiff was adjourned and the plaintiff sued the defendant to recover the amount of the fee paid—Held that the suit was maintainable. KANTHA ROW v METTUKISTNA 4 Mad. 244

5 —Barrister with right to act as advocate and attorney—Where a barrister renders services which go beyond his profession as a barrister his incapacity to recover fees as a barrister does not extend to such extra professional services and where as in Burma the law enables an advocate to recover fees and a barrister acts both as an advocate and in other capacities the remuneration claimed by him ought to be divided into two parts and while in that part of his services in which he acts as attorney he should be allowed to recover fees

The plant then alleged a subsequent sale by the three first defendants to the plaintiff that they the said defendants caused a kobala to be executed by the fourth defendant and that they being the real owners became witnesses to the deed and received the whole of the consideration money and prayed for reason of ouster and disturbance alleged for damages against all the defendants for breach of the following covenant contained in the kobala: If any one making any objection to the sale by me of the said mehal give you trouble in any way then I will put matters straight. If I fail to do so I will return the consideration money. If I do not return it you will realize it by means of a suit. The Civil Judge in whose Court the plant was filed held that no cause of action was shown, and the High Court on appeal remanded the case to try whether there had been the ouster and disturbance alleged, and whether, under the circumstances they constituted a breach of the contract. The High Court however dismissed the suit against the three first defendants holding that the mother only was bound by the contract. Held by the Privy Council that the plant disclosed a cause of action against all the defendants and that the case must be remanded accordingly. A remained in possession of the properties till his death in 1800. After his death P remained in possession of the properties 1 2 and 3 and S the younger widow remained in possession of other properties. In November P executed in respect of the 8 annas of the properties covered by the hibas a kobala in favour of G's son then a minor. S died in 1868 and P died in 1871. In a suit brought by a son of that daughter on 4th January 1893 for the recovery (inter alia) of possession of his share of properties 1 2 and 3 from P's son with mesne profits and for a declaration that the deeds executed by K were colourable transactions and that the kobala executed by P was not valid and binding. Held as to the contention that plaintiff was not entitled to be relieved against the consequences of the fraud of his predecessors in title that the balance of authority is decidedly in favour of the proposition that it is always open to a party to show that a document simply executed but not carried into effect is a benami and colourable document and to recover possession of property against the party claiming under such document. Symes v Hughes 1 L R 9 Eq 470. Phool Bibee v Goor Suran Dass 18 W R P 490. Sreenath Roy v P. nood Barhies Debia 20 W R P 112. Debia Choudhran v Bewala Soondare Debia 21 W R P 429. Bylunt Nath Sen v Goboolah Sdkar 24 W R 391. Malus Mullck v Bamjan Sardar 9 C L R 64 referred to. Kalyan Kh Kar v Doyal Kristo Deb 13 W R 87 not followed.

question is, whether property bought and held in the name of another than the party claiming as the real purchaser is the property of that other or merely bought and held in his name (benami) for the claimant, the criterion is to consider from what source the purchase-money came; the presumption is that a purchase made with the money of A in the name of B is for the benefit of A and where the purchase is by a father whether Mahomedan or Hindu in the name of his son, there is no presumption of an advancement in favour of the son. 46. — Benami purchase—Whether property was held benami for the claimant or was a gift to the holder—Evidence of ownership p.—Source of purchase-money—The claimant having supplied the purchase money on the sale of the village in suit took the transfer by sale deed in the name of the first defendant who remained in possession of it, receiving rents. The claim was for proprietary possession by the purchaser on the ground that this property was held benami for him. The first Court decreed the claim. The Appellate Court reversed this decision. The first Court had attributed too much to the fact that the plaintiff had supplied the purchase-money—an important fact in most of the cases raising the question of benami or not benami but not the only test of ownership. Here the source of that money was consistent with the claimant's having as the defence alleged intended to make a gift of the property to the holder of it and the right inference from the fact was that it was not held benami for the claimant but belonged to the defendant. BAK NARAIN v. Purchase of a taluk in Bengal by a Hindu in his eldest son's name the conveyance though in the English form of lease and release held to be a benami purchase and the son in whose name it was purchased declared to be a trustee for the father and the taluk part of the father's estate. GOPEKRISTO GOSAIN v. Having reason however to believe that the purchase was benami for the judgment debtor the decree holder again took out execution against the same property and advertised it for sale. The property was then sold and one of the defendants bought it. Where bona fide creditors of the ostensible owner of property are claimants on that property the Court will require strict proof on the part of any one seeking to have it declared that he held it only benami. PURNADAWLA NOWAN AHMED ALI KHAN & HURDWARI MULL 5 B L R. 578

When the rights of creditors are in issue in such a transaction very strict proof of the nature of the transaction should be required from the objector to such rights and the burden of proof lies with more than ordinary weight on the person alleging that the purchase was intended for the benefit of the son. NAGENDRAI & ABDULLA

(b) CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE 1852 s 317 (1800 s 200)

78 — Civil Procedure Code 1852 s 317—Sale for arrears of revenue—Act XI of 1859 s 36—Certified purchaser—A against—A the certified purchaser of a talukhat at a sale held under the provisions of Act XI of 1859 s 36, arrears of revenue and who had obtained symbolic possession had at the time of the sale agreed with B the former owner of the talukhat to re-convey to him (B) after the sale had been completed. In a suit by B to compel specific performance of the contract alleging that he had never quitted actual possession of the talukhat, objection was taken that the suit was not maintainable under s 36 of Act XI of 1859 and s 317 of Act XI of 1852. Held that the suit not being one to oust the certified purchaser from possession it was not barred by s 36; and that neither was it barred by s 317 of the Civil Procedure Code. 81 — Purchase in another's name at Court sale—Liability of property to creditors of benamdar—The immovable property of A at a Court sale was purchased by B with the money and on behalf of A. B subsequently conveyed the property to C for the benefit of A. Held that the property could be taken in execution by the creditors of A. Quare—Whether but for the subsequent conveyance B under the operation of ss 259 and 260 of the Civil Procedure Code would not have had a good title against the creditors of A. SATAPU VALAD DAV DONNER v KARBASAPA 7 Bom., A C 21

83 — Suit for possession against certified purchaser—Suit for possession by purchaser from certified purchaser at an execution sale. Defendant in possession not only denied plaintiff's title but that of his vendor whose purchase was clearly fraudulent being made in collusion with the judgment debtor to defraud creditors. Held that s 260 Act VIII of 1859 did not prohibit a defendant under such circumstances from questioning the plaintiff's title; that it was provided for the dismissal of a suit brought to question the title of the certified purchaser but did not prohibit a defendant from questioning that title when the auction purchaser sought to oust him. KHATEALI v SYFULLAH KHAN [B W R, 130]

debtor sued to be confirmed in possession of the property by virtue of his certificate of sale and to obtain the cancellation of the second sale and the order disallowing his objections to that sale. 87 — Onus probandi—Where plaintiff as heir of the ostensible auction purchaser sued to oust defendant who had been twelve years in possession and the latter pleaded that the sale was made benami—Held that the long possession would go to prove the truth of defendant's allegation that the auction purchaser was merely a trustee for him and it would be for plaintiff to show that his ancestor paid for the purchased property. Held that ss 259 and 260 Act VIII of 1859 did not apply as the sale was made before that law came into operation. ZOOLFEKAR ALI v MAHOMED TUKER 9 W R, 438

88 — Certified purchaser—The purchaser of immovable property sold in execution of a decree of a Civil Court got a certificate under s 259 of Act VIII of 1859 and subsequently sued for possession of that which he had purchased. The object of s 260 is to prevent any enquiry between the purchaser de facto and any person on whose behalf he is alleged to have purchased. Held on appeal (reversing the decision of the High Court) that s 260 of Act VIII of 1859 is to be construed strictly and that no suit would lie by A against the mortgagee to redeem BIRAN KUNWAR v BHARI LAL [3 B L R F B 15 11 W R F B 16 On appeal 10 B L R 169 [18 W R 157 14 Moore s I A, 496]

1—Estate—Lands not permanently settled—Sunderbunds estate—District of which portion only is permanently settled—Bengal Regulations IX of 1816 and III of 1823—Estate—Bengal Act VII of 1868—The plaintiff was the auction purchaser at a sale under Act XI of 1819 by the Collector of the 24 Pargunnahs for arrears of revenue of an estate in the Sunderbunds on which the defendant was the holder of a moknari mouzari junglebur tenure under which he was to clear away the jungle and then to cultivate the land with paddy. The estate was one bruce on the register of revenue paying estates in the Collect rate of the 24 Pargunnahs and therefore within that Collectorate with regard to the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1868 s. 10. The district of the 24 Pargunnahs is a permanently settled district but the portion of it forming the Sunderbunds was declared by Regulation III of 1823 s. 18 not to be included in the permanent settlement. The Sunderbunds tract was moreover under Regulation IX of 1816 formed into a separate jurisdiction for settlement purposes under an officer styled the Commissioner of the Sunderbunds who is subject to the direct control of the Board of Revenue and independent of the Collector of the 24 Pargunnahs. Held that though there was no permanent settlement of the lands sold to the plaintiff they fell within the definition of an estate as given in Bengal Act VII of 1868. BHOLANATH BANDYOPADHYA v UMACHUR BANDYOPADHYA 1 L. In October 1871 he applied to the Munsif for and sued out execution of his decree. In January 1872 one of the defendants applied to the Deputy Collector for a review of his judgment and the Deputy Collector admitted the review and dismissed the plaintiff's suit. On appeal the Judge held that the Deputy Collector had no jurisdiction to entertain the application for review or to hear the case the decree having been transferred under Bengal Act III of 1870 to the Munsif for execution and reversed the judgment of the Deputy Collector. Held that the suit having been decided by the Deputy Collector before Bengal Act VIII of 1869 came into operation the procedure therefore would be that laid down by s. 108 of the Act s. 108 under Act X of 1870 and the appeal would lie to the Collector not to the Judge under s. 153 and 155 of that Act. 1.—Income tax—Suit for arrears of rent—Set off—Effect of Act on agreement made before passing of Act—In 1850, at the time the income tax was in force, A made a patta in allotment of certain lands with B, B agreeing to pay any enhancement of the revenue that might be made by Government at any time or any impost in future to be levied by Government the income tax to be paid by A according to his income, B having nothing to do with the same. In 1876 A brought a suit against B for arrears of rent, B under the contract, claimed to have set off as a tax on income a sum which he had paid under the Road Cess Act which had been passed in 1871 after the Income Tax Act had been repealed. Held that the tax imposed by the Road Cess Act passed by the Bengal Council could not be considered to be a tax on income, the income tax having been a tax imposed by the Government of India on a person's annual income levied upon whatever actually came to his hands as income and not upon the value of his property, and that therefore B could not set off the amount as being income tax. Held also that although the Road Cess Act contains no saving clause in favour of contracts, it does not prohibit in future the making of contracts which shall interfere with the incidence of the road cess as directed by the Act nor vacate contracts that may have been made before the passing of the Act and in the absence of any provisions to that effect an agreement entered into before the passing of the Act could not be affected by the subsequent passing of the Act. SURMOMYEE DABER v. 2.—Construction of kabalat—Suit for rent—Right of set off—The defendants executed a kabalat dated 1st October 1870 which contained the following stipulation: "If in future any chowkidari tax or any other new abwab or tax or fee or kor or any additional fee or jumma be fixed upon the mahal by Government I will pay that separately. In a suit by the zamindar for increase of rent the defendants claimed to set off a sum representing the amount which the zamindar was bound to contribute under the Road Cess Act and Public Works Cess Act and which amount they had paid to the Collector. Held that the amount in question came within the terms of the kabalat and that the defendants were not entitled to the set off claimed by them. SURMOMYEE DABER v. 2.—s 11 and ss 10, 23, 25 and 26—Sale for arrears of road cess—Effect of—Right of purchaser—Interpretation on clause construction of—In a suit on a bond by which certain land admittedly lakhura was mortgaged the purchaser of a portion of the mortgaged property at an auction sale for arrears of road cess due under Bengal Act X of 1871 was added as a defendant and the lower Courts holding that the effect of such a sale was to pass the property to the defendants free of incumbrances made a decree excluding that portion from liability in respect of the mortgage bond. Held on the construction of Bengal Act X of 1871 that the sale had no such effect and that the whole of the property was liable to be sold in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim. Although the effect of an interpretation clause is to give the meaning assigned by it to the word interpreted in all places in the Act in which that word occurs it is not the effect of an interpretation clause that the thing defined has annexed to it every incident which may seem to be attached to it by any other Act of the Legislature. It does not follow therefore that because lakhura property is defined in the Road Cess Act 1871 to be a tenure all the incidents and consequences attached by other Acts to tenures generally or to particular classes of tenures become annexed to lakhura property. UMCHURN BAGI v. Sale in execution of decrees for arrears of Cess—Procedure—Purchasers Rights of—Although the procedure for the realization of cesses may be the same as the procedure laid down for the realization of rent due upon the tenure yet it does not necessarily follow that the effect of a sale for cesses should be the same as that of a sale for arrears of rent for which the tenure itself is liable to be sold. Umachurn Bag v Ajadannusa Bibee I L B 12 Calc 430 followed. Notwithstanding therefore that s 47 of the Cess Act 1880 provides that every holder of an estate or tenure to whom any sum may be payable under the provisions of this Act may recover the same with interest at the rate of twelve and a half per centum per annum in the same manner and under the same penalties as if the same were arrears of rent due to him the effect of a sale by the Collector in execution of a decree for cesses against some of the owners of a tenure is not to convey to the purchaser the whole tenure but only the right title and interest of the particular persons against whom the decree had been obtained MAHANUND CHUCKERBUTTY v HANI MADHUB CHATTERJEE

It was found that no notice of the valuation had been published as required by s 53 of the Act and it was held by the lower Court that the plaintiffs were therefore not entitled to recover double the amount under s 58. It was then contended that he was at any rate entitled to recover the amount of the cesses with interest under s 60. Held that the latter section did not give the holder of

1. ———— Hindu Law—Mahomedan Law—Convert—Justice equity and good conscience—To entitle a person to have the Hindu or Mahomedan law applied to him under the first paragraph of s 24 of Act VI of 1871 he must be an orthodox believer in the Hindu or Mahomedan religion. The mere circumstance that he calls himself or is called by others a Hindu or Mahomedan as the case may be is not enough. His only claim to have a special kind of law applied to him is that he follows and observes a particular religion that of itself creates his law for him. If he fails to establish his religion his privilege to the application of its law fails also and he must be relegated to that class of persons whose cases have to be dealt with under the latter paragraph of s 24 of Act VI of 1871 according to justice equity and good conscience. B alleging that his family was a joint undivided Hindu family sued R his father for a declaration that certain property was joint ancestral property and for partition of his share according to the Hindu law of inheritance of such property etc one moiety. R set up as a defence to the suit that the members of the family were Mahomedans and were therefore not governed by the Hindu law. The evidence in the suit established that the members of the family were neither orthodox Hindus nor Mahomedans. It also established that the Hindu law of inheritance had always been followed in the family. Held following the principle enunciated above that the family not being Hindus nor Mahomedans the rule of decision applicable to the suit was neither Hindu nor Mahomedan law but justice equity and good conscience that the Hindu law of inheritance having always been followed in the family it was justice equity and good conscience to apply that law to the suit and that therefore B was entitled to demand partition of half of the family estate. Abraham v Abraham 9 Moore s I A 199 referred to RAJ BAHADUR v BISHEK DAYAL

2. ———— Mahomedan Law—Pre-emption—Under s 24 of Act VI of 1871 Mahomedan law is not strictly applicable in suits for pre-emption between Mahomedans not based on local custom or contract but it is equitable in such suits to apply that law. The application of Mahomedan law in a suit for pre-emption between a Mahomedan claimant of pre-emption and a Mahomedan vendee on the basis of that law is not precluded by the circumstances of the vendor not being a Mahomedan. CHUNDO v ALMOODDERY 6 N W 28
